This appropriation provides for the full costs associated with the Science, Aeronautics and Exploration (SAE) activities of the Agency, which consist of the Space Science, Earth Science, Biological and Physical Research, Aeronautics, and Education Programs. The full costs include both the direct and the indirect costs supporting these programs, and provide for all of the research; development; operations; salaries and related expenses; design, repair, rehabilitation, and modification of facilities and construction of new facilities; maintenance and operation of existing facilities; and other general and administrative activities supporting Science, Aeronautics and Exploration programs. This account includes activities that were previously funded in the Science, Aeronautics, and Technology account.

Performance Objectives

Detailed performance goals associated with the Science, Aeronautics and Exploration (SAE) activities are addressed in NASA's FY 2004 President's Budget. The SAE activities include: Space Science, Earth Science, Biological and Physical Research, Aeronautics, and Education Programs; and are described below.

Space Science.—NASA's Space Science program seeks to answer fundamental questions concerning: the galaxy and the universe; the connections among the Sun, Earth and heliosphere; the origin and evolution of planetary systems; and the origin and distribution of life in the universe. The Space Science program is comprised of many research and development activities, including flight missions, major space-based facilities, technology and mission development programs, and research and data analysis.

NASA will proceed in the development of several major missions, including the Stratospheric Observatory for Infrared Astronomy (SOFIA), the Solar Terrestrial Relations Observatory (STEREO), the Gamma-ray Large-Area Space Telescope (GLAST), the Solar Dynamics Observatory (SDO) and the final Hubble Space Telescope (HST) Servicing Mission. SOFIA development will continue in preparation for a spring 2005 first science flight. STEREO, scheduled for launch in November 2005, will advance our understanding of the Sun's corona (its outer "atmosphere"), the origin of huge eruptions of solar material known as coronal mass ejections (CMEs), and the interaction between CMEs and the Earth's environment. GLAST, which will investigate the high-energy world of black holes and neutron stars, is on track for launch in the fall of 2006. SDO will increase our understanding of the Sun's magnetic field, solar wind, energetic particles, and variations in solar irradiance. Development of SDO begins in 2004. During the final HST Servicing Mission, also scheduled for 2004, astronauts will install the Cosmic Origins Spectrograph (COS) and Wide Field Camera 3 (WFC3) to extend the telescope's operational life to 2010. Development activities supporting several key missions in the payloads program, such as Solar-B and Herschel, will also continue in 2004.

Support for the Explorer and New Millennium programs will continue. Small- and Medium-class Explorer missions provide frequent flight opportunities for a diverse array of world-class scientific investigations—recently selected projects will examine diffuse intergalactic radiation and ice in Earth's mesosphere. Another Small Explorers mission, the second of the Two Wide-angle Imaging Neutral-atom Spectrometers (TWINS), will be launched in 2004 to provide stereoscopic images of the Earth's magnetosphere for the first time. The New Millennium Program provides flight demonstrations of critical new technologies that will reduce the mass and cost of future science and spacecraft subsystems, while maintaining or improving mission capabilities. Several of these innovative Space Technology projects (ST-5, 6, and 7) are scheduled for launch from 2004 through 2006.

The Discovery Program provides frequent access to space for small planetary missions that will perform high-quality scientific investigations. Both Deep Impact, the first space mission to probe beneath the surface of a comet and reveal the secrets of its interior, and the Mercury Surface, Space Environment, Geochemistry and Ranging (MESSENGER) mission to orbit Mercury are scheduled for launch in 2004. The Kepler Mission to explore the structure and diversity of planetary systems, with a special emphasis on detecting Earth-size planets in the habitable zones around other stars, will be in development in 2004, as will the Dawn mission to study the asteroids 1 Ceres and 4 Vesta.

Focused technology programs are included in each of the five major Space Science themes: Astronomical Search for Origins, Structure and Evolution of the Universe, Solar System Exploration, Mars Exploration Program, and Sun-Earth Connection. Funding is provided for early technology development in support of strategic missions, such as the James Webb (formerly "Next Generation") Space Telescope and the Living With a Star Program. The goal is to retire technology risk early in a mission's lifecycle, before proceeding to full-scale development. Funds are also provided to continue ongoing operations of approximately thirty spacecraft, and to conduct robust research and analysis, data analysis, and sub-orbital research campaigns.

The budget request for 2004 features two new initiatives: Optical Communication and the Jupiter Icy Moons Tour. Optical Communication seeks to use lasers to improve by many orders of magnitude the communication data rate for deep space missions. Current limitations on data transfer using radio constrain scientific discovery and public participation in our space missions. The Jupiter Icy Moons Tour will explore the icy moons of Jupiter (Europa, Ganymede, and Callisto), providing a full characterization of the moons through orbital reconnaissance. This will set the stage for the next phase of Jovian exploration, to include surface chemical and organic investigations, and a probe to explore the sub-surface environment. This mission will be part of Project Prometheus, an effort started last year to demonstrate nuclear power and nuclear electric propulsion technology that can open the solar system to detailed research and exploration.

Earth Science.—NASA's Earth Science Program contributes to the Agency's mission to understand and protect our home planet by developing a scientific understanding of the Earth system and its response to both natural and human-induced changes to enable improved prediction of climate, weather and natural hazards for present and future generations.

The Earth Science Program seeks to answer a question of fundamental importance to science and society: How is the Earth system changing, and what are the consequences for life on Earth? In pursuit of this question, NASA has pioneered the interdisciplinary research field of Earth System Science, which recognizes that the Earth's land surface, oceans, atmosphere, ice sheets, and life itself all interact in a highly dynamic system. Employing a constellation of over 15 Earth observing satellites routinely making measurements with over 80 remote sensing instruments, NASA has made it an Agency goal to understand the Earth system and apply Earth System Science to improve prediction of climate, weather, and natural hazards. Within this goal, we have defined two strategic objectives: (1) Science—observe, analyze, and model the Earth system to discover how it is changing and the consequences for life on Earth; and (2) Applications—expand and accelerate the realization of economic and societal benefits from Earth science information and technology; with Earth System Science and Earth Science Applications as the corresponding budget themes.

Within Earth System Science, NASA works with the science community to identify questions on the frontiers of science that have profound societal importance, and to which remote sensing of the Earth can make a defining contribution. These science questions become the foundation of a research strategy, which defines requirements for scientific observations, and a roadmap for combining the technology, observations, modeling efforts, basic research, and partnerships needed to answer the questions over time. We are responding to the scientific community's call for comprehensive observation of the Earth's major components using the Earth Observing System (EOS). NASA uses the global view from space to contribute to the U.S. Government's Global Change Research Program (USGCRP) and Climate Change Research Initiative (CCRI). We have identified key areas of investment that will enable us to do more, and do it more rapidly, with a targeted investment in observations, research, and modeling of uncertainties surrounding the forces acting on the climate system.

Within Earth Science Applications, NASA enables the application of information and knowledge gained through partnerships with other federal agencies. These partnerships focus on innovative approaches for using Earth science information and knowledge to provide decision support information. This information supports myriad operational applications, as well as policy discussions, and is used to address a variety of national priorities, including economic issues and homeland security. Through the Earth Science Applications program, NASA is working with organizations with the appropriate information infrastructure to apply NASA's Earth science results to help manage coastal environments, agriculture and water resources, and aviation safety; monitor air and water quality, forest fires, and the impacts of infectious diseases and invasive species; and conduct hurricane forecasting and disaster relief efforts. The potential socioeconomic benefits of these applications are significant.

Biological and Physical Research.—NASA's Biological and Physical Research (BPR) Enterprise addresses the opportunities and challenges of space flight through basic and applied research on the ground and in space. The program exploits the rich opportunities of space flight in pursuit of answers to a broad set of scientific questions that support NASA's goals to explore the fundamental principles of physics, chemistry and biology through research in the unique natural laboratory of space, and to extend the duration and boundaries of human space flight to create new opportunities for scientific exploration and discovery. The major outcomes of this research include fundamental scientific progress and safer more efficient space travel. BPR includes three themes: Biological Sciences Research, Physical Sciences Research, and Research Partnerships and Flight Support.

Physical Science Research supports basic and applied research that takes advantage of the unique environment of space to expand our understanding of the fundamental laws of nature. The theme supports NASA’s mission to explore the universe and search for life both through applied research to improve safety and performance and through exploratory research on the fundamental laws of nature. The theme supports NASA’s mission to understand and protect our home planet by producing research results that have direct application to industrial products and processes.

Biological Science Research conducts basic and applied research to enable and support a safe human presence in space in support of NASA’s mission to explore the universe and search for life. This theme includes a basic biology research component that pursues fundamental biological research questions as an integral element of understanding how space affects life at all levels, from genes to cells to organisms. This theme supports research to define and control the physiological and psychological challenges to human health associated with space flight, including research on radiation risks, risks associated with microgravity, and risks associated with prolonged isolation and small group dynamics. The theme also includes research and development to improve the reliability and performance of life support systems and spacecraft crew interfaces.

The FY 2004 budget request reflects the results of the NASA Advisory Council’s Research Maximization and Prioritization (ReMaP) Task Force recommendations. The request expands planned biomedical research and countermeasures experiments, including a new Human Research Initiative; initiates a limited flight program in high priority advanced human support technology; places additional emphasis on physical science research, including applications to human space flight; and reinstates funding for plant and animal habitats for planned centrifuge research on the International Space Station (ISS).

Implementing ReMaP in the FY 2004 budget is a crucial first step in a longer running planning and prioritization process. In the near term, research and facility development are aligned with the ReMaP priorities in the FY 04 Budget. At the same time, BPR has responded to NASA’s new strategic plan by adopting a 5-year direction consistent with overall agency vision, mission and goals. This direction has identified major research thrusts, consistent with the agency strategic plan and the management changes required to support these thrusts.

Aeronautics.—Aeronautics Technology addresses the Agency’s goal to “enable a safer, more secure, efficient, and environmentally friendly air transportation system” by performing research and technology to: decrease the aircraft fatal accident rate and the vulnerability of the air transportation system to threats; protect the local and global environmental quality by reducing aircraft noise and emissions; and enable more people and goods to travel faster and farther with fewer delays. NASA works closely with the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) in setting these goals. Additionally, in support of the Agency goal “to create a more secure world and improve the quality of life by investing in technologies and to collaborate with other agencies, industry and academia,” Aeronautics Technology supports national security through aeronautical partnerships with the Department of Defense and other government agencies. Finally, this theme enables pioneering aeronautical concepts to support earth and space science missions and new commercial markets in support of the Agency goal to “enable revolutionary capabilities through new technology.”

Three research and technology programs compose the Aeronautics Technology theme. The Aviation Safety and Security Program develops and demonstrates technologies and strategies for the prevention, intervention, and mitigation of factors contributing to aviation accidents. This theme gives highest priority to the factors that are most strongly tied to accident and fatality rates, as well as those that address multiple classes of hazards, including hazardous weather, controlled flight into terrain, accidents and incidents caused by human error, and mechanical or software malfunctions. The program develops and integrates technologies needed to build a safer aviation system, to support pilots and air traffic controllers, and to provide information to assess situations and trends that might indicate unsafe conditions before accidents occur. NASA develops, validates and transfers these advanced concepts, technologies and procedures through a partnership with the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and in cooperation with the U.S. aeronautics industry.

To enable increased capacity and mobility of the nation’s air transportation system, the Airspace Systems program develops and demonstrates technology for revolutionary improvements to, and modernization of, the air traffic management (ATM) system. The technology enables new ATM decision support tools and airspace concepts as well as new systems for aircraft whose operation can take advantage of the improved, modern ATM system. The resultant benefit to the traveling public will be reduced flight delays and shorter door-step-to-destination times. Users of the technologies that result from this program include: the FAA, state and local airport authorities and their systems suppliers, existing and new commercial and personal aviation operators, and the aircraft developers and their system suppliers. This program directly supports the FAA’s “Free Flight” activities and the Operational Evolution Plan (OEP) and maintains pace with a continually evolving technical environment.

The Vehicle Systems program develops breakthrough technologies to enable new capability and functionality in future aircraft. Technologies from this program are then further developed in the Aviation Safety and Security Program and the Airspace Systems program to reduce aircraft emissions and noise, enable more people and goods to travel faster and farther, and to increase air system safety and security. The Vehicle Systems program also supports development of common advanced air vehicle technologies with the DOD.

Education.—Since its establishment, NASA has served the Nation’s educational interests by sharing its unique mission, facilities, personnel, and research results with inquisitive minds throughout the United States and around the globe. The results have opened the minds of people of all ages, races and background to the universe, new technologies and expanded possibilities. As the 21st century begins, and new national challenges are before us, it is appropriate that NASA re-examine and re-energize the Agency’s education mission and organization. To that end, a NASA Education Office has been established as a new, mission-focused organization that will aggregate NASA’s education programs, management and staff. This Office will position NASA to more effectively leverage its resources to encourage student interest in math, science, and technology education—to inspire the next generation of explorers, as only NASA can.

The NASA Education Office will work toward achieving four priorities: (1) motivating K–16+ students to pursue careers in science, math and engineering; (2) providing educators with unique teaching tools and compelling teaching experiences; (3) seeking to ensure that we are investing the taxpayer’s resources wisely; and (4) engaging minority and underrepresented students, educators and researchers in NASA’s education program. An important and visible component of the NASA Education Office is the Minority University Research and Education Program, insuring that minority education programs are a high priority for the Agency.

This appropriation provides for the full costs associated with the capabilities that support Agency research, which consist of the Space Flight and Crosscutting Technology Programs. The full costs include both the direct and the indirect costs supporting these programs, and provide for all of the research; development; operations; salaries and related expenses; design, repair, rehabilitation, and modification of facilities and construction of new facilities; maintenance and operation of existing facilities; and other general and administrative activities supporting Science, Aeronautics and Exploration programs. This account includes activities that were previously funded in the Human Space Flight and Science, Aeronautics, and Technology accounts.

Performance Objectives

Detailed performance goals associated with the Enabling Capabilities activities are addressed in NASA's FY 2004 President's Budget. The Enabling Capabilities activities include Space Flight and Crosscutting Technology, and are described below.

Space Flight.—Space Flight encompasses the following themes: International Space Station (ISS), Space Shuttle Program, and Space and Flight Support.

The ISS is a complex of research laboratories in low Earth orbit (LEO) in which American, Russian, Canadian, European, and Japanese astronauts are conducting unique scientific and technological investigations in a micro-gravity environment. The objectives of the Station are to support scientific research and other activities requiring the unique attributes of humans in space, and establish a permanent human presence in Earth orbit. Program estimates have been determined to be credible by independent assessment teams, however, concerns were raised in regard to the sufficiency of funding levels to cover risks to program performance and to expand research. To this end, the FY 2004 Budget request provides increased funding for continued development of the vehicle and for operations in support of continued assembly, logistics re-supply, crew exchange, research operations and other utilization. With fourteen U.S. assembly and logistic missions successfully completed, the budget includes funding to keep subsequent assembly missions on schedule through U.S. Core Complete (Flight 10A), currently planned for calendar year 2004, and to continue to expand research opportunities commensurate with the build-up of on-orbit utilization capabilities and resources.

The Space Shuttle Program plays a vital role in NASA's strategic goal to advance human exploration, use, and development of space by providing safe, routine access to space in support of permanent human operations in Low Earth Orbit. NASA planning assumes the Space Shuttle will need to be capable of supporting assembly and operation of the Space Station for at least this decade. Specific program investments are required in order to maintain this human transport capability through this decade. These investments are consistent with NASA's strategy of ensuring the Space Shuttle remains viable until a new transportation system is operational. The FY 2004 budget request will allow NASA to meet the intended flight rates, provide appropriate contingency planning to assure transportation and assembly support to the ISS program and include high priority projects for safety and supportability. These projects will combat obsolescence of vehicles, ground systems, and facilities, in order to maintain the program's safety and viability through this decade.

Space and Flight Support is comprised of separate "enabling capabilities" programs that provide on-going customer support for a wide range of services including environmental activities, space communications, Space Shuttle payloads processing, expendable launch vehicles, and rocket propulsion systems testing. These services are critical for the conduct of space exploration, aeronautical research and physiological research. They are provided to a wide range of customers including NASA, other U.S. federal agencies, foreign governments and commercial interests. Space and Flight Support also includes the Advanced Systems program, which will enable NASA to take a "stepping stone" approach to future NASA missions through by advanced research and technology development.

Crosscutting Technology.—The Aerospace Technology Enterprise includes three themes in Crosscutting Technology: Space Launch Initiative, Mission & Science Measurement Technology, and Innovative Technology Partnerships.

The Space Launch Initiative (SLI) will develop the Orbital Space Plan (OSP) to help assure safe, affordable, and reliable U.S.-based crew access and return from the Space Station. The OSP will start as a crew return vehicle, launched on an Evolved Expendable Launch Vehicle (EELV). Initially, the OSP will provide crew return capability by 2010. By 2012, the Orbital Space Plane will evolve to be flown on a human-rated EELV and will transfer crew, and possibly limited cargo, to and from the International Space Station. This capability will serve as a complement and backup to the Space Shuttle for taking crew into space. Later, the Orbital Space Plane could become the basis for a crew transfer vehicle on a new reusable launch vehicle. Funds for the OSP will support an aggressive effort to assess options and complete a preliminary design by 2005. If the Orbital Space Plane is approved for full-scale development, the program will be managed in a streamlined approach to reduce the cost of development and maintain an aggressive schedule. The Next Generation Launch Technology (NGLT) program will be responsible for making the investments relating to the next SLI goal, that focuses on making future space transportation systems safer, more affordable, and more reliable. NASA will make focused, strategic investments in key technology areas—including propulsion, structures and operations—to be applied to both reusable and expendable launch systems. The NGLT program will enable future development decisions on launch systems that support NASA's space transportation needs for the upcoming decades.

The Mission and Science Measurement Technology (MSM) theme enables revolutionary capabilities through new technology. MSM objectives are to develop science-driven architectures and technology, to create knowledge from scientific data, and to develop capabilities for assessing and managing mission risk. The advanced system concepts, fundamental technologies, and engineering tools developed by MSM are unique to NASA needs, and are applicable across many classes of missions in multiple Enterprises. These products may require many years to progress from initial concept definition to mission infusion. Three programs have been formulated to accomplish MSM objectives: the Computing, Information, and Communications Technologies (CICT) Program, that develops breakthrough information and communication systems to increase our understanding of scientific data and phenomena; the Engineering for Complex Systems (ECS) Program, that develops the capabilities to assess and manage risk in the synthesis of complex systems; and the Enabling Concepts and Technologies (ECT) Program, that defines new system concepts, and develops new technologies to enable new science measurements for the NASA Enterprises.

NASA's Innovative Technology Partnership activities consist of: Commercial Programs, Technology Transfer agents, the Enterprise Engine, and the Small Business Research programs. In FY 2004, NASA will initiate an orderly phase-out of the existing Commercial Technology Program, and a new concept—the Enterprise Engine—will be introduced. The Enterprise Engine will create partnerships between NASA, industrial firms and the venture capital community to address NASA's new technology mission needs through innovative technology development partnerships. NASA's Small Business Research programs will continue. They include the Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) and the Small Business Technology Transfer (STTR) programs, which were created by Congress, and promote awards of NASA research contracts to the small business community and promote commercialization of the products of this research by the small business community. These programs help NASA develop innovative technologies by providing competitive research contracts to U.S. owned small businesses.

NASA's "Mission Support" account included Research and Program Management (R&PM) and Construction of Facilities (CoF), which have not been included in a separate appropriation since 2001. Instead, those "Mission Support" activities are budgeted as part of the full costs associated with projects in the Science, Aeronautics and Exploration account or the Enabling Capabilities account (except for environmental activities, which had previously been included in CoF, and is now budgeted separately under Enabling Capabilities). This account shows spending from balances prior to the account restructuring.

The research and related activities appropriation enables the United States to provide leadership and promote progress across the expanding frontiers of scientific and engineering research and education. This appropriation provides resources for NSF to achieve the following goals for strategic outcomes: enabling discovery across the frontier of science and engineering, connected to learning, innovation and service of society; development of a diverse, internationally competitive and globally-engaged workforce of scientists, engineers and well-prepared citizens; and providing broadly accessible, state-of-the-art research and education tools. Research activities will contribute to the achievement of these goals through development of intellectual capital, integration of research and education, and promotion of partnerships. This appropriation supports NSF's active development of performance indicators.

The major research program activities of the Foundation are:

Biological sciences.—This activity promotes scientific progress in biology through support of research ranging from the study of molecules, through cells and organisms, to studies of ecosystems. This activity also supports a comprehensive research initiative on plant genomes, including research on economically significant crops.

Computer and information sciences and engineering.—Research is directed at “information technology” in the broadest sense of the term, ranging from fundamental theory to systems engineering.

Engineering.—Research supported by this activity aims to increase U.S. engineering capability and strength, and focus that capability and strength on areas which are relevant to national problems and long-term needs. This activity also includes small business innovation research.

Geosciences.—This research advances knowledge of the properties and dynamics of the planet Earth.

Mathematical and physical sciences.—Research in this activity is directed at increasing understanding of natural laws and phenomena. It includes research in mathematical sciences, astronomy, physics, chemistry, and materials science.

Social, behavioral and economic sciences.—This activity supports research in social, behavioral and economic sciences, facilitates international scientific cooperation, and funds science resources studies.

U.S. polar research programs.—This activity supports Arctic and Antarctic research and operational science support and other related activities for the United States polar research programs. This activity includes funding for the expenses of the Arctic Research Commission.

U.S. Antarctic logistical support activities.—This activity provides funding for reimbursing Federal agencies for logistical and other related activities for the United States Antarctic program.

Integrative activities.—This activity supports emerging cross-disciplinary research efforts and major research instrumentation. This activity also provides support for the Science and Technology Policy Institute.

Education and human resources (EHR) activities provide a comprehensive set of programs that further NSF's goal of ensuring a diverse, internationally competitive and globally-engaged workforce of scientists, engineers and well-prepared citizens. At the pre-kindergarten through grade 12 (pre K-12) level, EHR catalyzes reform of science, technology, engineering and mathematics (STEM) education through the development of public-private partnerships. Its pre K-12 programs provide new instructional materials and pedagogical techniques that incorporate the latest advances in teaching, learning, and educational technologies. It also supports training activities for pre-service and in-service STEM teachers. Undergraduate programs improve curricula, strengthen laboratory course offerings, enhance faculty, and lead reform efforts in STEM disciplines. Programs for advanced technological education strengthen education for students preparing to enter the high-technology workforce. Graduate level support is directed primarily to fellowships and traineeships to sustain the U.S. world leadership in science and technology. All EHR programming focuses on broadening participation of groups underrepresented in STEM fields including activities focused on the improvement of infrastructure and academic programs at minority-serving institutions. The Experimental Program to Stimulate Competitive Research (EPSCoR) broadens participation of States and regions in science and engineering by helping institutions expand their research capacity and competitiveness. EHR supports research that advances STEM education, as well as development and effective implementation of learning technologies. Evaluation and communications activities ensure accountability by developing indicators that measure program impact and inform the education community of best practices and relevant information. Also included within EHR are funds resulting from the collection and use of H-1B non-immigrant fees, for undergraduate and graduate scholarships in computer science, mathematics, and engineering and private-public partnerships in K-12 for STEM education. This appropriation also supports NSF's active development of performance indicators.

The Office of Personnel Management (OPM) has responded to President George W. Bush's charge to assume greater responsibility for the strategic management of human capital government-wide by crafting a new Strategic Plan.

This plan holds OPM accountable for Federal agencies adopting human resources management systems that use effective merit-based human capital strategies that, in turn, improve their ability to build and maintain successful, high performance organizations, with a rewarding work environment, that help agencies to accomplish their missions and goals.

To better meet these responsibilities, OPM is undertaking in FY 2003 a major restructuring that will align its efforts to the goals in the Strategic Plan. This restructuring will eliminate stovepipes and significantly reduce the number of offices, resulting in a delayered agency better able to serve its customers. FY 2004 will be the first full year OPM will be operating in its new structure. Concurrently, with the adoption of the new goals of the Strategic Plan and restructuring, OPM will develop a more robust performance evaluation program in FY 2003 to be deployed in FY 2004.

The functions and objectives of the restructured OPM are: Human Resources Program Development (HRPD).—This new organization will develop policies and programs in an integrated manner. HRPD will: (1) Develop policies that support agencies efforts to develop and maintain the capacity of their workforce to continue to meet and improve their strategic performance targets; (2) Support the establishment of the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) by developing policies and regulations consistent with the DHS bill; (3) Provide the Federal Government with a modern compensation system that is performance-oriented, market-sensitive, and assists Federal agencies in meeting their strategic goals; and (4) Increase the effectiveness and efficiency of the Federal hiring process and make Federal employment attractive to high-quality applicants of diverse backgrounds. This function also includes two of 24 Government-wide e-Government projects: the e-Payroll project, which reduces the number of payroll providers from 22 to 4 resulting in planned savings of at least $1.2 billion over the next 10 years, and the Enterprise Human Resources Integration project, which will develop and establish a repository for electronic employee records to enable electronic transfer of data between agencies.

Program performance.—OPM will continue to survey the Senior Executive Service (SES), Human Resources Directors, Human Resources Specialists, and the general workforce to assess and address the impact of policies affecting recruitment, performance, retention, human resource development programs, and their satisfaction with them. The 2001 HR Directors' Customer Satisfaction Survey showed that the percentage of Human Resources Directors who were satisfied with OPM's policy leadership were as follows; 91 percent in pay and leave administration, 80 percent in performance management, 82 percent in position classification and position management, and 74 percent in the Federal Wage System. OPM will deploy in FY 2004 a new evaluation strategy that will assess the value and impact of OPM programs. This strategy will measure effectiveness of OPM programs in how they help agencies strategically improve their human capital practices in support of their missions. Deployment will result in the establishment of baselines and improvement targets for FY 2004 accomplishments.

Agency Merit Systems Accountability and Human Capital Programs.—OPM established this organization to create agency-focused teams to explore, promote and help agencies adopt the best human capital practices that generate results and meet agencies' unique needs. This organization will: (1) Ensure that agencies implement flexible and customized human capital practices that will attract and retain a diverse, high quality, well motivated workforce that is able to tackle the complex issues of today and tomorrow; (2) Provide advice to agencies and promote best practices on solutions, actions and strategies to meet both their immediate and long term human capital management needs; (3) Monitor and assess Federal agencies' effectiveness in implementing merit-based human capital strategies that support their missions; (4) Work with agencies and constituent groups to improve the Senior Executive Service hiring process and address other leadership issues; and (5) Provide advice and assistance in establishing the Department of Homeland Security and ensure that human capital needs for the homeland security community are met. In FY 2002 and FY 2003, OPM took a lead role in establishing the human resource systems of the Department. For the remainder of FY 2003 and throughout FY 2004, OPM will lead in establishing the human capital practices that will help give the 170,000 employees the skills, tools and motivation to achieve the new Department's mission, goals and objectives.

Program performance.—OPM will develop an index that will allow an assessment of merit systems and human capital practices across Federal agencies as well as how those human capital practices help agencies better fulfill their missions, thereby establishing a link between human capital strategies and the results Americans expect from the Federal Government. In addition, OPM will track Government-wide data and trends through centralized data sources such as the Central Personnel Data File (CPDF), the Government-wide Survey (GWS) and other appropriate metrics to assess human capital progress and help agencies improve. In support of the President's Management Agenda, the GWS provides a managerially useful indicator of the views of responding Federal employees, who work in 27 member agencies of the President's Management Council, about agency human capital management practices. The 2002 GWS provided baseline data that can be used to measure and help understand changes in survey results over time.

HR Products and Services.—Under this new organization, OPM has consolidated functions and activities that: (1) Provide cost-effective, relevant and useful human capital products and services to agencies; (2) Make the transition from active employment to retirement seamless and expeditious, facilitating retirement income security for Federal employees; and (3) Give Federal employees, annuitants and their families choices of quality and fiscally responsible carriers for addressing their specific insurance needs.

Products and services include security and suitability personnel investigations, support to the department of Justice for the Voting Rights program, automated employment information needed to recruit and hire the federal workforce, and administration of earned employee benefits—the retirement and insurance programs—for federal employees, retirees, and their families.

Program performance.—OPM establishes annual performance goals and objectives designed to achieve long-term strategic goals. Customer service is measured through OPM's Customer Satisfaction Survey, surveys of attendees at conferences, workshops, and/or seminars, and feedback from users of the OPM website and email. Progress is monitored through program performance indicators and output measures.

The Retirement Systems Modernization (RSM) project is OPM's central strategy for meeting its long term retirement program customer service, financial management, business process, and workforce performance goals. OPM is moving from a paper-based record keeping system to program-wide electronic data and transactions. The on-going project is being implemented in phases, reaching full capability in 2010.

During FY 2003, RSM will begin a large-scale data effort to convert masses of hardcopy paper records for current employees to electronic data that will be available to program administrators via the Internet, and will automatically populate OPM's retirement benefits calculator and coverage determination tools. Additionally, OPM will begin providing web-enabled member self-service to facilitate electronic filing of benefits applications. Outcomes include faster, cheaper and more accurate claims processing, increased customer satisfaction and a significant decrease in the amount of space needed to house paper records, reducing storage costs.

In FY 2004, OPM will begin receiving recurring employee data from agencies through the Enterprise Human Resource (HR) Integration project, an OPM-led e-Government initiative, which will minimize the HR data that agencies must send to OPM. Other planned work packages will improve retirement benefits counseling, make claims processing real-time for a significant number of retiring federal employees, and reduce the manual data entry required for claims processing.

On average, OPM processes 170,000 Civil Service and Federal Employees' Retirement System (CSRS and FERS) annuity and survivor claims annually. Since FY 2000, the processing time for interim annuity payments has been reduced from five days to two days, and, in FY 2002, more than 56 percent of interim payments were authorized within one day. As OPM leveraged technology investments to increase its claims processing capacity and efficiency, FERS claims processing times dropped from 185 days in FY 2000 to 70 days in FY 2002, while customer satisfaction about the timeliness of the first annuity payment has remained at or near 80 percent since FY 1997.

OPM's continuing focus is to develop a comprehensive and competitive benefits package for the Federal workforce that offers choices comparable to the private sector, and which supports our human capital efforts to recruit and retain an effective workforce. To mitigate the effects of rising health insurance premiums, OPM implemented premium conversion in FY 2001, which allows Federal employees to deduct their share of health insurance premiums from their taxable income, thereby reducing their taxes and making health coverage more affordable. In addition, OPM is implementing a Flexible Spending Account (FSA) program. These accounts allow employees to set aside a part of their salary by pre-tax withholdings and use the pretax dollars to pay for some medical, dental, vision and dependent-care expenses. FSAs are scheduled to be available to Federal employees beginning July 1, 2003.

The Administration will work with stakeholders to better coordinate the Medicare and Federal Employees Health Benefits programs and look to the practices of the private sector to ensure high quality, cost-conscious choices for retirees. These important programs jointly finance health insurance for about 2.1 million Federal retirees and their dependents.

Management Services.—Includes: OPM human resources, equal employment opportunity, security, facilities, telecommunications, publishing, acquisitions, information resources management, and financial management to support all of OPM's goals. As mentioned previously, this organization will include the new evaluation function that will facilitate the deployment of a new evaluation strategy in FY 2004. It is being developed and piloted during FY 2003 to assess the use and impact of OPM programs and create an index that will allow an assessment of merit systems and human capital practices across Federal agencies. This organization will also coordinate strategic planning and program performance reporting across the agency.

Executive Services.—Includes: executive direction, legal advice and representation, public affairs, legislative activities, and the operating expenses of the President's Commission on White House Fellows.

Reimbursable Programs.—OPM provides administrative, information resources management, and executive services to other OPM accounts on a reimbursable basis. OPM also performs a small amount of reimbursable work under the Economy Act at the request of other agencies.

The Human Capital Performance Fund is designed to create performance-driven pay systems for employees and reinforce the value of employee performance management systems. The Administration proposes providing additional pay over and above any annual, across-the-board pay raise to certain civilian employees based on individual or organizational performance and/or other critical agency human capital needs. Ninety percent of funds appropriated would be distributed to agencies on a pro rata basis, upon OPM approval of an agency's plan. The remainder, and any amount withheld from agencies due to inadequate plans, would be allocated at the discretion of OPM.

The current GS system would remain unchanged; individual employees would remain at their existing GS levels and on schedule for all routine pay raises such as a within-grade increase. Any pay increase received from the Fund would be treated as increases to base pay for retirement and other purposes and would stay with an employee throughout his/her career.

The Administration plans to transmit a detailed legislative proposal to Congress in the near future.

This appropriation provides agency-wide audit, investigative, evaluation, inspection, and administrative sanction functions to identify management and administrative deficiencies that may create conditions for fraud, waste, and mismanagement. The audits function provides internal agency audit, insurance audit, contract audit, and information systems audit services. Contract audits provide professional advice to agency contracting officials on accounting and financial matters regarding the negotiation, award, administration, repricing, and settlement of contracts. Internal agency audits review and evaluate all facets of agency operations, including financial statements. Insurance audits review the operations of health and life insurance carriers, health care providers, and insurance subscribers. Information systems audits review both general controls and application controls for the agency's systems and programs. The investigative function provides for the detection and investigation of improper and illegal activities involving programs, personnel, and operations. Administrative sanctions debar from participation in the health insurance program those health care providers whose conduct may pose a threat to the financial integrity of the program itself or to the well-being of insurance program enrollees.

These Inspector General activities resulted in positive financial impacts of approximately $116 million, 24 criminal convictions, and 3,827 administrative sanctions in 2002.

Additional resources in 2004 will finance more audit staff, special agent criminal investigators, associated analytical staff, and improved information systems. OPM expects to reduce the audit cycle from 5 years to 3.6 years for community-related carriers. Recoveries are expected to increase by $16 million annually as a result.

The budget includes a legislative proposal that corrects for an anticipated USPS overfunding of Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) retirement benefits. This anticipated overfunding is due to a number of factors, including higher than expected past pension investment yields and overly prescriptive and inflexible statutory language. While the legislative proposal would reduce USPS payments to the Retirement Fund, it ensures that USPS meets its pension obligations so that no employee or retiree would lose any benefits. The proposal is consistent with the structure and financing of the Federal Employees' Retirement System as well as the Administration's legislative proposal to fully fund the CSRS liabilities for non-USPS employees and retirees.

OPM's Revolving Fund supports the President's Management Agenda by fully or partially funding three e-Government projects: e-Clearance; e-Training; and Recruitment One-Stop. The Revolving Fund also provides financing on a reimbursable basis for several products and services to Federal agencies.

Government Services.—OPM provides assistance to Government agencies in managing the development of training and human resources management solutions that meet their specific short-term and long-range objectives. This is accomplished through an expedited contracting process, which is managed by an experienced team of HR and contracting professionals. Much of the Training Management Assistance (TMA) workload supports development of training programs for anti-terrorism, emergency preparedness, and intelligence activities at the U.S. Customs Service, Department of Defense (DOD), U.S. Air Force, Federal Aviation Administration, Federal Emergency Management Agency, and the Immigration and Naturalization Service. About 250 programs are managed annually.

OPM delivers employment information, testing and recruiting services, automated staffing, and related human resource management services to Federal agencies nationwide. Nationwide testing involves work planning, scheduling, and administration of written examinations upon request from agencies including the DOD and the Department of Homeland Security.

Investigations.—Through a contract with a private company, OPM conducts National Agency Check and Inquiry cases and background security investigations for Federal agencies on a reimbursable basis. When OPM is required to pay a fee to the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) for name and fingerprint checks, agencies are required to reimburse OPM for such fees through the Revolving Fund.

In FY 2002, a significant part of OPM's business came from the DOD, for which OPM helped reduce a backlog of reinvestigations for civilian and military personnel. When it was necessary, OPM sent teams of OPM employees and contractor staff to assist with special hiring needs, for the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) and the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA). OPM provided these agencies with onsite assistance to complete investigative forms and used portable live-scan equipment to digitize and transmit fingerprints to the FBI for quicker applicant screening. OPM will continue to work closely with its contractor to provide useful, cost-effective products and services in support of Homeland Security.

Training and Development.—OPM conducts residential and nonresidential programs for Federal executives and managers to improve the effectiveness and efficiency of Federal programs.

This fund: (1) pays annuities to retired employees or their survivors; (2) makes refunds to separated employees for amounts withheld and to beneficiaries of employees who died before retirement or before annuities equaled the amount withheld; and (3) pays expenses of the Office of Personnel Management for administering the program.

The fund covers two Federal civilian retirement systems: the Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) and the Federal Employees' Retirement System (FERS).

CSRS is basically a defined benefit plan, covering Federal employees hired prior to 1984. CSRS participants do not participate in the Social Security system. FERS is a three-tiered pension program that uses Social Security as a base, provides an additional basic benefit, and includes a thrift savings plan. FERS covers employees hired after 1983 and formerly CSRS-covered employees who elected to join FERS.

The Administration will propose legislation to simplify the computation of annuities under the Civil Service Retirement System for individuals with part-time service. The change would eliminate an unintended adverse effect on employees who perform part-time service at the end of their careers, and provide agencies increased flexibility to recruit and retain personnel.

In addition, the budget includes a legislative proposal, a portion of which scores PAYGO, that corrects for an anticipated USPS over-funding of Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) retirement benefits. This anticipated over-funding is due to a number of factors, including higher than expected past pension investment yields and overly prescriptive and inflexible statutory language. While the legislative proposal would reduce USPS payments to the Retirement Fund, it ensures that USPS meets its pension obligations so that no employee or retiree would lose any benefits. The proposal is consistent with the structure and financing of the Federal Employees' Retirement System as well as the Administration's legislative proposal to fully fund the CSRS liabilities for non-USPS employees and retirees.

This display combines the Federal Employees Health Benefits (FEHB) fund and the Retired Employees Health Benefits (REHB) fund.

The FEHB fund provides for the cost of health benefits for: (1) active employees; (2) employees who retired after June 1960, or their survivors; (3) those annuitants transferred from the REHB program as authorized by Public Law 93-246; and (4) the related expenses of the Office of Personnel Management (OPM) in administering the program.

The REHB fund, created by the Retired Federal Employees Health Benefits Act of 1960, provides for: (1) the cost of health benefits for retired employees and survivors who enroll in a Government-sponsored uniform health benefits plan; (2) the contribution to retired employees and survivors who retain or purchase private health insurance; and (3) expenses of OPM in administering the program.

Budget program.—The balance of the FEHB fund is available for payments without fiscal year limitation. Numbers of participants at the end of each fiscal year are as follows:

	2002 actual	2003 est.	2004 est.
Active employees .....	2,189,131	2,186,000	2,182,000
Annuity annuitants .....	1,857,014	1,871,000	1,910,000
Total .....	4,046,145	4,057,000	4,092,000

In determining a biweekly subscription rate to cover program costs, one percent is added for administrative expenses and three percent is added for a contingency reserve held by OPM for each carrier. OPM is authorized to transfer unused administrative reserve funds to the contingency reserve.

The REHB fund is available without fiscal year limitation. The amounts contributed by the Government are paid into the fund from annual appropriations. The number of participants at the end of each fiscal year are as follows:

	2002 actual	2003 est.	2004 est.
Uniform plan .....	747	620	515
Private plans .....	2,130	1,768	1,467
Total .....	2,877	2,388	1,982

Financing.—The funds are financed by: (1) withholdings from active employees and annuitants; (2) agency contributions for active employees; (3) Government contributions for annuitants appropriated to OPM; and (4) contributions made by the United States Postal Service in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 101-508 and Public Law 103-66.

Operating results.—Funds made available to carriers but not used to pay claims in the current period are carried forward as special reserves for use in subsequent periods.

OPM maintains a contingency reserve, funded by employee and Government contributions, that may be used to defray future cost increases or provide increased benefits. OPM makes payments to carriers from this reserve whenever carrier-held reserves fall below levels prescribed by OPM regulations or when carriers can demonstrate good cause such as unexpected claims experience or variations from expected community rates.

SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

SBA's continuing operations will provide over $20 billion in new loans to small businesses, funding for non-credit programs, and funding for the disaster loan program. SBA has revised its 7(a) loan subsidy model to more accurately reflect the costs of the program.

SBA is authorized to issue bond guarantees to surety companies for construction, service, and supply contracts that do not exceed $2,000,000 and to reimburse these sureties up to 90 percent of the losses sustained if the contractor defaults. SBA's guarantees provide the incentive necessary for sureties to issue bonds to small contractors who could not otherwise compete in the contracting industry.

In 2004, the budget proposes a $1.7 billion program level that is anticipated to be sufficient to accommodate demand from prior-approval and preferred sureties. This program does not require a subsidy appropriation.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, as amended, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated and loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

For 2004, the budget proposes $225.8 million in new budget authority for the Business Loans Program account. This amount will be used to administer the loan programs and support 7(a) loans and the Microloan Direct program. For all other loan programs, borrowers fees are sufficient to cover subsidy obligations.

The Section 7(a) program provides general business credit assistance. The requested program level for 2004 is $9.3 billion. The Section 504 CDC Program is for long-term fixed rate financing and will require a program level of $4.5 billion in 2004. The Small Business Investment Companies (SBIC) program provides debt and equity capital. The budget proposes a program level of $4 billion for SBIC Participating Securities and $3 billion for SBIC Debentures. The Microloan Direct program provides loans of $35,000 or less through intermediaries.

The Master Reserve Fund (MRF) is maintained by the SBA's fiscal agent as part of its Administration of the 7(a) secondary market program. The MRF provides for the pooling of loans having terms that vary with a range prescribed by SBA, while the secondary investors have a fixed term for their investment that is the term of the longest loan in the pool. The balances include the principal portion of the borrowers' first payment for pooled loans and float on borrowers' payments received prior to their disbursement to the secondary holders. The earnings on the balances are used to fund the SBA's guarantee of the timely payment of principal and interest owed to the 7(a) secondary market holders and to pay expenses of the MRF trustee and investment advisor.

To improve financial management of the MRF, SBA will budget for the 7(a) secondary market program in accordance with the Federal Credit Reform Act. SBA will refine its subsidy estimates and account for loans in both financing and liquidating accounts. The 7(a) secondary market has approximately $12 billion of currently outstanding investments held by 7(a) secondary holders.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, as amended, this account records, for loans made pursuant to section 7(b) of the Small Business Act, as amended, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

Disaster loans made pursuant to Section 7(b) of the Small Business Act are the primary form of Federal assistance for non-farm, private sector disaster losses. For this reason, the program is the only form of SBA assistance not limited to small businesses. Through this program, SBA helps homeowners, renters, businesses of all sizes, and non-profit organizations pay for the cost of rebuilding. Pursuant to the Small Business Act, the government subsidizes borrowers who have incurred uninsured losses or economic injury as the result of a natural disaster.

For 2004, SBA will rely on anticipated carry-over balances of $0 million from 2003 plus $10 million in recoveries to support $760 million in loans. The subsidy rate is 11.72 percent.

As directed by Section 104 of P.L. 103-296, the Social Security Independence and Program Improvements Act of 1994, the Commissioner of Social Security shall prepare an annual budget for the Social Security Administration (SSA), which shall be submitted by the President to the Congress without revision, together with the President's annual budget for SSA.

The Commissioner developed a multi-year Service Delivery Budget through FY 2008 to provide a context for making decisions on needed improvements in service delivery and fiscal stewardship, and the requisite staffing to accomplish both. The Commissioner's multi-year budget includes $9,018 million for total administrative discretionary resources in FY 2004. This represents $8,920 million for SSA administrative expenses and $98 million for the Office of the Inspector General.

This appropriation supports a Federal-State partnership to invest in the basic building blocks of sustainable economic development in the 410 counties which comprise the Appalachian Region. Investments made throughout this 13-State Region include the building of a 3,025-mile economic development highway system and an area development program which funds economic and community development projects at the local level with a special focus on distressed counties.

Appalachian development highway system.—The Appalachian development highway system (ADHS), including local access roads, is designed to improve the accessibility of Appalachia; to reduce highway transportation costs to and within Appalachia; and to provide the highway transportation facilities necessary to accelerate the overall development of Appalachia. Studies have found the ADHS to be cost-beneficial, generating significant economic impacts.

Since FY 1999, funding for the ADHS has been provided predominantly from the Highway Trust Fund. The Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century (TEA21) authorized $2.25 billion for the construction of the ADHS and local access road projects under Section 201 of the Appalachian Regional Development Act. TEA21 authorized $450 million annually to be appropriated out of the Highway Trust Fund for each of fiscal years 1999 through 2003. The ARC exercises programmatic and administrative control over these funds as it did when a direct appropriation was received. The Administration highway bill will recommend continued funding for the ADHS in 2004.

The cumulative status of the system of roads follows:

Development systems miles (Prefinanced miles included) (cumulative):

*Includes TEA21 funds.

Area development program.—Area development funds are allocated by formula to the 13 member-States for projects that promote sustainable regional development, with assistance targeted at the most distressed and underdeveloped counties.

P.L. 107-149 requires that half of all ARC program funding must support projects benefiting economically distressed counties and areas.

Area development funds projects which advance the goals and objectives of ARC's strategic plan. This strategic plan commits ARC to achieving five goals. These goals are (1) education and skills training, (2) physical infrastructure, (3) leadership and civic capacity, (4) diversified and entrepreneurial local economies, and (5) improved health care. The Commission has taken aggressive steps to ensure that the area development program will make progress on accomplishing these goals, to better target resources to those communities with the greatest needs, and to increase flexibility in project submission.

Each Governor submits for Commission approval an annual strategy statement detailing the areas of emphasis within the Region. All project applications submitted by the Governors address these priorities and describe the goals, objectives, and projected inputs, outputs, and outcomes. In 2004, the Commission will focus on both its system of reporting on the results of projects it funds and standardization of results measurement with those of other agencies that are engaged in similar activities.

In addition to the regular allocation of area development funds, ARC also identifies regional problems and opportunities and sets aside resources for special initiatives. The ongoing entrepreneurship initiative seeks to ensure that Appalachian communities have the commitment and resources to help entrepreneurs start and expand local businesses. Regional activities are also authorized to expand access to advanced telecommunications, support education and training in new technologies, expand e-commerce in the Region, and stimulate employment in high technology sectors. In 2004, the Commission will place higher priority on regional efforts than on individual projects and focus on multi-state planning and coordinating regional investments.

The budget provides $25 million for area development with an approximate workload as follows:

	2002 actual	2003 est.	2004 est.
Area development projects .....	401	400	200

Local development districts and technical assistance programs.—Multi-county local development districts (LDDs) assist local governments throughout Appalachia in planning and working together on a regional basis. LDD funding from the ARC provides a cost-share with member governments, enabling local professional staff to help plan, initiate, and implement projects at the grass roots level. Technical assistance serves to strengthen the state and local governments, LDDs and non-profit organizations in the Region. P.L. 107-149 added four new counties to the Region, for a total of 410. This increased the number of LDDs served from 71 to 72. The budget provides $3 million for the LDDs and $1 million for technical assistance, with the approximate approved workload as follows:

	2002 actual	2003 est.	2004 est.
Planning districts aided .....	71	72	72
Technical assistance projects .....	15	15	10

Salaries and expenses.—The Federal Co-Chairman represents the Federal Government on the Commission and leads in the coordination of programs serving the Appalachian Region across the Federal Government. Since 1989, the Office of the Federal Co-Chairman has included an Inspector General.

In this Federal-State partnership, the Federal Government contributes half of the expenses of a professional staff which works with the States and the Federal staff in operating the program. The other half of these non-Federal employee expenses are provided by member States. The budget provides a total of $4 million for salaries and expenses.

The Commission engages in studies concerning areas in which there may be denials of civil rights and reports on these matters to the President and the Congress. Hearings by the Commissioners are held to investigate and obtain information about denials of civil rights. Conferences and open meetings are held by staff and State Advisory Committees to gather data and issue reports providing information about civil rights problems. In addition, the Commission appraises and reports on Federal agencies' enforcement of civil rights laws. Complaints alleging discrimination are referred to the proper Federal agencies.

The Commission provides liaison with private groups, public groups, and the media to provide civil rights information to Government officials, organizations, and the public. The Commission issues publications and public service announcements to discourage discrimination and denial of equal protection of the laws. The Commission also provides a library resource to support civil rights research, studies, hearings, and other Commission activities, and makes this information available to the general public.

The Committee for Purchase From People Who Are Blind or Severely Disabled administers the Javits-Wagner-O'Day (JWOD) Act of 1971, as amended. Its primary objective is to use the purchasing power of the Federal Government to provide people who are blind or have other severe disabilities with employment and training that will develop and improve job skills as well as prepare them for employment options outside the JWOD Program. In 2004, the Committee's goal is to maintain the employment of approximately 50,000 people who are blind or have other severe disabilities in over 600 nonprofit agencies. The Committee's duties include promoting the program; determining which products and services are suitable for Government procurement from qualified nonprofit agencies serving people who are blind or have other severe disabilities; maintaining a procurement list of such products and services; determining the fair market price for products and services on the procurement list; and making rules and regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of the Act. In 2004 the Committee's goal is to have sales of $1.2 billion.

The Committee staff's responsibilities include promoting and assessing the overall programs; supervising the selection and assignment of new products and services; assisting in establishing prices; reviewing and adjusting these prices; verifying the qualifications of nonprofit agencies; and monitoring their performance. The resources proposed for 2004 would enable the Committee to continue its marketing efforts, which are essential to protecting jobs for people with disabilities involved in supplying commercial-type products such as office supplies to Federal customers under the JWOD Program. The education functions to be supported by these funds would focus on informing Federal purchase card holders about JWOD products and working with private sector distributors of those products, including e-commerce vendors.

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) administers the Commodity Exchange Act of 1936, as amended. The purpose of the CFTC is to further the economic utility of the futures markets by encouraging their efficiency, assuring their integrity, and protecting participants against abusive trade practices, fraud, and deceit. The object of commodity futures trading regulation is to enable the markets to better serve their designated functions of providing a price discovery mechanism and a means of offsetting price risk. By properly serving these functions, the futures markets serve the public interest by contributing toward better planning, more efficient distribution and consumption, and more economical marketing. The commodity futures and options markets represent one of America's most innovative and competitive contributions to the international financial services industry.

The Administration proposes additional dollar resources above the fiscal year 2002 level for the Commission. These resources contribute to the Commission's ability to investigate and detect fraud and abuse and ensure the continued integity of the commodities markets. In addition, these funds would provide the Commission with enforcement and surveillance resources to respond to the continued growth and use of complex trading and derivative instruments.

Market surveillance, analysis and research.—Responsibilities under this program include daily surveillance of the market activity of large individual traders and fundamental economic market factors to insure orderly markets. Contract terms and conditions are reviewed to insure conformity with current cash marketing conditions and adequate deliverable supplies. This program also systematically investigates the functioning of markets and market users and develops better tools to assist in detecting and preventing price distortions.

Trader and broker reports analyzed (thousands) .....	31,600	75,000	78,800
Market surveillance reports prepared .....	1,826	2,100	2,400

Enforcement.—The enforcement program is responsible for detecting, investigating, and litigating violations of the Act or regulations. These violations may include actual and attempted market manipulations, cheating and defrauding customers, and abusive trading practices such as fictitious trading, wash trading, and pre-arranged trading. This program may seek remedies through the administrative process or by injunctive actions in the Federal Courts.

Trading and markets.—This program is designed to protect customer funds, prevent and detect financial, sales practice and trading abuses, and to assure the financial integrity and fitness of firms holding customer funds. In order to assure compliance with statutory requirements, this program monitors compliance activities of designated contract markets and the National Futures Association, conducts audits and reviews of registrants, and reviews self-regulatory organizations' rules and proposed rule changes. The program also develops regulations pursuant to statutory requirements and coordinates with other domestic and international regulators relative to cross border financial services affecting futures and options products.

Fees on each round-turn commodities futures and options transaction.—The Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) regulates U.S. futures and options markets. It strives to protect investors by preventing fraud and abuse and ensuring adequate disclosure information. The President's FY 2003 budget proposed a fee on each round-turn commodities futures and options transaction. This proposal recognized that market participants derive direct benefit from CFTC's oversight, which provides legal certainty and contributes to the integrity and soundness of the markets. The fee is not proposed in the FY 2004 budget and may be reconsidered after additional analysis.

General programming.—The Corporation for Public Broadcasting provides grants to qualified public television and radio stations to be used at their discretion for purposes related to program production or acquisition and general operations. The Corporation also supports the production and acquisition of radio and television programs for national distribution. In addition, the Corporation assists in the financing of several system-wide activities, including national satellite interconnection services and the payment of music royalty fees, and provides limited technical assistance, research, and planning services to improve system-wide capacity and performance. By custom, the appropriation for the Corporation has been enacted two years in advance. For 2004, appropriations of $380 million were enacted in 2002 appropriations acts.

The Administration proposes that the Corporation receive appropriations like other programs that receive Federal assistance. Therefore, a 2006 funding request for the Corporation will be proposed in the FY 2006 President's Budget.

Public broadcasting assists in the educational and cultural development of our Nation. Funding for the Corporation facilitates the provision of universally available educational, non-commercial public telecommunications services that meet the needs of local communities across the country.

Digital transition.—In April 1997, the Federal Communications Commission issued regulations requiring broadcasters to transition from analog to digital broadcasting. Public broadcasters must convert to digital by May 1, 2003, with the possibility of extensions or waivers.

In 2004, up to $80 million in funding for digital conversion grants is made available from within the Corporation's already-enacted 2004 appropriations of $380 million.

Interconnection.—The Public Broadcasting System must begin replacing the public television interconnection system, which is the major national distribution network for public broadcasting stations. Up to $20 million in funding is made available from within the 2004 appropriation to begin the replacement and upgrade of the interconnection system.

The Veterans' Judicial Review Act, found in part at 38 U.S.C. §§7251–7292 (1988), established the United States Court of Veterans Appeals (renamed United States Court of Appeals for Veterans Claims as of March 1, 1999, Public Law 105–368) under Article I of the United States Constitution. The Court is empowered to review decisions of the Board of Veterans Appeals and may affirm, modify, revise, or reverse a decision of the Board or to remand the matter as appropriate. The type of review performed by the Court is similar to that performed in Article III courts under the Administrative Procedure Act, 5 U.S.C. §§551 et seq. In actions before it, the Court has the authority to decide all relevant questions of law, to interpret constitutional, statutory, and regulatory provisions, and to determine the meaning or applicability of the terms of an action by the Secretary of Veterans Affairs. The Court, being created by an act of Congress, may issue all writs necessary or appropriate in aid of its jurisdiction, 28 U.S.C. § 1651.

The Court is empowered to: compel actions of the Secretary that are found to have been unlawfully withheld or unreasonably delayed; and set aside decisions, findings, conclusions, rules, and regulations issued or adopted by the Secretary, the Board of Veterans Appeals, or the Chairman of the Board that are found to be arbitrary or capricious. The Court may also set aside decisions that are abuses of discretion or otherwise not in accordance with the law, contrary to constitutional right, in excess of statutory jurisdiction or authority, or without observance of the procedures required by law. In cases involving benefits under the laws administered by the Department of Veterans Affairs, the Court may hold unlawful and set aside or reverse findings of material facts if the findings are clearly erroneous.

The Court's principal office location is Washington, D.C.; however, it is a national court, empowered to sit anywhere in the United States.

Pro bono program.—The Legal Services Corporation administers a grant program to provide pro bono representation and legal assistance to claimants who file appeals with the Court. Congress funds the grant program through the Court's appropriation. To maintain impartiality, the Court does not administer the program or comment on the program's budget estimate.

Registration fees (formerly Practice fees).—38 U.S.C. § 7285 as amended by Pub. L. 107–103 establishes a fund, which receives no appropriations, that will be used by the U.S. Court of Appeals for Veterans Claims for (1) conducting investigations and proceedings, including employing independent counsel, to pursue disciplinary matters; and (2) defraying the expenses of judicial conferences and other activities and program of the Court intended to support and foster communication and relationships between the Court and persons practicing before the Court or the study, understanding, public commemoration, or improvement of veterans law or of the work of the Court.

The National Capital Revitalization and Self-Government Improvement Act established the Court Services and Offender Supervision Agency for the District of Columbia as an independent Federal agency, which has assumed the District of Columbia (D.C.) pretrial services, adult probation, and parole supervision functions. The mission of the Agency is to increase public safety, prevent crime, reduce recidivism and support the fair administration of justice in close collaboration with the community. The Public Defender Service for the District of Columbia, an independent District of Columbia Agency (16 D.C. Code § 2-1601 et seq.) with a separate and distinct mission to provide legal representation services within the District of Columbia, transmits its budget with that of the Agency, as required by law.

The CSOSA appropriation supports the Community Supervision Program, the Pretrial Services Agency, and the Public Defender Service for the District of Columbia.

Community Supervision Program.—This activity provides supervision in the community of adult offenders on probation, parole or supervised release—consistent with a crime prevention strategy that integrates supervision, routine drug testing, treatment, and graduated sanctions. The activity also develops and provides probation and parole authorities with timely and useful information for decision-making. For 2004, $3,104 million is requested to expand operations at the Re-entry and Sanctions Center.

Pretrial Services Agency.—This activity assists the trial and appellate levels of both the Federal and local courts in determining eligibility for pretrial release by providing background information on all arrestees. The background information is used to establish release conditions to ensure defendants will return to court and will not be a danger to the community while on pretrial release. The Pretrial Services Agency is further responsible for supervising conditions of release, conducting drug testing, administering graduated sanctions, referring defendants to treatment and other social services, and reporting on defendants' compliance to the courts.

Public Defender Service.—This agency provides legal representation to indigent defendants and provides support in the form of training, consultation and legal reference services to members of the local bar appointed as counsel in criminal, juvenile, and mental health cases involving indigent individuals. For 2004, $100,000 is requested to provide personnel, training, and support to meet the increased demand for Constitutionally mandated legal representation to individuals in direct appeals of court decisions and requests by the courts to serve as amicus curiae.

In 2004, the Court Services and Offender Supervision Agency will continue to work closely with all elements of the District of Columbia and Federal criminal justice, courts, corrections, and rehabilitation systems as well as the District's faith community to improve offender supervision and court services programs, policy, and practice; and the Public Defender Service for the District of Columbia will likewise continue to work with its partners to improve the delivery of legal, mental health, special education, and social services.

The Defense Nuclear Facilities Safety Board, authorized by Public Law 100-456, is responsible for evaluating the content and implementation of the standards relating to the design, construction, operation, and decommissioning of defense nuclear facilities of the Department of Energy (DOE) (as defined in Public Law 100-456). The Board also reviews the design of new DOE defense nuclear facilities and periodically reviews and monitors construction of such facilities to ensure adequate protection of public and worker health and safety. In addition, the National Defense Authorization Act for 1992 and 1993 (Public Law 102-190) expanded the Board's jurisdiction to include facilities and activities involved with the assembly, disassembly, and testing of nuclear weapons. The Board is also responsible for investigating any event or practice at a defense nuclear facility which has or may adversely affect public health and safety. The Board makes specific recommendations to the Secretary of Energy on measures that should be adopted to ensure that both public and employee health and safety are adequately protected.

FEDERAL PAYMENT TO THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA COURTS—
Continued

Under the National Capital Revitalization and Self-Government Improvement Act of 1997, the Federal Government is required to finance the District of Columbia Courts beginning in 1998. This Federal payment to the District of Columbia Courts funds the operations of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, Superior Court and the Court System. Beginning in 1999, the Federal Government also provides funds for capital improvements. Beginning in 2000, funding for Defender Services in the District of Columbia Courts is provided through a separate account. In 2002, funding for the Family Court was provided through a separate account. Beginning in 2003, funding for the Family Court is included in the District of Columbia Courts account.

By law, the annual budget includes estimates of the expenditures for the operations of the District of Columbia Courts prepared by the Joint Committee on Judicial Administration in the District of Columbia and the President's recommendation for funding District Courts operations. The President's recommended level of $164 million includes: $132 million for District of Columbia Court of Appeals, Superior Court of the District of Columbia and the District of Columbia Court System operations; and $32 million for capital improvements for District courthouse facilities. Under a separate transmittal to Congress, the District Courts are requesting $291 million; $145 million for operations and $146 million for capital improvements.

The District of Columbia Courts appoint and compensate attorneys to represent persons who are financially unable to obtain such representation under three Defender Services programs: the Criminal Justice Act (CJA) program provides court-appointed attorneys to indigent persons who are charged with criminal offenses; the Counsel for Child Abuse and Neglect (CCAN) program provides court-appointed attorneys for family proceedings in which child neglect is alleged, or where the termination of the parent-child relationship is under consideration and the parent, guardian, or custodian of the child is indigent; the Guardianship program provides for the representation and protection of mentally incapacitated individuals and minors whose parents are deceased. In addition to legal representation, these programs provide indigent persons with services such as: transcripts of court proceedings; expert witness testimony; foreign and sign language interpretation; and investigations and genetic testing. The President's recommended funding level for Defender Services is $32 million. Under a separate transmittal to Congress, the Courts are requesting $43 million for Defender Services.

The National Capital Revitalization and Self-Government Improvement Act of 1997, as amended (the Act), requires the Secretary of the Treasury to make payments at the end of each fiscal year, beginning in 1998, from the General Fund of the Treasury into the District of Columbia Judicial Retirement and Survivors Annuity Fund (Judicial Fund). Annual payments consist of amounts necessary to amortize: the original unfunded liability over 30 years; the net experience gain or loss over 10 years; any other changes in actuarial liability over 20 years; and amounts necessary to fund the normal cost and covered administrative expenses for the year. This account receives the annual payments from the General Fund and immediately transfers those amounts to the Judicial Fund through an expenditure transfer.

The National Capital Revitalization and Self-Government Improvement Act requires that the adult felon population of the District of Columbia be transferred to the Federal Prison System by no later than December 31, 2001. To assist in this transition, the Act established a Corrections Trustee to provide financial oversight and assistance to the District of Columbia Department of Corrections.

The last inmates were transferred out of the Lorton Correctional Complex on November 19, 2001, and the transition of District of Columbia adult felony inmates to the Federal Bureau of Prisons was completed. With the transfers, the Federal Bureau of Prisons has approximately 7,000 District of Columbia inmates in its custody.

The remaining property at the Lorton Correctional Complex was vacated and prepared for transfer to Fairfax County in 2002. Continuing Lorton-based functions were relocated from the Lorton complex. With the completion of its mission, the Corrections Trustee terminated operations at the end of 2002.

The 1990 District of Columbia Appropriations Act established a system "to improve the means by which the District of Columbia (now the DC Water and Sewer Authority, DCWASA) is paid for water and sanitary sewer services furnished to the Government of the United States or any department, agency, or independent establishment thereof." Each agency was to pay 25 percent of its estimated yearly bill each quarter by depositing its payment into this account. Even if all agencies did not submit payment on time, Treasury was directed to pay the Government-wide bill, making up the difference from a permanent, indefinite appropriation account, which was then to be reimbursed by the appropriate agencies.

The 2001 Consolidated Appropriations Act amended this system by repealing the permanent, indefinite appropriation account, by directing Treasury to draw down agency funds for payment of water and sewer bills, by requiring agency Inspectors General to analyze how promptly the user agency makes its payment, and by making these amendments retroactive to 1990.

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) is the Federal agency responsible for enforcement of: the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967; title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended; the Equal Pay Act of 1963; in the Federal sector only, section 501 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1963; the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990; and the Civil Rights Act of 1991. These acts prohibit employment discrimination based on race, sex, religion, national origin, age, or disability status. The EEOC is also responsible for carrying out Executive Order 12067, which promotes coordination and minimizes conflict and duplication among Federal agencies that administer statutes or regulations involving employment discrimination.

Hearings .....	21,738	19,474	18,050
Total Workload .....	160,262	148,881	146,225

Note.—For the Private Sector Program, total workload estimates reflect the carryover from prior years as well as new charge receipts and deferrals from State and local agencies. The estimates of total workload in the Federal Sector Program reflect the carryover from prior years in addition to new hearings or appeal requests that EEOC receives during the year. Details, by program and activity, appear in the tables below.

In support of the President's Management Agenda, the EEOC's budget request is aligned with its strategic plan, and executive direction and program support funding is allocated to the strategic goals.

The EEOC's budget supports three activities:

Outreach, Education and Technical Assistance.—This activity is intended to encourage and facilitate voluntary compliance with the anti-discrimination laws by employers and employer groups in the private and federal sectors, and to increase knowledge about individual rights under the anti-discrimination laws among the employees, employee groups and the public. In 2004, EEOC will devote more resources to the first point of the agency's five point plan—Proactive Prevention—by providing information and solutions that help identify and solve workplace problems before they escalate. The agency will continue its Freedom to Compete initiative, which began in 2003 and is designed to ensure that all Americans have the opportunity to compete in the workplace on a fair and level playing field, without regard to race, color, religion, national origin, sex, age or disability.

Enforcement.—This activity seeks to resolve charges of employment discrimination filed with EEOC and pursue litigation to enforce compliance with Title VII, the Equal Pay Act, the Age Discrimination in Employment Act, the Americans with Disabilities Act, and the Civil Rights Act of 1991. In 2004, EEOC will focus on becoming a model workplace by implementing workforce restructuring, continuing integration of the four remaining points under the agency's five-point plan, which includes Proficient Resolution, Strategic Enforcement and Litigation, Promote and Expand Mediation/Alternative Dispute Resolution, and EEOC as a Model Workplace. The EEOC will also work to reinforce its coordination role for Federal civil rights employment discrimination policy among Federal agencies and at the State and local levels.

The purpose of the Export-Import Bank (Ex-Im Bank) is to aid in the financing and promotion of U.S. exports. To accomplish its objectives, the bank's authority and resources are used to: assume commercial and political risks that exporters or private institutions are unwilling or unable to undertake; overcome maturity and other limitations in private sector export financing; assist U.S. exporters to meet officially sponsored foreign export credit competition; and provide leadership and guidance in export financing to the U.S. exporting and banking communities and to foreign borrowers. The bank provides its export credit support through direct loan, loan guarantee and insurance programs. The bank is actively assisting small- and medium-sized businesses.

The 2004 budget proposes $14.6 billion in lending levels, funded by program budget authority carried over from prior years and administrative expenses of $75.4 million.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for Eximbank, the subsidy costs associated with direct loans and direct grants obligated, and loan guarantees and insurance committed in 1992 and beyond, as well as administrative expenses. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

Operating results and financial condition.—The bank is a wholly owned Government corporation. Capital stock of $1 billion was purchased by the U.S. Treasury.

The bank has a reserve for possible credit losses, which provides for the risk of loss inherent in the lending process. This reserve is a general reserve, available to absorb credit losses related to the total loan portfolio. The reserve is increased by provisions charged to expenses and decreased by charge-offs, net of recoveries.

The provision for possible credit losses is based on the bank's evaluation of the adequacy of the reserve, taking into consideration a variety of factors, including repayment status of loans, future risk factors, the relationship of the reserve to the portfolio, and worldwide economic conditions. Providing for such possible losses does not imply that any loans will be written off. It simply recognizes the fact that the prospects for collection of some of the bank's loans are impaired. It does not provide for losses on a country-by-country basis and is intended only to provide an overall revaluation of the loan portfolio.

The bank's net operating income was $182 million in 2002. Total Government deficit in the corporation was $3,663 million on September 30, 2002.

The Farm Credit Administration (FCA) is an independent Federal agency that examines and regulates the Farm Credit System (System) for safety and soundness. The System is a cooperative agricultural credit system of farm credit banks and associations that lends to farmers, ranchers, and their cooperatives. Since 1990, the FCA also performs annual examinations of the Federal Agricultural Mortgage Corporation. In addition, FCA annually examines The National Consumer Cooperative Bank and its affiliate, The NCCB Development Corporation.

As of October 1, 2002, the System was comprised of six Farm Credit Banks, one Agricultural Credit Bank, 103 associations, five service corporations, the Federal Farm Credit Bank Funding Corporation, the Farm Credit System Financial Assistance Corporation, and the Federal Agricultural Mortgage Corporation. The Agricultural Credit Bank makes loans to agricultural, aquatic, and public utility cooperatives and other persons or organizations owned by or having transactions with such cooperatives.

Assessments based upon estimated administrative expenses are collected from institutions in the System and the Federal Agricultural Mortgage Corporation and are available for administrative expenses. Obligations are incurred within fiscal year budgets approved by the Farm Credit Administration Board.

The Farm Credit System Financial Assistance Corporation (FAC) was created by the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 to provide funds to System institutions experiencing financial difficulties. Authority for FAC to issue obligations and provide assistance expired in 1992, after $1.26 billion in FAC debt had been issued. Proceeds of FAC debt issuances were paid into, and amounts for assistance and other expenses were paid from, the FAC Assistance Fund. The FAC was re-classified from a Government-sponsored enterprise to a Federal entity beginning in 1993, when most of the private capital in FAC, provided by the System, was rebated from the FAC Trust Fund pursuant to the Reconciliation and Agriculture Appropriations Acts of 1989.

The Farm Credit System Insurance Corporation (Corporation) was established to ensure the timely payment of principal and interest on System debt obligations purchased by investors. The Corporation is managed by a three member Board of Directors that consists of the same members as the Farm Credit Administration Board of Directors. The Corporation derives its revenues from insurance premiums collected from insured System banks and from the investment income earned on its investment portfolio. Insurance premiums are assessed on System banks based on the level of accruing and non-accruing loans outstanding in each bank and its affiliated associations' loan portfolio. Congress established a secure base amount of 2 percent of outstanding System obligations, or such other amounts determined by its Board of Directors to be actuarially sound to maintain the Insurance Fund. The Insurance Fund was slightly below the secure base amount at September 30, 2002. For 2002, the Corporation is assessing insurance premiums at 3 basis points on accrual loans and 25 basis points on non-accrual loans. Also in September, the Corporation's Board increased premium assessments beginning in January 2003 to 12 basis points on accrual loans and 25 basis points on nonaccrual loans.

The Insurance Fund is available for payment on System obligations if an insured System bank defaults on its primary liability. The Insurance Fund is also available to ensure the timely retirement of certain eligible borrower stock, pay the operating costs of the Corporation, and satisfy defaults by System institutions on obligations issued by the FAC after amounts in the FAC Trust Fund are exhausted. The Corporation can exercise its authority to make loans, purchase System bank assets or obligations, provide other financial assistance and otherwise act to reduce its exposure to losses.

The Corporation has the authority to make refunds of excess Insurance Fund balances. No refunds are anticipated before 2006.

On June 8, 2000, the Commission awarded Qualcomm, Inc. a transferable Auction Discount Voucher (ADV) in the amount of $125,273,878, in satisfaction of the court's mandate in Qualcomm Incorporated v. FCC, 181 F.3d 1370 (D.C. Cir. 1999). This Auction Discount Voucher is structured to work in a manner similar to that of an auction bidding credit. It may be used by Qualcomm or its transferee, in whole or in part, to (1) adjust a winning bid in any spectrum auction for which short form applications have been accepted prior to June 8, 2003, or (2) satisfy auction obligations (outstanding loans) owed by licensees using Code Division Multiple Access (CDMA) technology in Auctions 5, 10 and 11, subject to terms and conditions set forth in the Commission's Order. See Qualcomm Incorporated Petition for Declaratory Ruling Giving Effect to the Mandate of the District of Columbia Circuit Court of Appeals, Order, FCC 00-189 (rel June 8, 2000) and In the Matter of Qualcomm Incorporated Petition for Waiver of Certain Terms and Conditions of Its Auction Discount Voucher, Order, FCC 02-321 (rel November 27, 2002). The budget recorded an outlay and a debt in the year the voucher was issued. As it is redeemed, the budget records a budgetary collection and reduction in debt.

The Telecommunications Act of 1996 provides for a major restructuring of the Nation's communications laws, promotes universal service and open access to information networks, and provides for flexible government regulations. Under the Act, telecommunications carriers that provide interstate telecommunications services are required to contribute funds for the preservation and advancement of universal service. The contributions are used to provide services eligible for universal service support as prescribed by the FCC. Telecommunications carriers receive a credit towards their contribution by providing discount service to schools, libraries, and health care providers. Support will also be provided to carriers offering services in high cost areas of the United States and to carriers offering services to low income consumers. Interest income on these funds is utilized to benefit program recipients. Administrative costs of the program are provided from carrier contributions.

This program provides for direct loans for the purpose of purchasing spectrum licenses at the Federal Communications Commission's auctions. The licenses are being purchased on an installment basis, which constitutes an extension of credit. The first year of activity for this program was 1996.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis and administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

SPECTRUM AUCTION AUTHORITY

(Legislative proposal, subject to PAYGO)

The Administration will propose legislation to extend indefinitely the FCC's auction authority, which expires in 2007 under current law.

SPECTRUM LICENSE USER FEE

(Legislative proposal, subject to PAYGO)

To continue to promote efficient spectrum use, the Administration will propose legislation providing the FCC with new authority to use other economic mechanisms, such as fees, as a spectrum management tool. The FCC would be authorized to set user fees on unauctioned spectrum licenses based on public-interest and spectrum-management principles. Fees would be phased in over time as part of an ongoing rule-making process to determine the appropriate application of and level for fees. Fee collections are estimated to begin in 2005.

ANALOG SPECTRUM LEASE FEE

(Legislative proposal, subject to PAYGO)

To facilitate clearing of the analog television broadcast spectrum and provide taxpayers some compensation for use of this scarce resource, the Administration will propose legislation authorizing the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to establish an annual $500 million lease fee on the use of analog spectrum by commercial broadcasters as of 2007. The FCC will promulgate a rulemaking to apportion the aggregate fee amount among commercial broadcasters. Upon return of its analog spectrum license to the FCC, an individual broadcaster will be exempt from the fee.

FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORPORATION

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC or Corporation) was created by the Banking Act of 1933 to provide protection for bank depositors and to foster sound banking practices. The Financial Institutions Reform Recovery and Enforcement Act of 1989 established the Bank Insurance Fund (BIF), the Savings Association Insurance Fund (SAIF), and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC) Resolution Fund (FRF). The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991 generally requires the Corporation to use the least costly method to resolve failed banks, and mandates that the Corporation take prompt corrective action against under-capitalized financial institutions.

The deposit insurance ceiling protection has been $100,000 since March 31, 1980. In order to accomplish its varied functions to protect depositors, the Corporation is authorized to promulgate and enforce rules and regulations relating to the supervision of insured institutions and to perform other regulatory and supervisory duties consistent with its responsibilities as an insurer. The Corporation is required to set assessment rates for insured financial institutions semi-annually to maintain the reserves of the BIF and SAIF at 1.25 percent of total insured deposits.

The primary purpose of BIF is to: (1) insure deposits and protect the depositors of failed institutions and (2) resolve failed institutions including managing and disposing of their assets. In addition, the FDIC acting on behalf of BIF, examines state-chartered banks that are not members of the Federal Reserve System. As of September 30, 2002, BIF's fund balance totaled $31 billion, and the excluding reserves for future failed bank resolutions, net worth of the BIF was 1.25 percent.

The BIF is primarily funded from (1) interest earned on investments in U.S. Treasury obligations and (2) deposit insurance assessments. Additional funding sources are U.S. Treasury and Federal Financing Bank (FFB) borrowings, if necessary. The 1990 Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act (OBR) established the FDIC's authority to borrow from the FFB on behalf of the BIF and the SAIF. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991 increased the FDIC's authority to borrow for insurance purposes from the U.S. Treasury on behalf of the BIF and the SAIF, from $5 billion to $30 billion

The Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 (FIRREA) was enacted to reform, recapitalize, and consolidate the Federal Deposit Insurance System. The FIRREA created the SAIF as an insurance fund responsible for protecting the insured thrift depositors from loss due to institution failures. Pursuant to FIRREA, an active institution's fund membership and primary Federal supervisor are generally determined by the institution's charter type. Deposits of SAIF-member institutions are generally insured by the SAIF; SAIF members are predominately thrifts supervised by the Office of Thrift Supervision.

As of September 30, 2002, the reserve ratio was 1.39 percent.

Deposit Insurance Fees.—The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) insures deposits in bank and savings associations (thrifts) through the Bank Insurance Fund (BIF) and the Savings Association Fund (SAIF). The 2004 Budget proposes to merge the BIF and the SAIF, which offer an identical product. The FDIC is required to maintain a designated reserve ratio (DRR), the ratio of insurance fund reserves to total insured deposits) of 1.25 percent. If insurance fund reserves fall below the DRR, the FDIC must charge sufficient premiums to restore the reserve ratio to 1.25 percent. The Administration's 2004 budget assumes that some premium fees will be required to maintain the DRR in 2004 and beyond. A merged fund is projected to reduce the need for FDIC-insured depository institutions to increase premium payments over the near-term.

The FSLIC Resolution Fund (FRF) is the successor to FSLIC assets and liabilities from thrift resolutions prior to August 1989. Beginning in August 1989, the RTC assumed responsibility for the FSLIC's unresolved cases. On December 31, 1995, the RTC was terminated and its assets and liabilities were transferred to FRF.

Funds for FRF operations have come from: income earned on its assets; liquidation proceeds from receiverships; the proceeds of the sale of bonds by the Financing Corporation; and, a portion of insurance premiums paid by SAIF members prior to 1993. The Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act authorizes appropriations to make up for any shortfall. The FRF will terminate upon the disposition of all its assets, and any net proceeds will be paid to the Treasury. Net proceeds from the former RTC will be paid to the Resolution Funding Corporation.

FDIC's Office of Inspector General (OIG) is an independent unit within the Corporation that conducts audits and investigations of corporate activities and assists the Corporation in preventing and detecting fraud, waste, abuse, and mismanagement. The OIG was established by the FDIC Board of Directors pursuant to the Inspector General Act amendments of 1988 (Public Law 100-504). The Resolution Trust Corporation Completion Act, enacted December 17, 1993, provided that the FDIC Inspector General be appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. The Completion Act, thus, added FDIC to the establishments whose OIGs have separate appropriation accounts under Section 1105(a) of Title 31, United States Code. The OIG's first appropriation was for its fiscal year 1998 expenses. The OIG's appropriations are derived from the Bank Insurance Fund, the Savings Association Insurance Fund, and the FSLIC Resolution Fund.

The High Intensity Drug Trafficking Areas (HIDTA) program was established by the Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988, as amended, and the Office of National Drug Control Policy's reauthorization, P.L. 105-277, to provide assistance to Federal, State and local law enforcement entities operating in those areas most adversely affected by drug trafficking. Since January 1990, counties in 28 areas have been designated as HIDTAs: New York; Los Angeles; Miami; Houston; Baltimore/Washington, DC; Puerto Rico/Virgin Islands; Southwest Border, which includes South Texas, West Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and Southern California; Chicago; Atlanta; Philadelphia/Camden; Gulf Coast (Alabama, Louisiana, and Mississippi); Lake County (Indiana); Midwest (Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, and South Dakota); Pacific Northwest (Washington); Rocky Mountain (Colorado, Utah, and Wyoming); Northern California (San Francisco Bay area); South Eastern Michigan; Appalachia (Kentucky, Tennessee, and West Virginia); Central Florida; Milwaukee; North Texas; Central Valley California; Hawaii; New England (Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, and Vermont); Ohio; Oregon; Northern Florida; and Nevada.

Funds made available under the HIDTA program are disbursed at the discretion of the Director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy for joint local, State, and Federal initiatives.

The HIDTA program provides funding to establish and support multi-jurisdictional drug law enforcement initiatives, including multi-agency drug task forces and investments in infrastructure to establish and maintain multi-agency intelligence centers in each HIDTA region; and to enhance and coordinate drug-control activities among State, local and Federal law enforcement agencies participating in designated High Intensity Drug Trafficking Areas. Funding for State and local law enforcement agencies is provided through grants from ONDCP. Funding for Federal agencies is provided through transfers to those agencies. All funding in the HIDTA program is awarded at the discretion of the Director of ONDCP, based on a review of drug-related threat assessments, and proposed program strategies and budgets submitted by the HIDTAs. Estimates for the 2003 and 2004 transfers to Federal agencies cannot be determined until proposed budgets for that year are reviewed.

The HIDTA appropriation also provides funding for services and activities related to auditing State and local grants and Federal transfers. Additionally, funding is provided to develop and implement a data collection system to measure the performance of the HIDTAs.

In 2002, the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) conducted a systematic review of more than 200 Federal programs to assess their performance in a number of areas. The HIDTA program was the subject of one of these reviews. The assessment found that the HIDTA program has not demonstrated the results sought and has not established satisfactory long-term performance goals or annual goals. The OMB recommended actions include: (1) implementation of a performance measurement system that includes acceptable program outcome goals; (2) development of a process to ensure funding for individual HIDTA's reflects the performance of that HIDTA; and (3) seeking no funding increases for the program until a performance measurement system is established and positive results demonstrated.

The Anti-Drug Abuse Act of 1988, as amended, and the Office of National Drug Control Policy's reauthorization, P.L. 105-277, established the Special Forfeiture Fund to be administered by the Director of the Office of National Drug Control Policy. The funds appropriated to the program support high-priority drug control programs and may be transferred to drug control agencies.

For 2004, funds appropriated to this account, formerly titled the Special Forfeiture Fund, will be used for the following activities:

National Youth Anti-Drug Media Campaign.—The National Youth Anti-Drug Media Campaign is an integrated advertising and communications campaign using paid media messages (print and broadcast) targeted to youth, their parents, and other influential adults, to change youth attitudes about drug use and its consequences.

In 2002, the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) conducted a systematic review of more than 200 Federal programs to assess their performance in a number of areas. The National Youth Anti-Drug Media Campaign program was the subject of one of these reviews. The assessment found that the National Youth Anti-Drug Media Campaign has not demonstrated the results sought and does not yet have adequate performance measures and related goals. The OMB recommended actions include: (1) continued emphasis on developing acceptable performance measures and goals; (2) allowing sufficient time for the effects of recent ONDCP actions to be realized before pursuing changes to the program; (3) seeking no funding increases for the program; and (4) making FY 2005 funding contingent upon improved results.

Drug-Free Communities Program.—The Drug-Free Communities Program provides grants to local community coalitions to support expansion of their efforts to reduce substance abuse among our youth.

National Drug Court Institute.—The National Drug Court Institute facilitates the growth of the drug court movement by: promoting and disseminating education, research and scholarship concerning drug court programs and providing a comprehensive drug court training series for practitioners.

Counterdrug Intelligence Executive Secretariat.—The Counterdrug Intelligence Executive Secretariat provides staff support to the Counterdrug Intelligence Coordinating Group (CDICG), an interagency body established to oversee and improve coordination of counterdrug intelligence programs.

United States Anti-Doping Agency.—This funding continues the effort to educate athletes on the dangers of drug use and to eliminate illegal drug use in Olympic sports.

World Anti-Doping Agency Dues.—ONDCP is a full participant in the World Anti-Doping Agency which promotes and coordinates international activities against doping in sport, in all its forms, and as such, is responsible for the associated dues.

National Drug Control Performance Measures.—This funding is provided to conduct evaluation research to assess the effectiveness of the National Drug Control Strategy.

Pursuant to the Office of National Drug Control Policy Re-authorization Act of 1998 (title VII of Division C of Public Law 105-277), the Counterdrug Technology Assessment Center serves as the central counterdrug research and development organization for the United States Government.

The Center operates two programs—a Research and Development program (R&D) and a Technology Transfer program (TTP):

- The R&D program identifies law enforcement’s scientific and technological needs, coordinates Federal counterdrug R&D initiatives, supports improvements to counterdrug capabilities that transcend the need of any single Federal agency, and helps expand addiction and rehabilitation research and its associated technologies.
- The TTP provides state-of-the-art, affordable, easily integrated and maintainable tools to enhance the capabilities of State and local law enforcement agencies for counterdrug missions. The goals of the TTP are to maximize the delivery of hand-held drug detection devices and appropriate training to state and local law enforcement agencies in smaller jurisdictions (less than 500,000) and to provide case building investigative tools to law enforcement agencies serving larger jurisdictions (500,000 and greater).

The Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 (Public Law 101-73, August 9, 1989) established the Appraisal Subcommittee of the Federal Financial Institutions Examination Council. Subsequent legislation (Public Law 101-235) authorized the Secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development to designate a member of the Appraisal Subcommittee.

The Subcommittee is charged with ensuring that real estate appraisals used in federally-related transactions are performed in accordance with uniform standards by appraisers certified and licensed by the States. Its responsibilities include: (1) monitoring the requirements established by the States for the certification and licensing of appraisers; (2) monitoring the requirements established by the Federal financial institutions' regulatory agencies regarding appraisal standards; (3) monitoring and reviewing the practices, procedures, activities, and organization of the Appraisal Foundation; and, (4) maintaining a national registry of licensed and certified appraisers.

Subcommittee activities, including grants awarded to the Appraisal Foundation, were initially funded from a one-time appropriation of $5 million. These funds were repaid to Treasury at the end of 1998 in accordance with the Economic Growth and Regulatory Paperwork Reduction Act of 1996. The Subcommittee is now operating on fee income from state-licensed and certified real estate appraisers in the national registry.

The Federal Labor Relations Authority (FLRA) serves as a neutral party in the settlement of disputes that arise between federal agencies and unions on matters outlined in the Federal Service Labor Management Relations Statute. All proceedings before the FLRA originate from filings by employees, agencies, or labor organizations within the federal sector. Each year, the FLRA receives approximately 6,800 cases through its regional offices, the Authority, and the Federal Services Impasses Panel (FSIP).

In addition, the FLRA is engaged in case-related interventions and training and facilitation of labor-management relationships in its Collaboration and Alternative Dispute Resolution Program. Approximately 2,000 case-related intervention services were conducted in 2002.

The FLRA's authority is divided by law and by delegation between the three-member Authority and the General Counsel, all appointed by the President subject to Senate confirmation. The FSIP consists of seven part-time members appointed by the President.

Authority.—The Authority adjudicates labor-management disputes in the federal sector including: appeals on negotiability issues; exceptions to arbitration awards; appropriate units for the purposes of exclusive recognition; eligibility of labor organizations for national consultation rights; and unfair labor practice complaints.

Within the Authority, administrative law judges hold hearings on unfair labor practice complaints, issue reports, and make recommendations to the Authority to allow timely settlement of disputes arising between agencies and unions. The Authority also provides all components with administrative services.

The Service also makes mediation and conciliation services available to Federal agencies and organizations representing Federal employees in the resolution of negotiation disputes. The Service provides mandatory mediation and, where necessary, impartial boards of inquiry to assist in resolving labor disputes involving private nonprofit health care institutions. The workload shown below includes assignments closed in both the private and public sectors.

The Federal Retirement Thrift Investment Board is responsible for managing the Thrift Savings Fund (Fund). The Fund is a special tax-deferred savings fund established by the Federal Employees' Retirement System Act of 1986. Due to the fiduciary nature of the Fund, it is not included in the totals of the Federal budget. Information on the financial status and activities of the Fund follows this account.

Program administration for the Fund is financed from the Fund. Program expenses are derived first from Fund forfeitures of agency one percent automatic contributions for employees who separate from the Federal government prior to vesting and then from earnings on all participant and agency contributions to the Fund.

INFORMATION SCHEDULES FOR THE THRIFT SAVINGS FUND

The Fund is composed of individual accounts maintained by the Federal Retirement Thrift Investment Board on behalf of the individual Federal employee participants in the Fund. All Federal civilian employees and members of the uniformed services are eligible to contribute to the Fund. However, only those civilian employees covered by the Federal Employees' Retirement System (or equivalent retirement systems) and a limited category of uniformed services personnel may have their contributions matched by the employing agencies in accordance with the formulas prescribed by law. Employees are entitled to select how contributions are distributed among five investment funds: a U.S. Government securities investment fund; a fixed income index investment fund; a common stock index investment fund; a small capitalization stock index investment fund; and an international stock index investment fund.

Employee participation in the Fund is entirely voluntary, so actual results could vary significantly from these estimates. The estimated status of the Fund is shown below:

The FTC seeks to protect consumers and enhance competition by eliminating unfair or deceptive acts or practices in the marketing of goods and services and by ensuring that consumer markets function competitively. The FTC's work is based on the belief that competition among producers, and accurate information in the hands of consumers, bring the best products and lowest prices to the marketplace, spur innovation, and strengthen the economy.

Consumer protection.—The Commission is charged with eliminating unfair or deceptive acts or practices affecting commerce. The goal of the consumer protection mission is to prevent fraud, deception, and unfair business practices in the marketplace. The mission works to accomplish this goal through three objectives: (1) identify fraud, deception, and unfair practices that cause the greatest consumer injury; (2) stop fraud, deception, and unfair practices through law enforcement; and, (3) prevent consumer injury through education.

Maintaining competition.—The Commission's efforts are aimed at fostering and preserving our competitive market. The goal of the maintaining competition mission is to prevent anticompetitive mergers and other anticompetitive business practices in the marketplace. The mission works to accomplish this goal through three objectives: (1) identify anticompetitive mergers and practices that cause the greatest consumer injury; (2) stop anticompetitive mergers and practices through law enforcement; and, (3) prevent consumer injury through education.

The President's 2004 request will fund a total of 1,080 FTE, which includes 6 reimbursable FTE. The program level for the Commission will be $191 million in 2004, allowing the Commission to maintain the current performance of its missions. The 2004 requested program level will be fully funded by $14 million from the General Fund of the U.S. Treasury and offsetting collections from two sources: $159 million from fees for Hart-Scott-Rodino Act premerger notification filings as authorized by 18 U.S.C. 18a; and $18 million from fees sufficient to implement and enforce new do-not-call provisions of the Telemarketing Sales Rule, 16 C.F.R. The U.S. International Trade Commission is an independent, quasi-judicial federal agency established by Congress with a wide range of trade-related mandates. The mission of the Commission is twofold: administer U.S. trade remedy laws in a fair and objective manner; and provide the President, the United States Trade Representative, and the Congress with independent, quality advice and information on matters of international trade and competitiveness.

For 2004, the Commission requests an appropriation of $58 million in order to fund existing mandated investigative activity and related operations, a mandatory 3.1 percent pay increase, and information technology projects that are designed to improve electronic transaction capability, provide broader public access to public data and other information, develop more timely and accurate trade information for the trade community, and improve transparency in the Commission's procedures and finances. The 2004 request represents a 7.8 percent increase over its 2003 funding availability.

In September 2001, the Commission issued the fourth edition of its Strategic Plan and is currently implementing the 2002 Performance Plan. For the purpose of developing the Strategic Plan, the Commission's functions were divided into five operations and, in order to facilitate the linkage of financial resources to the achievement of strategic goals, the budget justification is structured in the same manner. There are 19 strategic goals for the five operations. In 2001 and 2002 these goals were met in virtually all instances.

As presented in the Commission's Strategic Plan, there are five major operations that serve the Commission's external customers:

- Import Injury Investigations: These cover the conduct of the Commission's countervailing duty, antidumping, and sunset review investigations (collectively known as Title VII investigations), safeguards and market disruption investigations, and appellate litigation of challenges to the Commission's determinations.

- Intellectual Property-Based Import Investigations: These cover the conduct of the Commission's adjudicatory investigations (referred to as section 337 investigations) regarding alleged unfair methods of competition and unfair acts in the importation of goods into the United States and most frequently involve allegations of patent or trademark infringement.

- Research: This covers all activities related to the acquisition, maintenance, and application of analytical and technical trade expertise. This expertise is applied through studies regarding the performance and global competitiveness of various U.S. industries, the impact of changes in trade policy on the overall economy or subsets thereof, trade and competitiveness issues, and the probable economic effect of tariff reductions and trade agreements.

- Trade Information Services: This covers a wide range of activities that provide Commission staff, the Congress, the Executive Branch, and the general public with reliable and timely trade information and analysis. These activities include work on legislative reports for Congress, the maintenance and publication of Harmonized Tariff Schedule of the United States, maintenance of a tariff and trade database (Dataweb), and library services. Also included within this operation is the development of trade data compilations tailored for use by U.S. negotiators, and nomenclature expertise and related assistance to U.S. trade negotiating delegations (principally to the World Trade Organization and the World Customs Organization) as well as Congressional staff.

• Trade Policy Support: This covers direct support activities for policy makers such as the provision of technical expertise and objective information on trade issues to congressional committees and members' offices, the United States Trade Representative, interagency committees, and U.S. delegations to multilateral organizations.

All of these operations define the output of the Commission, emphasizing the benefits that the Commission provides in facilitating an open trading system based on the rule of law and economic self-interest. Within each operation, specific critical success indicators and strategic goals are identified. The Commission's Strategic Plan, Performance Plan, and Performance Report are available at <http://www.usitc.gov>.

Pursuant to section 175 of the Trade Act of 1974, the budget estimates for the Commission are transmitted to Congress without revision by the President.

Public Laws 99-500, 101-208, and 102-221 established the James Madison Memorial Fellowship Foundation to operate a fellowship program to encourage graduate study of the framing, principles, and history of the American Constitution. Appropriations of $10 million in 1988 and 1989 established the foundation's trust fund. The funds have been invested by the Secretary of the Treasury in U.S. Treasury securities, and the interest earned on these funds is available for carrying out the activities of the foundation. Funds raised from private sources and the surcharges from commemorative coin sales are also placed in the trust fund.

The foundation is authorized to award graduate fellowships of up to $24,000 to high school teachers of American history, American government, and social studies. College seniors and recent college graduates who want to become secondary school teachers of these subjects are also eligible.

Fellowship awards.—This activity is comprised of fellowship awards to cover educational expenses. It also supports the foundation's annual Summer Institute on the U.S. Constitution, which all current fellows are required to attend. The Institute is an intensive educational experience that will ensure that all fellows know the history of the framing, ratification, and implementation of the U.S. Constitution and the Bill of Rights. The foundation awarded 56 fellowships in 2002 and plans to award at least 65 in both 2003 and 2004.

Program administration.—This activity covers the costs of planning, fund-raising, and the operation of the fellowship program.

Established by the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978, the Board serves as guardian of the Federal Government's merit-based system of employment, principally by hearing and deciding appeals from Federal employees of removals and other major personnel actions. The Board also hears and decides other types of civil service cases, reviews regulations of the Office of Personnel Management, and conducts studies of the merit systems. The intended results (outcomes) of MSPB's efforts are to assure that (1) personnel actions taken involving employees are processed within the law, and (2) actions taken by OPM and other agencies support and enhance Federal merit principles.

The number of decisions issued by the Board is shown in the following table:

The U.S. Institute for Environmental Conflict Resolution is a Federal program established by P.L. 105-156 to assist parties in resolving environmental, natural resource, and public lands conflicts. The Institute is part of the Morris K. Udall Foundation, and serves as an impartial, non-partisan institution providing professional expertise, services, and resources to all parties involved in such disputes. The Institute helps parties determine whether collaborative problem solving is appropriate for specific environmental conflicts, how and when to bring all the parties to the table, and whether a third-party facilitator or mediator might be helpful in assisting the parties in their efforts to reach consensus or to resolve the conflict. In addition, the Institute maintains a roster of qualified facilitators and mediators with substantial experience in environmental conflict resolution, and can help parties in selecting an appropriate neutral. (See www.ecr.gov for more information about the Institute.)

Public Law 102-259 established the Morris K. Udall Scholarship and Excellence in National Environmental Policy Foundation to provide educational resources to promote studies in the natural environment and Native American public health and tribal policy.

In 2002, the Foundation awarded 80 undergraduate scholarships. Twelve Native American Congressional Summer Internship Program recipients spent ten weeks in Congressional offices and the White House participating in a program created by the Udall Foundation.

In 2003 and 2004, the Foundation will maintain its current level of scholarships and internships.

The National Archives and Records Administration (NARA) provides for basic operations dealing with management of the Government's archives and records, operation of Presidential Libraries, and for the review for declassification of classified security information.

Records services.—This activity provides for selecting, preserving, describing, and making available to the general public, scholars, and Federal agencies the permanently valuable historical records of the Federal Government; the historical materials and Presidential records in Presidential Libraries; for preparing related publications and exhibit programs; and for conducting the appraisal of all Federal records.

Through the records declassification program, historically valuable information in the records of the Federal Government and in donated historical materials are made available to the public by declassifying as much information as possible without endangering the national security.

This activity also provides oversight for the information security program established by Executive Order 12958 as amended by Executive Order 13142 and reports annually to the President on the status of that program. It is also responsible for policy oversight for the National Industrial Security Program established under Executive Order 12829.

Archives related services.—This activity provides for the publication of the Federal Register, the Code of Federal Regulations, the U.S. Statutes-at-Large, and Presidential documents, and for a program to improve the quality of regulations and the public's access to them.

This activity also includes the administration and reference services portion for the National Historical Publications and Records Commission. This Commission makes grants nationwide to preserve and publish records that document American history.

Electronic Records Archives.—NARA, in research and development collaboration with national and international partners, is developing an Electronic Records Archives (ERA) that will ensure the preservation of and access to Government electronic records. The pace of technological progress makes formats in which the records are stored obsolete within a few years, threatening to make them inaccessible even if they are preserved intact. As NARA's strategic response to meeting these challenges, ERA will preserve electronic records generated in a variety of formats, and enable requesters to access them on computer systems now and in the future. NARA's upcoming systems development tasks include completing a systems requirement specification, system architecture, and system design for ERA. In 2004, NARA will continue to manage the Electronic Records Management (ERM) e-GOV Initiative. The ERM Initiative will complement the ERA planning and design work by providing policies and procedures to guide agencies in managing electronic records.

Archives II facility.—Provides for construction and related services of the new archival facility which was opened to the public in 1993. Costs of construction are financed by $302 million of federally guaranteed debt issued in 1989. Since 1994 and continuing in 2004, the Archives seeks appropriations for the annual payments for interest and redemption of debt to be made under the contract for construction and related services.

This account provides for the repair, alteration, and improvement of Archives facilities and Presidential Libraries nationwide, and provides adequate storage for holdings. It will better enable the National Archives to maintain its facilities in proper condition for public visitors, researchers, and employees in NARA facilities, and also maintain the structural integrity of the buildings. Funding requested in 2004 for the requirements study at St. Louis will define the records storage, staff, preservation, and support space required for either a new building or an interim facility while the existing building is being renovated. This study will produce a document that could be used as the foundation for a building design, or provide the requirements for the renovation of the existing military personnel records center and interim relocation space, or provide the requirements for a leased facility.

The insurance fund is used to carry out a program of insurance for member accounts in Federal credit unions and State-chartered credit unions which apply and qualify for insurance, authorized by Public Law 91-468, enacted October 19, 1970.

Budget program.—The activities consist of: (a) providing member account insurance, (b) formulating standards and requirements for insured credit unions, and (c) providing for liquidation or other disposition of the assets and liabilities of solvent and insolvent insured credit unions. The fund also reimburses the operating fund for its share of the Agency's administrative costs. The reimbursement percentage, which is reviewed and adjusted periodically, is estimated at 62 percent for 2002, and will be 62 percent for 2003.

The extent of the program is estimated as follows:

Item:	2002 actual	2003 est.	2004 est.
Number of insured credit unions .....	9,814	9,520	9,234
Insured shares of member institutions as of June 30 (in millions of dollars) .....	$432,438	$475,682	$508,980

It is estimated that approximately 3,669 State-chartered credit unions will be enrolled in the program by the end of 2003.

Financing.—For insurance year 2002 there was no annual insurance premium assessment. As a result of Public Law 98-369 (July 18, 1984), each insured credit union is also required to deposit and maintain in the insurance fund 1 percent of its member share accounts. The fund is structured to be entirely self supporting through the monies paid by member credit unions. The monies received plus the income generated from their investment are expected to cover all administrative and financial costs, as well as increase the fund balance proportionate to insured share growth. In 2001 the income generated from the 1 percent deposit eliminated the need to assess a premium. The fund has $100 million in borrowing authority from the Treasury for use in unforeseen emergencies. The reserve requirement was changed in 2000 due to the provisions of the Credit Union Membership Access Act (P.L. 105-219), which requires the normal operating level, an equity ratio specified by the Board, to be not less than 1.2 percent and not more than 1.5 percent.

For 2002, the Board set the normal operating level at 1.3 percent prior to the beginning of the calendar year.

Operating results.—Anticipated net income of $140 million will be retained in the fund, raising the balance to $6.2 billion by the end of 2003.

The National Credit Union Central Liquidity Facility was established under Public Law 95-630. It began operations on October 1, 1979. The Central Liquidity Facility provides loans to member credit unions for seasonal and emergency needs.

The two primary sources of funds for the Facility are stock subscriptions from credit unions and borrowings from the Federal Financing Bank. Credit unions, which choose to become members of the Facility, are required to purchase stock equal to one-half of 1 percent of their assets. One-half of the subscription in stock is forwarded to the Facility and deposited in the fund. The remaining half of the subscription remains on call in the credit union in investments as approved by the NCUA Board.

Public Law 99-609, enacted on November 6, 1986, transferred the Community Development Credit Union Revolving Loan Fund from the Department of Health and Human Services to the National Credit Union Administration. The NCUA disbursed loans of $2,719,000 in 2002 and plans to disburse $3,500,000 in 2003.

In 2002, excess liquidity decreased credit unions' demand for loans from the Fund. However, in 2004, it is anticipated that excess liquidity will constrict, which will further increase credit union interest to borrow from the Fund and expand services in underserved areas.

The National Endowment for the Arts (NEA) supports projects that enrich the Nation and its diverse cultural heritage. In 2004, the budget requests $117 million, a slight increase over 2003, for NEA to improve internal operations and interaction with the public. This reform effort will increase grant making efficiency and help extend the reach of the arts through the support of works of artistic excellence, projects that provide skills development in the arts for children and youth, and projects in geographically and economically isolated communities that traditionally have not had access to quality arts programming. The Endowment will support these projects with private and public partners, including state arts agencies and regional arts organizations.

This presentation includes Gifts and Donations and the Arts and Artifacts Indemnity Fund which previously had been shown separately.

The National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities Act of 1965, as amended, authorizes the Arts Endowment to receive money and other donated property. Such gifts may be used, sold, or otherwise disposed of to support arts projects and activities. Budget authority in this schedule reflects cash received each year by the Arts Endowment.

The Arts and Artifacts Indemnity Act of 1975, as amended authorizes the Federal Council on the Arts and Humanities to enter into indemnity agreements to cover certain eligible works of art while on traveling exhibition in the United States or abroad. Loss or damage claims certified by the Council are paid from this fund.

The National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH) supports educational and scholarly activities in the humanities, preserves America's cultural and intellectual resources, and provides opportunities for all Americans to engage in learning in the humanities. In 2004, the agency will launch "We the People," an initiative designed to promote a broad understanding of the ideas and events that have shaped our nation. "We the People," in conjunction with other civics programs across the Federal government, will support the study of our nation's history, institutions, and culture. NEH also will continue to support partnerships with state humanities councils; the strengthening of humanities teaching and learning in the nation's schools and higher educational institutions; efforts to preserve and increase access to brittle books, U.S. newspapers, documents, and other reference materials; and museum exhibitions, documentary media projects, and reading programs in the humanities that reach popular audiences.

Support is provided through outright grants, matching grants, and a combination of the two. Eligible applicants include state humanities councils, schools, higher education institutions, libraries, museums, historical organizations, professional associations, other cultural institutions, and individuals.

This presentation also includes the Gifts and Donations account. The National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities Act of 1965, as amended, authorizes the Humanities Endowment to receive money and other donated property. Such gifts may be used, sold, or otherwise disposed of to support humanities projects and activities. Budget authority in this schedule reflects cash received each year by the Endowment.

The Board resolves representation disputes in industry, and remedies and prevents specified unfair labor practices by employers or labor organizations. Case intake and additional program statistics appear in the table below.

PROGRAM STATISTICS

	2002 actual	2003 est.	2004 est.
Case intake:
Unfair labor practice cases .....	30,180	30,000	30,000
Representation cases .....	5,695	6,005	6,005
Administrative law judges:

Representation election cases:
Decisions issued .....	205	162	169
Objection rulings .....	112	125	126
Board decisions requiring court enforcement .....	113	102	105

Field investigation.—Charges of unfair labor practices and petitions for elections to resolve representation disputes are investigated by regional office personnel. Ninety-five percent of the unfair labor practice cases and 85 percent of the representation cases are closed by settlement, dismissal, or withdrawal. The remainder are prepared for public hearing. The agency strives to maximize the voluntary settlement of all cases and to avoid litigation.

Administrative law judge hearing.—Administrative law judges conduct public hearings in unfair labor practice cases. Their findings and recommendations are set forth in their decisions.

Board adjudication.—In an unfair labor practice case, a judge's decision becomes a Board order if no exceptions are filed. About 30 percent of these decisions become automatic Board orders or are complied with voluntarily. The remainder, with exceptions filed, requires contested Board decision. In representation cases, regional directors initially decide the issues by Board delegation. The Board itself decides representation issues on referral from regional directors or by granting a request for review of a regional director's decision. The Board also rules on objection and challenge questions in election cases.

Securing compliance with Board orders.—If the parties do not voluntarily comply with the Board's order involving unfair labor practices, the Board must request that the appellate courts enforce its decisions.

Mediator and alternative dispute resolution (ADR) services.—The Board mediates disputes over wages, hours, and working conditions for some 746 rail and air carriers and approximately 795,000 employees in the two industries.

The Board also provides technical assistance to enable labor and industry representatives to explore informally the relevant economic and noneconomic problems that condition collective bargaining in the railroad and airline industries. The Board's ADR program provides collective bargaining training, facilitation, and grievance mediation services to the labor-management community.

Emergency disputes.—When the parties fail to resolve their disputes through mediation, they are urged to submit their differences to arbitration. If neither mediation nor voluntary arbitration is successful, the President, when notified of disputes which substantially threaten to interrupt essential service, may appoint emergency boards to investigate and report on the dispute. Such reports usually serve as a basis for resolving the disputes.

The Northeast Rail Service Act of 1981 (P.L. 102-29) amended the Railway Labor Act (RLA) by adding a new emergency dispute procedure covering disputes between a publicly funded and operated commuter carrier and its employees. The 1981 Act requires the Board to appoint the public members of factfinding panels on Conrail.

Arbitration under sections 3 and 7 of the RLA.—Railroad employee grievances resulting from disputes over the interpretation or application of collective bargaining contracts may be brought for settlement to the National Railroad Adjustment Board (NRAB). The divisions of the Board are composed of an equal number of carrier and union representatives compensated by the party or parties they represent. Public Law 89-456 provides for the adjustment of disputes involving grievances resulting from interpretation or application of bargaining agreements in the railroad industry otherwise referable to the NRAB.

Administrative direction and support for the public law boards, special boards of adjustment, and the NRAB are provided by Federal employees who are compensated by the National Mediation Board.

The National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB), as an independent nonregulatory agency, is charged with promoting transportation safety through the investigation of accidents, the conduct of special studies, the development of recommendations to prevent accidents, the evaluation of the effectiveness of other Government agencies in preventing transportation accidents, and the review of appeals of adverse certificate and civil penalty actions taken by the Administrators of agencies of the Department of Transportation involving airman and seaman certificates and licenses.

In 2004, the Administration requests a total funding level of $71 million for NTSB Salaries and Expenses to allow the NTSB to fulfill its role in improving safety on the Nation's transportation system.

The National Transportation Safety Board is mandated by Congress to investigate all catastrophic transportation accidents and, therefore, has no control over the frequency of costly accident investigations. The emergency fund provides a funding mechanism by which periodic accident investigation cost fluctuations can be met without delaying critical phases of the investigations. In FY 2004, the Administration requests a funding level of $0.6 million to replenish the emergency fund to its authorized level of $2 million.

The National Veterans Business Development Corporation (NVBDC) has undertaken a variety of initiatives to fulfill its mandate under P.L. 106-50. The NVBDC has set three overarching goals to provide veterans with access to education, access to capital and services, and access to markets.

In fulfilling these goals, the NVBDC is continuing to build partnerships and conduct outreach with Federal departments, and agencies, veterans serving organizations, community based organizations and private sector corporations. Among other things, NVBDC has arranged computer training for veteran entrepreneurs through a number of private sector partners and worked with local lenders to develop a microloan program.

The NVBDC has been successful in satisfying the matching requirement of P.L. 106-50 for 2002 and plans to be self sufficient by 2005.

Nuclear Reactor Safety.—A major part of the NRC’s mission is to ensure that its licensees design, construct, and operate civilian reactor facilities safely. The Atomic Energy Act and the Energy Reorganization Act provide the foundation for regulating the Nation’s civilian nuclear power industry. Nuclear reactor safety encompasses all NRC efforts to ensure that civilian nuclear reactor facilities and non-power reactors are operated in a manner that provides adequate protection of public health and safety and the environment, and protects against radiological sabotage and theft or diversion of special nuclear materials. These efforts include reactor licensing; reactor license renewal; operator licensing; financial assurance; inspection; performance assessment; new reactor licensing identification and resolution of safety issues; reactor regulatory research; regulation development; operating experience evaluation; incident investigation; homeland security efforts (including threat and vulnerability assessment and emergency preparedness); emergency response; investigation of alleged wrong doing by licensees, applicants, contractors, or vendors; imposition of enforcement sanctions for violations of NRC requirements; and reactor technical and regulatory training. In light of the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks, NRC will continue to review and strengthen our security and safeguards program for civilian reactor facilities and address any significant weaknesses.

Nuclear Materials Safety.—Nuclear materials safety encompasses all NRC efforts to ensure that NRC-regulated aspects of nuclear fuel cycle facilities and nuclear materials activities are handled in a manner that provides adequate protection of public health and safety. These efforts include, licensing/certification, inspection, and enforcement activities; regulation and guidance development; nuclear materials research; identification and resolution of safety and safeguard issues; operating experience evaluation; incident investigation; threat assessment; emergency response; technical training; and investigation of alleged wrongdoing by licensees, applicants, certificate holders, contractors and vendors. In light of the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks, NRC will continue to review and strengthen our security and safeguards program for nuclear fuel cycle facilities and nuclear materials activities including developing a regulatory framework and improving licensing and inspection to further enhance the control of radioactive sources.

Nuclear Waste Safety.—Nuclear waste safety encompasses the NRC's high-level waste regulatory activities associated with high-level waste disposal at the potential Yucca Mountain repository as mandated by the Nuclear Waste Policy Act, as amended, and; the Energy Policy Act; NRC regulatory and oversight activities for decommissioning, which involves safely removing a facility from service and reducing residual radiation to a level that permits the property to be released for unrestricted or restricted use; the safe and secure storage and transportation of radioactive materials through the certification of spent fuel storage containers and transportation packages. Low-level radioactive waste activities associated with the disposal of waste are addressed in accordance with the Low-Level Radioactive Waste Policy Act. In light of the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks, NRC will continue to review and strengthen our security and safeguards program for decommissioning reactors, spent fuel storage installations, transportation packages, and storage cask designs.

International Nuclear Safety Support.—International Nuclear Safety Support encompasses NRC international activities, including some that support the agency's domestic mission and others that support broader U.S. national interests. These activities include international policy formulation, export-import licensing of nuclear materials and equipment, treaty implementation, international information exchange activities, international safety and safeguards assistance, and deterring nuclear proliferation.

Management and Support.—Management and support encompasses NRC central policy direction, legal advice for the Commission, analysis of long-term policy issues, administrative proceedings review and advice, liaison with outside constituents and other government agencies, financial management, all administrative and logistical support, information resources management, executive management services for the Commission, personnel and training, and matters involving small and disadvantaged businesses and civil rights. In light of the September 11, 2001 terrorist attacks, NRC will continue to review and strengthen NRC's physical facilities and information technology infrastructure.

The Office of Special Counsel (OSC) (1) investigates Federal employee and applicant allegations of prohibited personnel practices (including reprisal for whistleblowing) and when appropriate prosecutes before the Merit Systems Protection Board (MSPB); (2) provides a safe channel for whistleblowing by Federal employees and applicants; and (3) advises on and enforces the Hatch Act. The OSC may transmit whistleblower allegations to the agency head concerned and require an agency investigation and a report to the Congress and the President when appropriate.

Overall in 2002, there were more than 7,590 instances in which the assistance or action of the OSC was sought by Federal employees and other persons. Many prohibited personnel practice cases investigated by the OSC are resolved without recourse to formal proceedings before the MSPB. In 2002, the OSC obtained 168 corrective or other favorable actions, and efforts to obtain such negotiated resolutions will continue. In 2002, the OSC also filed four enforcement actions before the MSPB in Hatch Act matters. The OSC also issued 3,425 Hatch Act advisory opinions (both written and oral) to people who sought advice. During 2002, the OSC's Disclosure Unit received 555 new disclosure matters for possible referral and 19 Disclosure Unit matters were referred to agency heads for their review.

This request will enable OSC to continue its efforts to reduce its long-standing case processing backlogs. In 2002, OSC made more progress against these backlogs in reducing the number of pending prohibited personnel practice cases older than 240 days by 28 percent. However, due to dramatically rising intake in both the Hatch Act and Disclosure Units, backlogs increased in these units during 2002. This request provides funding for seven additional full time staff in these units to address growing backlog concerns.

OSC has again revised its Strategic Plan for the five year period beginning in 2004, as well as the associated Annual Performance Plan for 2004. These revisions are not major, but continue to provide focus for prioritizing cases by category and resource allocation, while providing a mechanism for identifying and implementing needed quality improvements. The plan's emphasis on strategic management, which also applies to the Hatch Act and Disclosure Units for which increased personnel are sought, will greatly assist OSC in ensuring that any new resources are used wisely, and to maximum effect.

The Postal Reorganization Act of 1970, Public Law 91-375, converted the Post Office Department into the U.S. Postal Service, an independent establishment within the executive branch. The Postal Service commenced operations July 1, 1971. This agency is charged with providing patrons with reliable mail service at reasonable rates and fees.

The U.S. Postal Service is governed by an 11-member Board of Governors, including 9 Governors appointed by the President, a Postmaster General who is selected by the Governors, and a Deputy Postmaster General who is selected by the Governors and the Postmaster General.

Decisions on changes in domestic rates of postage and fees for postal services are recommended to the Governors of the Postal Service by the independent Postal Rate Commission after a hearing on the record under the Administrative Procedure Act. The Commission also recommends decisions on changes in the domestic mail classification schedule to the Governors. Decisions of the Governors on rates of postage, fees for postal services, and mail classification are final, subject to judicial review.

Effective in 1986, the Postal Service Fund (Fund) was included in the congressional and executive budget process and taken into account in making calculations under the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 (Gramm-Rudman-Hollings). The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 amended title 39 of the U.S. Code by adding a new section, 2009a, which provides that, beginning in 1990, the receipts and disbursements of the Fund shall not be considered as part of the congressional and executive budget process and shall not be taken into account in making calculations under Gramm-Rudman-Hollings.

Programs.—Included are all postal activities providing window services; processing, delivery, and transportation of mail; research and development; administration of postal field activities; and associated expenses of providing facilities and financing.

In April 2002, the Postal Service delivered on its promise to Congress to develop a comprehensive Transformation Plan. This plan includes a commitment to reduce or avoid $5 billion in costs in five years. The plan provides the recently announced President's Commission on the United States Postal Service (Executive Order 13278, December 11, 2002) with a starting point for its mission to examine the state of the Postal Service and to prepare and submit to the President a report articulating a proposed vision for the future of the U.S. Postal Service. The Commission is also tasked with recommending the legislative and administrative reforms needed to ensure the viability of postal services. The bipartisan commission brings together nine highly skilled individuals from diverse backgrounds; including business, academia, and labor, to take a fresh look at the operational, structural, and financial challenges facing the Postal Service in the 21st Century.

Financing.—The activities of the U.S. Postal Service are financed from the following sources: (1) mail and services revenue; (2) reimbursements from Federal and non-Federal sources; (3) proceeds from borrowing; (4) interest from U.S. securities and other investments; and (5) appropriations by the Congress. All receipts and deposits are made to the Postal Service Fund and are available without fiscal year limitation for payment of all expenses incurred, retirement of obligations, investment in capital assets, and investment in obligations and securities.

Separate legislation also increased the Postal Service's statutory borrowing authority beginning in 1991. Section 2005 of title 39, United States Code, as amended, increased the Postal Service's borrowing authority by $2.5 billion in 1991 for a revised ceiling of $12.5 billion and an additional $2.5 billion in 1992 for a revised total ceiling of $15 billion. The total net increase in amounts outstanding in any one fiscal year were also increased and now may not exceed $2.0 billion in obligations issued for the purpose of capital improvements and $1.0 billion for the purpose of paying operating expenses. As of September 30, 2004, it is expected that the total debt instruments issued and outstanding pursuant to this authority will amount to $9.925 billion.

Operating.—Estimated revenue will total approximately $71.2 billion in 2004. This includes $71.1 billion from mail and services revenue, $20 million from investment income, and $37 million for revenue foregone appropriations in 2004. Total expenses are estimated at approximately $71.7 billion in 2004.

The Postal Reorganization Act of 1970 established the Postal Service as a fully self-sufficient, independent entity. Postal revenues were to cover the full costs of postal operations. When the Act was passed, the Postal Service received substantial taxpayer subsidies, both appropriated and unappropriated. Consistent with the intent of the 1970 Act, Congress has taken steps over time to reduce these subsidies. Under the 1974 Civil Service Retirement Fund—Postal Employee Benefits Act, the Postal Service assumed responsibility for paying unfunded retirement costs from wage schedule increases under postal labor contracts. These costs are not covered by normal employee/employer contributions to the retirement fund. The 1985 Reconciliation Act shifted responsibility for paying health benefit costs of Postal annuitants retiring after 1986 from OPM to the Postal Service. The 1987 Reconciliation Act had the Postal Service make one-time payments to defray annuitant health benefit costs in 1988 and 1989 and retirement COLA costs in 1988. (Retirement COLAs, like wage schedule increases, result in retirement liabilities not covered by normal retirement fund contributions.) Under the 1989 Reconciliation Act, the Postal Service assumed responsibility for paying health benefits of survivors of post-86 annuitants and unfunded retirement COLA liabilities for post-86 annuitants.

The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 superseded certain existing legislation and expanded the Postal Service's responsibility for benefit costs of postal annuitants. Effective October 1, 1990, the Postal Service is required to fund Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) COLAs and the employer's share of Federal Employees Health Benefits Program (FEHBP) premiums for postal annuitants who retired after June 30, 1971, and their survivors. In addition, the Postal Service is required to fund the retroactive CSRS COLA and FEHBP premium costs for which the Postal Service would have been liable if the provisions of this new legislation had been in effect as of July 1, 1971.

Under the Omnibus Reconciliation Act of 1993, the Postal Service was required to make certain payments for past COLAs and health benefits, over and above any other payments required by law, of $693 million to the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund, and $348 million to the Employees Health Benefits Fund. These two payments were made in three equal annual installments, beginning in fiscal year 1996.

The Revenue Forgone Reform Act of 1993 phased-in higher postage rates for preferred mailers during 1994 through 1999. As reimbursement for the additional revenues not collected by the Postal Service during this phase-in period and for insufficient amounts appropriated for forgone revenues on various mail classes during 1991 through 1993, the Act authorized $1.218 billion to be paid in installments of $29 million annually from 1994 through 2035. Congress has appropriated $29 million annually since 1994. As of September 30, 2003, $928 million remains to be paid—in annual increments of $29 million over the next 32 years—to the Postal Service under this Act.

The Balanced Budget Act of 1997 repealed the authorization for transitional appropriations to the Postal Service which had funded the liabilities of the former Post Office Department to the Employees' Compensation Fund. Effective October 1, 1997, these liabilities became liabilities of the Postal Service payable out of the Postal Service Fund.

The budget includes a legislative proposal that corrects an anticipated USPS over-funding of Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) retirement benefits. This anticipated over-funding is due to a number of factors, including higher than expected past pension investment yields and overly prescriptive and inflexible statutory language. While the legislative proposal would reduce USPS payments to the Retirement Fund, it ensures that USPS meets its pension obligations so that no employee or retiree would lose any benefits. The proposal is consistent with the structure and financing of the Federal Employees' Retirement System as well as the Administration's legislative proposal to fully fund CSRS liabilities for non-USPS employees and retirees.

The Presidio Trust is a wholly owned government corporation established by the Omnibus Parks and Public Lands Management Act of 1996 (Public Law 104-333) to manage, improve, maintain and lease property in the Presidio of San Francisco. After this former military base was transferred to the National Park Service (NPS), the Trust was created to take over responsibility for managing the hundreds of houses, office buildings, and other facilities in an innovative manner that uses private-sector resources, but is consistent with surrounding NPS lands. This appropriation funds the operation and capital improvements of the Trust.

In addition to rail social security, rail industry pensions, and special windfalls, the Railroad Retirement Board pays supplemental annuities to rail workers retiring at age 60 with 30 years of creditable rail service or at age 65 with 25-29 years of creditable service. Monthly benefit amounts are calculated from a base of $23, adding $4 for every year of service over 25, up to a maximum monthly benefit of $43. Under the provisions of P.L. 107-90, the Railroad Retirement and Survivors' Improvement Act of 2001, supplemental annuities will be funded and paid by the Rail Industry Pension Fund until an arrangement is finalized with a non-governmental financial institution to serve as a disbursing agent. Supplemental annuities will be funded and paid by the National Railroad Retirement Investment Trust once an arrangement is finalized.

All railroad retirees receive the equivalent of a social security benefit, and they may also receive other add-ons including rail industry pension payments, windfall payments, and supplemental annuities. Social security benefits for former railroad employees are funded by the social security trust funds, and rail industry pension payments are the responsibility of the rail sector.

Under current law, a financial interchange occurs once each year between the social security trust funds and the social security equivalent benefit (SSEB) account. The SSEB receives monthly advances from the general fund equal to an estimate of the transfer the SSEB would have received for the previous month if the financial interchange transfers were on a monthly basis. Advances from the previous year are repaid annually to the general fund immediately after the financial interchange is received. In 2002, $3,154 million was advanced and $3,163 million was repaid.

The Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act (FIRREA) of 1989 established the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) as a temporary agency to dispose of insolvent thrift institutions. The Savings Association Insurance Fund took over responsibility for resolving failed thrifts on July 1, 1995, and the RTC's assets and liabilities were transferred to the FSLIC Resolution Fund on December 31, 1995.

Of $18.3 billion appropriated to RTC in 1994 by the RTC Completion Act, the Thrift Depositor Protection Oversight Board determined that only $4.6 billion was required and the excess was returned to Treasury on December 31, 1997. When the RTC terminated, the Oversight Board's primary function ceased. On October 29, 1998, the Board was abolished and its remaining responsibility to oversee the Resolution Funding Corporation (REFCORP), which provided financing for the RTC, was transferred to the Secretary of the Treasury.

The primary mission of the Securities and Exchange Commission (the Commission) is to administer and enforce the Federal securities laws in order to protect investors, and to maintain fair, honest, and efficient markets.

Full disclosure.—This program ensures that investors will be provided with material information in the public offering, trading, voting and tendering of securities. Standards of financial reporting are established and enforced to enhance the transparency, relevance, and reliability of financial reporting so that financial statements used by investors in making investment decisions are presented fairly and have credibility. Issuers that have conducted public offerings, have securities traded in the public markets, or have total assets and security holder populations of specified sizes, are required to furnish management, financial, and business information to investors and the Commission on a continuing basis in proxy materials and in annual and other periodic reports. The staff reviews these documents on a selected basis for compliance with the disclosure requirements. In addition, all registration statements of issuers that are making their initial public offerings of securities and all third party tender offer filings are reviewed by the staff. As a result of the review process, the staff may issue comments to issuers to elicit better compliance or, where appropriate, refer matters for enforcement action.

Electronic filing (EDGAR).—The Commission's EDGAR system provides the agency with the capability for electronic receipt, analysis, and dissemination of virtually all of its full disclosure filings. Since becoming operational in 1993, EDGAR has received and successfully processed and disseminated over 4.8 million documents submitted in approximately 1.8 million separate submissions from over 28,000 companies and funds registered with the SEC.

In order to take advantage of changes in technology, lower operational costs, integrate with other SEC systems, and respond to the demands of filers and investors, the SEC decided to modernize EDGAR. This modernization brings Internet technology, both hardware and software, to EDGAR, with such new features as: (1) a Filing Web Site (for filing, software distribution, and assistance), (2) a security infrastructure as secure as what is used today for Internet financial transactions across the world, (3) new data formats that promote readability of documents for multiple purposes, (4) new functionality as requested by our filing community, (5) an Enterprise Data Repository for centrally housing all SEC data, and (6) a new Public Dissemination System.

Prevention and suppression of fraud.—This program investigates and prosecutes violations of the federal securities laws, including financial fraud, illegal distribution of unregistered securities, fraudulent offerings, insider trading, market manipulation, and illegal conduct by broker-dealers and investment advisers. Enforcement actions include emergency actions halting ongoing violations, injunctions against future violations, and disgorgement orders. Financial penalties and bars from acting in a regulated capacity may also be obtained. Over $3.0 billion in disgorgement and penalties has been collected in our actions since 1984. Because of the critical importance of criminal prosecutions as a deterrent to securities fraud, we refer cases to criminal authorities and detail staff to assist in criminal prosecutions.

These fee rates will be set so that, when applied to the baseline estimate of the aggregate dollar amount of relevant activities for fiscal 2004, the result will be aggregate fee collections equal to the target offsetting collection amounts projected for fiscal 2004.

Once the Commission receives a regular appropriation for 2003, the Section 6(b) fee rate paid by corporations to register securities with the Commission will be reduced from $92 per $1 million in 2002 to $80.90 per $1 million. The Section 31 transaction fee rate will be reduced from $30.10 per $1 million to $25.20 per $1 million. The Section 14(g) fee for proxy solicitations and statements in corporate control transactions will be reduced from $92 per $1 million to $80.90 per $1 million. The Section 13(e) fee for stock repurchase statements will be reduced from $92 per $1 million to $80.90 per $1 million. The Trust Indenture Act fee will be eliminated.

The Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) was created in 1933 as a Government-owned corporation for the unified development of a river basin comprised of parts of seven States. The agency finances its program primarily from proceeds available from current power operations and borrowings against future power revenues.

TVA's nonpower programs.—As a Federal corporation, TVA serves national interests by operating infrastructure services for the production of electricity, economic development and the stewardship of natural resources in 201 counties in seven States.

TVA has a statutory obligation to operate 54 dams and reservoirs to regulate stream-flow for the multi-purpose objectives of navigation, flood control, recreation and aquatic habitat conservation; perform cyclic maintenance and repair of 14 navigation locks, maintain dam machinery and spillway gates; perform channel, lock and mooring modifications to maintain safety and passability for increasingly larger cargo vessels; conserve and improve water quality and supply in 12 watersheds and dam tailwaters for fisheries and potable supply for 4 million people; control mosquitoes and plant pests; prevent shoreline erosion and manage residential development in riparian zones; plan for and manage 550,000 hectares (1.4 million acres) of land; provide services and education to watershed communities; operate public recreation areas; and, meet Federal regulatory law requirements. The Budget proposes that in 2004, these services be funded entirely by TVA's power revenues, user fees and sources other than appropriations.

TVA's Power Program.—TVA's role as the sole supplier of electric power to an area of 80,000 square miles in the seven Tennessee Valley States is being reviewed as the Nation considers ways to restructure the electric power industry. Income from power operations, net of interest charges and depreciation, and other operating expenses is estimated at $20 million in 2004. Power generating facilities are financed from power proceeds and borrowings. To position TVA for a more competitive electricity market and achieve a sounder business risk profile, the Administration will identify a TVA debt reduction path over the coming year in concert with a new TVA business plan. The significant debt reduction envisioned will encompass all TVA long-term liabilities, not just traditional TVA notes and bonds. To this end, the Budget proposes legislation that will make explicit that TVA financial transactions that result in increasing long-term liabilities will count toward TVA's statutory debt limit of $30 billion. For example, TVA lease/leasebacks, in which TVA receives a lump sum for leasing out one or more of its assets and then leases the assets back at a fixed annual payment for a number of years, would count as TVA debt against its cap. Debt reduction and a sound strategic plan are key elements needed to ensure that TVA continues to aid economic development in its service territory in the future.

Financing.—Amounts estimated to become available in 2004 are to be derived from power revenues and receipts of $7,278 million.

Operating results and financial conditions.—Payments to the Treasury from power proceeds in 2004 are estimated at $47 million—$27 million as a dividend (return on the appropriation investment in the power program) and $20 million as a reduction in the appropriation investment in the power program. Outstanding borrowings for the power program are expected to decrease by $231 million during 2004.

Total assets are estimated to decrease by $202 million during 2004. The estimate of liabilities at September 30, 2004, is $135 million less than the estimate at September 30, 2003. Total Government equity at September 30, 2004, is estimated to be $67 million less than that at September 2003. This change includes the net income from power operations, less payments to the Treasury.

The Combined Benefit Fund was established by the Coal Industry Retiree Health Benefit Act of 1992 to take over paying for medical care of retired miners and their dependents who were eligible for health care from the private 1950 and 1974 United Mine Workers of America Benefit Plans. The Fund's trustees represent the United Mine Workers of America and coal companies. The Fund is financed by assessments on current and former signatories to labor agreements with the United Mine Workers; past transfers from an overfunded United Mine Workers pension fund; and transfers from the Abandoned Mine Land Reclamation fund.

The 1992 Benefit Plan was established by the Coal Industry Retiree Health Benefit Act of 1992. It pays for health care for those miners who retired between July 21, 1992 and September 30, 1994, and their dependents, who are eligible for benefits under an employer plan and cease to be covered, usually because an employer is out of business. Plan trustees are appointed by the United Mine Workers of America and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, a coal industry bargaining group. The Plan is supported by signers of the 1988 labor agreement with the United Mine Workers of America.

The Vietnam Education Foundation Act of 2000 (Title II of Public Law 106-554) created the Vietnam Education Foundation to administer an international fellowship program under which Vietnamese nationals can undertake graduate and post-graduate level studies in the sciences (natural, physical, and environmental), mathematics, medicine, and technology, and American citizens can teach in these fields in appropriate Vietnamese institutions. The Act also authorized the establishment of the Vietnam Debt Repayment Fund, in which all payments (including interest payments) made by the Socialist Republic of Vietnam under the United States-Vietnam debt agreement shall be deposited as offsetting receipts. Beginning with 2002, and each subsequent year through 2018, $5 million of the amounts deposited into the fund (or accrued interest) each year shall be available to the Foundation.

AMENDMENTS TO AND REVISIONS IN BUDGET AUTHORITY FOR 2003

(Between the Transmittal of the 2003 and 2004 Budgets)

A statement of all amendments to or revisions in budget authority requested between transmittal of the 2003 Budget and the 2004 Budget is presented below. This statement is included in the budget in accordance with the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (31 U.S.C. 1105(d)).

The modifications to requests for 2003 budget authority that were made through the course of the past year took two forms:

- If the Congress had not yet acted on a pending request, the President sent amendments to the budget requests transmitted on February 4, 2002.
- If necessary, the President made available certain emergency funding. The availability of these funds was made contingent upon the President submitting a budget request to the Congress and designating the amounts requested as an emergency requirement.

Amendments and releases of contingent emergency funds are printed in the documents of the House of Representatives that are identified on the following listing.

ADVANCE APPROPRIATIONS, ADVANCE FUNDING, AND FORWARD FUNDING

I. An advance appropriation is one made to become available one fiscal year or more beyond the fiscal year for which the appropriation act is passed. Advance appropriations in fiscal year 2004 appropriations acts will become available for programs in 2005 or beyond. Since these appropriations are not available until after fiscal year 2004, the amounts will not be included in fiscal year 2004 budget totals, but will be reflected in the budget totals for the fiscal year for which they are requested.

The Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (31 U.S.C. 1105(a)(17)) requires inclusion in the budget of "information on estimates of appropriations for the fiscal year following the fiscal year for which the budget is submitted for grants, contracts, and other payments under each program for which there is an authorization of appropriations for that following fiscal year when the appropriations are authorized to be included in an appropriation law for the fiscal year before the fiscal year in which the appropriation is to be available for obligation." In fulfillment of this requirement, the table below lists those accounts authorized to receive, in fiscal year 2004, advance appropriations for fiscal year 2005 and beyond and cites the authorizing statute. Part A shows the amounts of advance appropriations included in the 2004 Budget. Part B shows the accounts for which 2004 or 2005 advance appropriations were provided but for which no new advance appropriations are requested.

Part C of the table completes OMB's statutory requirements by providing a listing of accounts for which advance appropriations are authorized but not requested in the 2004 Budget.

<sup>1</sup>These statutes erroneously refer to "advance funding." Since these statutes describe and clearly intend to provide advance appropriations, the affected accounts are listed here.

II. Advance funding is budget authority that is to be charged to the appropriation in the succeeding year but which authorizes obligations to be incurred in the last quarter of the fiscal year if necessary to meet higher than anticipated benefit payments in excess of the specific amount appropriated for the year. When such budget authority is used, an adjustment is made to increase the budget authority for the fiscal year in which it is used and to reduce the budget authority of the succeeding fiscal year. Essentially, this is a device for avoiding supplemental requests late in the fiscal year for certain programs, should the appropriations for the current year prove to be low. The table below lists those accounts for which advance funding authority is requested in the 2004 Budget.

Department of Labor:

- Special benefits for disabled coal miners
- Federal unemployment benefits and allowances

III. Forward funding is budget authority that is made available for obligation beginning in the last quarter of the fiscal year for the financing of ongoing grant programs during the next succeeding fiscal year. The budget authority for such programs is included in the budget totals for the year in which it is appropriated. This device is often used for education programs, so that grants can be made on a school year basis. The language providing forward funding for education programs will specify that amounts appropriated, in most but not all cases, will not be available until some time into the year of the appropriation (e.g., July 1, 2004) and in most cases will specify that such amounts will remain available until the end of the succeeding fiscal year. In other cases (e.g., Federal Pell grants), the funds become available on October 1st but are not normally obligated until July 1st or later and are available for obligation for an additional year. The table below lists those accounts for which forward funding exists or is requested in whole or in part in the 2004 Budget.

Department of Education:
Education for the disadvantaged
School improvement programs
Safe Schools and Citizenship Education
Special education
Vocational and adult education
Student financial assistance
Institute of Education Sciences

Department of the Interior:
Operation of Indian programs

In the training and employment area, forward funding for youth training grant programs provides appropriations for a program year that starts on April 1st of the fiscal year of the appropriation. Financing extends through June 30th of the following fiscal year. For most other training and employment programs, forward funding provides appropriations for a program year that starts on July 1st of the fiscal year of the appropriation. Financing extends through June 30th of the following fiscal year. Program years are authorized for training programs under the Workforce Investment Act and operation of the State Employment Service under section 6 of the Wagner-Peyser Act. The table below lists accounts for which forward funding is requested in the 2004 Budget.

Department of Labor:
Training and employment services

FINANCING VEHICLES AND THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS OF THE FEDERAL RESERVE

This chapter contains descriptions of and data on financing vehicles and the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve listed below.

- The Financing Corporation functions as a financing vehicle for the FSLIC Resolution Fund. It operates under the supervision and control of the Federal Housing Finance Board.
- The Resolution Funding Corporation provided financing for the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) and is subject to the general oversight and direction of the Secretary of the Treasury.

The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System's transactions are not included in the budget because of its unique status in the conduct of monetary policy. The Board provides data on its administrative budget on a calendar year basis, which is included here for information. Its budget schedules and statements are not subject to review by the President.

FINANCING VEHICLES

FINANCING CORPORATION

The Financing Corporation (FICO) is a mixed-ownership government corporation, chartered by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board pursuant to the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation Recapitalization Act of 1987, as amended (the "Act"). FICO's sole purpose was to function as a financing vehicle for the FSLIC Resolution Fund, formerly the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC). FICO operates under the supervision and control of the Federal Housing Finance Board (the "Finance Board"). Pursuant to the Act, FICO was authorized to issue debentures, bonds and other obligations subject to limitations contained in the Act, the net proceeds of which were to be used solely to purchase capital certificates issued by the FSLIC Resolution Fund, or to refund any previously issued obligations. The Resolution Trust Corporation Refinancing, Restructuring, and Improvement Act of 1991 terminated the FICO's borrowing authority.

The Act provided formulas pursuant to which the Federal Home Loan Banks made capital contributions to FICO at the direction of the Finance Board for the purchase of FICO capital stock. FICO used the proceeds received from the sales of such capital stock to purchase non-interest bearing securities for deposit in a segregated account as required by the Act. The non-interest bearing securities held in the segregated account will be the primary source of repayment of the principal of the FICO obligations. Securities in the segregated account are kept separate from other FICO accounts and funds but are not specifically pledged as collateral for the payment of obligations. The primary source of payment of interest on the obligations is the receipt of assessments imposed on and collected from institutions' accounts which are insured by the Bank Insurance Fund (the "BIF") and the Savings Association Insurance Fund (the "SAIF").

RESOLUTION FUNDING CORPORATION

The Resolution Funding Corporation (the "REFCORP") is a mixed-ownership government corporation established by Title V of the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 (FIRREA). The sole purpose of REFCORP was to provide financing for the Resolution Trust Corporation (the "RTC"). Pursuant to FIRREA, REFCORP was authorized to issue debentures, bonds, and other obligations, subject to limitations contained in the Act and regulations established by the Thrift Depositor Protection Oversight Board. The proceeds of the debt (less any discount, plus any premium, net of issuance cost) were used solely to purchase nonredeemable capital certificates of the RTC or to refund any previously issued obligations.

Until October 29, 1998, REFCORP was subject to the general oversight and direction of the Thrift Depositor Protection Oversight Board. At that time, the Oversight Board was abolished and its authority and duties were transferred to the Secretary of the Treasury. The day-to-day operations of REFCORP are under the management of a three-member Directorate comprised of the Director of the Office of Finance of the Federal Home Loan Banks and two members selected from among the presidents of the twelve Federal Home Loan Banks ("the FHLBanks"). Members of the Directorate serve without compensation, and REFCORP is not permitted to have any paid employees.

FIRREA, as amended, and the regulations adopted by the Thrift Depositor Protection Oversight Board and the Secretary of the Treasury provide formulas pursuant to which the Federal Home Loan Banks made capital contributions to REFCORP's Principal Fund and continue to make interest payments on outstanding REFCORP obligations. FIRREA also provides that the U.S. Treasury cover any interest shortfall. Funds designated for the Principal Funds were used to purchase zero-coupon bonds. The zero-coupon bonds will be held in the Principal Fund and are the primary source of repayment of the principal of the obligations at maturity.

The Federal Reserve System operates under the provisions of the Federal Reserve Act of 1913, as amended, and other acts of Congress.

Program.—To carry out its responsibilities under the Act, the Board determines general monetary, credit, and operating policies for the System as a whole and formulates the rules and regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of the Federal Reserve Act. The Board's principal duties consist of exerting an influence over credit conditions and supervising the Federal Reserve banks and member banks.

Financing.—Under the provisions of section 10 of the Federal Reserve Act, the Board of Governors levies upon the Federal Reserve banks, in proportion to their capital and surplus, an assessment sufficient to pay its estimated expenses. The Board, under the Act, determines and prescribes the manner in which its obligations are incurred and its expenses paid. Funds derived from assessments are deposited in the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, and the Act provides that such funds "shall not be construed to be Government funds or appropriated moneys." No Government appropriation is required to support operations of the Board.

The information presented pertains to Board operations only. Expenditures made on behalf of the Federal Reserve banks for production, issuance, retirement, and shipment of Federal Reserve notes are not included, since they are reimbursed in full by the Federal Reserve banks.

GOVERNMENT-SPONSORED ENTERPRISES

This chapter contains descriptions of and data on the Government-sponsored enterprises listed below. These enterprises were established and chartered by the Federal Government for public policy purposes. They are not included in the Federal budget because they are private companies. However, because of their public purpose, detailed statements of financial operations and condition are presented, to the extent such information is available, on a basis that is as consistent as practicable with the basis for the budget data of Government agencies. These statements are not reviewed by the President; they are presented as submitted by the enterprises.

The Student Loan Marketing Association (Sallie Mae) was created as a shareholder-owned government sponsored enterprise (GSE) by the Education Amendments of 1972 to expand funds available for student loans by providing liquidity to lenders engaged in the Federal Family Education Loan Program (FFELP), formerly the guaranteed student loan program (GSLP). Sallie Mae was privatized in 1997 pursuant to the authority granted by the Student Loan Marketing Association Reorganization Act of 1996. The GSE is a wholly owned subsidiary of SLM Corporation and must wind down and be liquidated by September 30, 2008. In January 2002, the GSE's board of directors announced that it expects to complete the dissolution of the GSE by September 30, 2006. Under legislation passed in 1998, if USA Education, Inc. affiliates with a depository institution, the GSE must wind down within two years (unless such period is extended by the Department of the Treasury).

The GSE provides liquidity through direct purchase of insured student loans from eligible lenders and through warehousing advances, which are loans to lenders secured by insured student loans, Government or agency securities, or other acceptable collateral. In capital shortage areas, the GSE is authorized, at the request of Federal officials, to make insured loans directly to students. The GSE is authorized to advance funds to State agencies that will provide loans to students. The GSE is also authorized to provide a secondary market for noninsured loans; to serve as a guarantee agency in support of loan availability at the request of the Secretary of Education; to purchase and underwrite student loan revenue bonds; to provide certain additional services as determined by its board of directors to be supportive of the credit needs of students generally; and to provide financing for academic facilities and equipment. As described below, however, many of these activities are limited or precluded under the privatization legislation.

The GSE is authorized by the Health Professions Educational Assistance Act of 1976 to provide a secondary market for federally insured loans to graduate health professions students.

Generally, under the privatization legislation, the GSE cannot engage in any new business activities or acquire any additional program assets other than purchasing student loans and serving, at the request of the Secretary of Education, as a lender-of-last-resort. The GSE can continue to make warehousing advances under contractual commitments existing on August 7, 1997.

The Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae) is a federally-chartered, privately-owned company with a public mission to provide stability and to increase the liquidity of the residential mortgage market and to help increase the availability of mortgage credit to low- and moderate-income families and in underserved areas. In carrying out its mission, Fannie Mae engages primarily in two forms of business: investing in portfolios of residential mortgages and guaranteeing residential mortgage securities. As of September 30, 2002, Fannie Mae held a net mortgage portfolio totaling $751 billion and had net outstanding guaranteed mortgage-backed securities of $990 billion.

Through a federal charter, Congress has equipped Fannie Mae with certain attributes to help it carry out its public mission. These include an exemption from state and local taxes (except real property taxes), and an exemption of its debt and mortgage securities from Securities and Exchange Commission registration requirements. An additional advantage is that the Secretary of the Treasury may purchase and hold up to $2.25 billion of securities issued by Fannie Mae under terms and conditions and at prices determined by the Secretary to be appropriate. Securities guaranteed by Fannie Mae and debt issued by the company are solely the corporation's obligations and are not backed by the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government. The common stock of the corporation is owned by the public, is fully transferable, and trades on the New York, Midwest, and Pacific stock exchanges.

Fannie Mae was established in 1938 to assist private markets in providing a steady supply of funds for housing. Fannie Mae was originally a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and was permitted to purchase only loans insured by the Federal Housing Administration (FHA). In 1954, Fannie Mae was restructured as a mixed ownership (part government, part private) corporation. Congress sold the government's remaining interest in Fannie Mae in 1968 and completed the transformation to private shareholder ownership in 1970. Using the proceeds from the sale of subordinated debentures, Fannie Mae paid the Treasury $216 million for the government's preferred stock, which was retired, and for the Treasury's interest in the corporation's earned surplus. As a result, the corporation was taken off the federal budget.

In 1992, Congress reaffirmed and clarified Fannie Mae's role in the housing finance system through charter act amendments included in the Federal Housing Enterprises Financial Safety and Soundness Act of 1992 ("The Act"). Fannie Mae's charter purposes, as amended by the Act, are: "to provide stability in the secondary market for residential mortgages; respond appropriately to the private capital market; provide ongoing assistance to the secondary market for residential mortgages (including activities relating to mortgages on housing for low- and moderate-income families involving a reasonable economic return that may be less than the return earned on other activities); and promote access to mortgage credit throughout the Nation (including central cities, rural areas, and underserved areas) by increasing the liquidity of mortgage investments and improving the distribution of investment capital for residential mortgage financing."

In December 1995, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) set affordable housing goals for 1996–1999 and established the requirements for counting mortgage purchases to low- and moderate-income families and families living in underserved areas with specific census tract and minority concentration requirements. Under that regulations, the low- and moderate-income goal was 42 percent; the geographically targeted goal was 24 percent and the special affordable housing goal was 14 percent. These goals were also in effect for 2000. Fannie Mae exceeded all of the housing goals in 2000 with low- and moderate-income purchases at 49 percent, geographically targeted purchases at 31 percent, and special affordable housing purchases at 19 percent.

In October 2000, HUD set new affordable housing goals for the period covering 2001 to 2003. The goals are 50 percent for the low- and moderate-income goal, 31 percent for the geographically targeted goal, and 20 percent for the special affordable housing goal.

In 2001, Fannie Mae dramatically expanded the financing it provided for low- and moderate-income households, and for minority households. In 2001, Fannie Mae financed over $87 billion in loans to nearly 680,000 minority families. It also financed over $132 billion in loans to over 1,500,000 low- and moderate-income families. Fannie Mae exceeded all of the housing goals in 2001. From 1996 to 2001, Fannie Mae increased its low- and moderate-income purchases from 45.4 percent to 52.0 percent, its underserved areas purchases from 28.2 percent to 32.5 percent, and its purchases for the special affordable goal from 17.4 percent to 21.6 percent.

The Act also established the Office of Federal Housing Enterprise Oversight (OFHEO), an independent office within HUD, headed by a Director who reports directly to the Congress. OFHEO has statutory responsibility for ensuring that Fannie Mae is adequately capitalized and operating in a safe and sound manner. Included among the express statutory authorities of the Director is the authority to conduct examinations of the financial health of the company and to issue minimum and risk-based capital standards. The minimum capital requirements are computed from statutorily established ratios that are applied to the assets and off-balance sheet risks of Fannie Mae. The risk-based capital standard determines the amount of capital that Fannie Mae must hold to withstand the impact of simultaneous adverse credit and interest rate stresses over a 10-year period, plus an additional 30 percent to cover management and operations risk. Total capital (shareholder's equity plus allowance for loan losses) at the end of September 2002 was $27.278 billion. The company has continued to remain in compliance with applicable capital standards and has been deemed adequately capitalized by OFHEO since its first classification in June 1993.

On September 30, 2002, OFHEO implemented its risk-based capital stress test for the first time, finding that as of that date Fannie Mae's total capital of $27.278 billion exceeded the risk based capital requirement by $5.838 billion. In addition, responding to the President's call for corporate leaders to provide the most accurate, timely, and useful information, Fannie Mae made a voluntary and irrevocable decision to register its common stock with the Securities and Exchange Commission under the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934.

For the four quarters ending September 2002, Fannie Mae earned $6.2 billion.

are not considered assets and the securities outstanding are not considered liabilities. However, the concepts of the budget of the U.S. Government consider these mortgages and mortgage-backed securities to be assets and liabilities, respectively, of Fannie Mae. The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (Freddie Mac), is a federally-chartered, shareholder-owned, private company with a public mission to provide stability and increase the liquidity of the residential mortgage market, and to help increase the availability of mortgage credit to low- and moderate-income families and in underserved areas. In carrying out its mission, Freddie Mac engages primarily in two forms of business: investing in portfolios of residential mortgages and guaranteeing residential mortgage securities. As of September 30, 2002, Freddie Mac held a net mortgage portfolio totaling $531 billion and had net outstanding guaranteed mortgage-backed securities of $730 billion.

Through a federal charter, Congress has equipped Freddie Mac with certain advantages over wholly private firms in carrying out these activities. These advantages include an exemption from state and local taxes (except real property taxes), and an exemption for their debt and mortgage securities from SEC filing registration requirements. An additional advantage is that the Secretary of the Treasury may purchase and hold up to $2.25 billion of securities issued by Freddie Mac under terms and conditions and at prices determined by the Secretary to be appropriate. Securities guaranteed by Freddie Mac and debt issued by the company are explicitly not backed by the full faith and credit of the U.S. Government. The common stock of the corporation is owned by private shareholders is fully transferable, and trades on the New York and Pacific stock exchanges.

Freddie Mac was established in 1970 under the Emergency Home Finance Act. Congress chartered Freddie Mac to provide mortgage lenders with an organized national secondary market enabling them to manage their conventional mortgage portfolio more effectively and gain indirect access to a ready source of additional funds to meet new demands for mortgages. Freddie Mac serves as a conduit facilitating the flow of investment dollars from the capital markets to mortgage lenders, and ultimately, to homebuyers, increasing the amount of mortgage credit available and making it more affordable.

The Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 (FIRREA) significantly changed the corporate governance of Freddie Mac. The company’s three member Board of Directors, which had corresponded with the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, was replaced with an eighteen member Board of Directors. Thirteen board members are elected annually by shareholders and five are annually appointed by the President of the United States. In addition, FIRREA converted Freddie Mac’s 60 million shares of non-voting, senior participating preferred stock into voting common stock. As a result, the corporation was taken off the federal budget.

FIRREA also clarified Freddie Mac’s role in the housing finance delivery system through amendments to its charter act. Specifically, FIRREA established Freddie Mac’s public mission: “to provide stability in the secondary market for residential mortgages; respond appropriately to the private capital market; and provide ongoing assistance to the secondary market for residential mortgages (including activities relating to mortgages on housing for low- and moderate-income families involving a reasonable economic return that may be less than the return earned on other activities.” The Federal Housing Enterprise Financial Safety and Soundness Act of 1992 (“The Act”) added to Freddie Mac’s public mission the promotion of “access to mortgage credit throughout the Nation (including central cities, rural areas, and underserved areas) by increasing the liquidity of mortgage investments and improving the distribution of investment capital for residential mortgage financing.”

The Act also established affordable housing goals that are designed to improve the flow of mortgage funds to low- and moderate-income families and families in central cities, rural areas, and other underserved areas. In December 1995, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) affordable housing goals for 1996-1999 and established the requirements for counting mortgage purchases for meeting these goals. The goals provide that, of the total number of dwelling units financed by Freddie Mac’s mortgage purchases, 42 percent meet the low- and moderate-income goal, 24 percent meet the geographically targeted goal, and 14 percent meet the special affordable goal. Additionally, within the special affordable goal was a multifamily mortgage purchase target for Freddie Mac of $1.0 billion. In an October 2000 rule, HUD applied the 1996–1999 goals to 2000 and established new goals for 2001–2003: 50 percent for the low- and moderate-income goal, 31 percent for the geographically targeted goal, 20 percent for the special affordable housing goal and a multifamily target for Freddie Mac of $2.1 billion.

Freddie Mac exceeded all of the housing goals in 2001 with low- and moderate-income purchases of 53.4 percent, geographically targeted purchases of 31.7 percent, special affordable purchases of 22.6 percent, and the multifamily portion of the special affordable purchases of $4.7 billion in qualifying multifamily mortgages.

The Act also enhanced the regulatory oversight of Freddie Mac by establishing the Office of Federal Housing Enterprise Oversight (OFHEO), an independent office within HUD, headed by a Director appointed by the President. OFHEO is responsible for ensuring that Freddie Mac is adequately capitalized and operating in a safe and sound manner. Included among the express statutory authorities of the Director is the authority to conduct examinations of the financial health of the company and to issue minimum and risk-based capital standards. The minimum capital requirements are computed from statutorily established ratios that are applied to the assets and off-balance sheet risks of Freddie Mac. The risk-based capital standard determines the amount of capital that Freddie Mac must hold to withstand the impact of simultaneous adverse credit and interest rate stresses over a 10-year period, plus an additional amount to cover management and operations risk. OFHEO published risk-based capital standards in September 2001 that became fully enforceable in September 2002.

On September 30, 2002, OFHEO implemented its risk-based capital stress test for the first time. On December 30, 2002, OFHEO announced that as of September 30, Freddie Mac's total capital of $23.101 billion exceeded its risk-based capital requirement by $18.182 billion and that Freddie Mac's core capital of $22.656 billion exceeded its minimum capital requirement by $2.118 billion. In addition, responding to the President's call for the corporate leader to provide the most accurate, timely, and useful information, Freddie Mac made a voluntary and irrevocable decision to register its common stock with the Securities and Exchange Commission under the Securities and Exchange Act of 1934.

For the four quarters ending September 2002, Freddie Mac recorded net income of $4.75 billion.

The financial data contained in this material relating to future periods represent estimates that have been prepared specifically for inclusion in the President's budget. These data should not be viewed as an official forecast of the corporation's future position, nor should they be used as a basis for making financial or investment decisions relating to the corporation. The data have been developed on the basis of certain economic assumptions that are subject to periodic review and revision. Consequently, the estimates are subject to forecast error and actual results from future business operations are likely to differ from these data.

According to generally accepted accounting principles utilized by private corporations, the mortgages in the pools of loans supporting PCs are considered to be owned by the holder of these securities. Therefore, Freddie Mac does not show these mortgages as assets. However, the budget philosophy of the United States Government includes these mortgages and mortgages pass-through securities as assets and liabilities, respectively, of Freddie Mac. For the purpose of this document, therefore, they are presented as assets and liabilities in the accompanying schedules. On the Status of Direct Loans schedule for mortgage pass-through securities, the items labeled "Disbursements" and "Repayments" are bud-etary terms. However, from Freddie Mac's perspective, these amounts represent "Sales of PCs" and "Amounts passed through to PC holders," respectively.

FARM CREDIT SYSTEM

The Farm Credit System is a government sponsored enterprise that provides privately financed credit to agricultural and rural communities. The major functional entities of the system are: (1) Agricultural Credit Bank (ACB), (2) Farm Credit Banks (FCB), and (3) direct lender associations. The history and specific functions of the bank entities are discussed after the presentation of financial schedules for each bank entity. As part of the Farm Credit System (FCS), these entities are regulated and examined by the Farm Credit Administration (FCA), an independent Federal agency. The administrative costs of FCA are financed by assessments of system institutions. System banks finance loans from sales of bonds to the public and their own capital funds. The system bonds issued by the banks are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. The bonds are backed by an insurance fund, administered by the Farm Credit System Insurance Corporation (FCSIC), an independent Federal agency that collects insurance premiums from member banks to pay its administrative expenses and fund insurance reserves. All of the banks' current operating expenses are paid from their own income and do not require budgetary resources from the Federal Government.

AGRICULTURAL CREDIT BANK

CoBank, ACB is headquartered in Denver, Colorado and serves eligible cooperatives nationwide, and provides funding to Agricultural Credit Associations (ACAs) in one of its regions. CoBank, ACB is the only Agricultural Credit Bank in the Farm Credit System. An ACB operates under statutory authority that combines the authorities of a FCB and a Bank for Cooperatives (BC). In exercising its FCB authority, CoBank ACB's charter limits its lending to ACAs located in the region previously served by the Farm Credit Bank of Springfield. As an entity lending to Cooperatives, CoBank is independently chartered to provide credit and related services nationwide to eligible cooperatives primarily engaged in farm supply, grain, marketing and processing (including sugar and dairy). CoBank also makes loans to rural utilities, including telecommunications companies and it provides international loans for the financing of agricultural exports.

The Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 (1987 Act) required the Federal Land Banks (FLBs) and Federal Intermediate Credit Banks (FICBs) to merge into a Farm Credit Bank (FCB) in each of the 12 Farm Credit districts. The FCBs operate under statutory authority that combines the prior authorities of the FLB and the FICB. No merger occurred in the Jackson district in 1988 because the FLB was in receivership. Pursuant to section 410(e) of the 1987 Act, as amended by the Farm Credit Banks Safety and Soundness Act of 1992, the FICB of Jackson merged with the FCB of Columbia on October 1, 1993. Mergers and consolidations of FCBs across district lines, that began in 1992 continued through mid-1995. As a result of this restructuring activity, 6 FCBs headquartered in the following cities, remain: AgFirst FCB, Columbia, South Carolina; AgriBank FCB, St. Paul, Minnesota; FCB of Wichita, Wichita, Kansas; FCB of Texas, Austin, Texas; and Western FCB, Sacramento, California.

The FCBs serve as discount banks and as of October 1, 2002 provided funds to 15 Federal Land Credit Associations (FLCA), 3 Production Credit Associations (PCAs), and 85 Agricultural Credit Associations (ACAs). These direct lender associations, in turn, make short-term production loans (PCAs and ACAs) and long-term real estate loans (FLCAs and ACAs) to eligible farmers and ranchers. FCBs can also lend to local financing institutions, including commercial banks, as authorized by the Farm Credit Act of 1971, as amended.

All the capital stock of the FICB's, from organization in 1923 to December 31, 1956, was held by the U.S. Government. The 1956 Act provided a long-range plan for the eventual ownership of the credit banks by the production credit associations and the gradual retirement of the Government's investment in the banks. This retirement was accomplished in full on December 31, 1968. The last of the Government capital that had been invested in the FLB's was repaid in 1947.

FEDERAL AGRICULTURAL MORTGAGE CORPORATION
(FARMER MAC)

Farmer Mac is authorized under the Farm Credit Act of 1971 (the Act), as amended by the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987, to create a secondary market for agricultural real estate and rural home mortgages. The Farmer Mac title of the Act was amended by the 1990 farm bill to authorize Farmer Mac to purchase, pool, and securitize the guaranteed portions of farmer program, rural business and community development loans guaranteed by the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA). The Farmer Mac title was further amended in 1991 to clarify Farmer Mac's authority to issue debt obligations, provide for the establishment of minimum capital standards, establish the Office of Secondary Market Oversight at the Farm Credit Administration (FCA), and expand the agency's rulemaking authority. Most recently, the Farm Credit System Reform Act of 1996 (1996 Act) amended the Farmer Mac title to allow Farmer Mac to purchase loans directly from lenders and to issue and guarantee mortgage-backed securities without requiring that a minimum cash reserve or subordinated (first loss) interest be maintained by poolers as had been required under its original authority. The 1996 Act expanded FCA's regulatory authority to include provisions for establishing a conservatorship or receivership, if necessary, and provided for increased core capital requirements at Farmer Mac phased in over three years.

Farmer Mac operates through two programs, "Farmer Mac I," which involves mortgage loans secured by first liens on agricultural real estate or rural housing (qualified loans), and "Farmer Mac II," which involves the guaranteed portions of USDA guaranteed loans. Farmer Mac operates by: (i) purchasing, or committing to purchase, newly originated or existing qualified loans or guaranteed portions from lenders; (ii) purchasing "AgVantage" bonds backed by qualified loans or guaranteed portions from lenders; and (iii) exchanging qualified loans or guaranteed portions for guaranteed securities.

(FARMER MAC)—Continued

Loans purchased by Farmer Mac are aggregated into pools that back Farmer Mac guaranteed securities which are held by Farmer Mac or sold into the capital markets. Farmer Mac is intended to attract new capital for financing qualified loans and guaranteed portions, foster increased long-term, fixed-rate lending, and provide greater liquidity to agricultural and rural lenders.

Farmer Mac is governed by a 15 member Board of Directors. Ten Board members are elected by stockholders, including five by the Farm Credit System and five by commercial lenders. Five are appointed by the President, subject to Senate confirmation.

FINANCING

Financial support and funding for Farmer Mac's operations come from several sources: sale of common and preferred stock; issuance of debt obligations; and net income from operations. Under procedures specified in the Act, Farmer Mac may issue obligations to the U.S. Treasury in a cumulative amount not to exceed $1.5 billion to fulfill its guarantee obligations.

As of September 30, 2002, Farmer Mac's core capital exceeded statutory requirements. Additionally, Farmer Mac's regulatory capital (core capital plus the allowance for loan losses) exceeded the amount of required regulatory capital as determined by the risk-based capital rule, with which Farmer Mac was required to be in compliance on May 23, 2002.

GUARANTEES

Farmer Mac provides a guarantee of timely payment of principal and interest on securities backed by qualified loans or pools of qualified loans. These securities are not guaranteed by the United States, and are not "government securities".

Farmer Mac is subject to reporting requirements under securities laws and its guaranteed mortgage-backed securities are subject to registration with the Securities and Exchange Commission under the 1933 and 1934 Securities Acts.

REGULATION

Farmer Mac is federally regulated by the FCA's Office of Secondary Market Oversight (OSMO). OSMO is responsible for the supervision, examination of and rulemaking for Farmer Mac.

The 12 Federal Home Loan Banks were chartered by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board under the authority of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act of 1932 (the Act). The FHLBanks are under the supervision of the Federal Housing Finance Board. The common mission of the FHLBanks is to facilitate the extension of credit through their members. To accomplish this mission, the FHLBanks make loans, called advances, and provide other credit products and services to their 7,992 member commercial banks, savings associations, insurance companies, and credit unions. Advances and letters of credit must be fully secured by eligible collateral and long-term advances may be made only for the purpose of providing funds for residential housing finance. However, "community financial institutions" may also use long-term advances to finance small businesses, small farms, and small agribusinesses. Additionally, specialized advance programs provide funds for community reinvestment and affordable housing programs. All regulated financial depositories and insurance companies engaged in residential housing finance are eligible for membership. Each FHLBank operates in a geographic district designated by the Board and together the FHLBanks cover all of the United States as well as the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, and the Northern Mariana Islands.

Advances outstanding on September 30, 2002 totaled approximately $491 billion, a net increase of approximately $24 billion from the September 30, 2001 level of $469 billion.

The principal source of funds for the lending operation is the sale of consolidated obligations to the public. On September 30, 2002, $611 billion of these obligations were outstanding. The consolidated obligations are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government as to principal or interest. Other sources of lendable funds include members' deposits and capital. Deposits totaled $29 billion and total capital amounted to $36 billion as of September 30, 2002. Funds not immediately needed for advances to members are invested.

The capital stock of the Federal Home Loan Banks is owned entirely by the members. Initially the U.S. Government purchased stock of the banks in the amount of $125 million. The banks had repurchased the Government's investment in full by mid-1951.

The operating expenses of the FHLBanks are paid from their own income and are not included in the Budget of the United States. Included in these expenses are the assessments by the Finance Board to cover its administrative and other costs. The Finance Board's budget and expenditures, however, are included in the budget of the United States.

The Act, as amended in 1989, requires each FHLBank to operate an Affordable Housing Program (AHP). Each FHLBank provides subsidies in the form of direct grants or below-market rate advances for members that use the funds for qualifying affordable housing projects. The FHLBank System sets aside for its AHPs the greater of $100 million annually or 10 percent of net income. The Act, as amended in 1999, also requires that the FHLBanks contribute 20 percent of net earnings annually to assist in the payment of interest on bonds issued by the Resolution Funding Corporation.

The forecast data for 2003 and 2004 contained in this material represents estimates and should not be construed as an official forecast of the FHLBanks System's future position.
