- The FBI, Congress, and the public will be better informed of the full cost of critical FBI activities, such as combating terrorism.
  - Strategic planning will be facilitated by focusing on a limited number of core programs, and by having improved budget data for decision making.
  - The FBI's ability to develop meaningful performance measures and to link performance to costs will be enhanced.

These proposals are consistent with the President's Management Agenda, which seeks to integrate more completely information about costs and performance.

DEA's mission is to enforce the controlled substances laws and regulations of the United States, and to bring to the criminal and civil justice system of the United States, or any other competent jurisdiction, those organizations involved in the growing, manufacturing and/or distribution of controlled substances destined for illicit traffic in the United States.

In FY 2004, DEA is requesting to combine its current decision units under Salaries and Expenses to reduce the number from ten (10) to three (3). Domestic Enforcement, International Enforcement, and State and Local Assistance. The decision unit consolidation will allow DEA to better align its resources with strategic plan goals and financial reporting categories, improve managerial flexibility, and reduce the number of reprogrammings, while retaining detailed reporting capability. In addition, in FY 2004, DEA has merged the Construction account into its Salaries and Expenses account.

DEA's activities are divided into three main categories:

Enforcement—

Domestic Enforcement. Through effective enforcement efforts and associated support functions, DEA disrupts and dismantles the leadership, command, control, and infrastructure of major drug syndicates, criminal organizations, and violent drug trafficking groups that threaten the United States. This activity contains most of DEA's resources, including domestic enforcement groups, state and local task forces, other funded federal and local task forces, intelligence and diversion control groups, and all the support functions essential to accomplishing their mission. Strategic objectives have been established to:

- Identify and target the national/regional organizations most responsible for the domestic distribution and manufacture of illicit drugs and diversion of licit drugs and chemicals;
- Systematically disrupt and dismantle targeted organizations by arresting/convicting their leaders and facilitators, seizing and forfeiting their assets, targeting their money laundering operations, and destroying their command and control networks; and,
- Work with international offices to dismantle domestic organizations directly affiliated with international cartels.

International Enforcement. DEA works with its foreign counterparts to attack the vulnerabilities in the leadership, production, transportation, communications, finance, and distribution sectors of major international drug trafficking organizations. Strategic objectives include:

- Identifying, prioritizing, and targeting the most significant international drug and chemical trafficking organizations;
- Disrupting the networks, financial infrastructures, operations, and the resource bases of targeted international drug and chemical trafficking organizations; and,
- Dismantling those international organizations that have a nexus to domestic organizations.

State and Local Assistance. DEA advises, assists, and trains state and local law enforcement and local community groups to ensure a consistent national approach to drug law enforcement. DEA's training enhances their enforcement capabilities and provides access to the latest intelligence and investigative methods. The strategic objectives are to:

- Reduce drug-related violent crime caused by drug traffickers in selected communities;
- Improve the capabilities of state and local enforcement efforts with specialized training programs; and,
- Assist local efforts to control the production of cannabis and methamphetamine.

Reimbursable Programs. The primary reimbursements to DEA are for the Interagency Crime and Drug Enforcement Task Force program and the Department of Justice Assets Forfeiture Fund.

For 2004, $42.9 million is provided in support of: (1) DEA's plan for addressing the Nation's illegal drug threats by targeting Priority Drug Trafficking Organizations; (2) DEA's international counter-narcotics training; and (3) improving financial and asset management programs. In addition, DEA will use $7.8 million in prior year unobligated balances to design and construct a replacement laboratory in the Southeast region.

In FY 2004, a $52.7 million offset to DEA's base resources is proposed from the following: savings resulting from Department-wide streamlining efforts; eliminating DEA's Regional Enforcement Team and Mobile Enforcement Team Programs and redirecting positions towards Priority Targeting; reducing DEA's Demand Reduction Program; and reducing DEA's rent, alterations, travel, and relocation resources.

DEA continues to revise and integrate its Strategic Plan, Budget, and Performance Reporting. DEA's specific annual goal is to disrupt and/or dismantle identified Priority Drug Trafficking Organizations and thereby reduce the availability of illegal drugs in the United States. The measures below reflect DEA's focus on priority targets and the planned outcomes of disruption and dismantlement.

Public Law 102-395 established the Diversion Control Fee Account in 1993. Fees charged by the Drug Enforcement Administration under the Diversion Control Program are set at a level that ensures the recovery of the full costs of operating this program. The program's purpose is to prevent, detect, and investigate the diversion of controlled substances from legitimate channels, while ensuring an adequate and uninterrupted supply of controlled substances required to meet legitimate needs. Strategic objectives include:

- Identifying and targeting those responsible for the diversion of pharmaceutical controlled substances through traditional investigation and cyber crime initiatives to systematically disrupt and dismantle those entities involved in diversion schemes;
- Supporting the registrant population with improved technology, including E-commerce and customer support while maintaining cooperation, support and assistance from the regulated industry;
- Monitoring drugs of abuse while educating the public on the dangers of prescription drug abuse and taking appropriate scheduling actions or enforcement measures when new trends and drugs of abuse are encountered; and
- Ensuring an adequate and uninterrupted supply of controlled substances to meet legitimate medical and scientific needs.

The measures below reflect the level of activity performed by this program.

Prior to the Homeland Security Act of 2002, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, and Firearms (ATF) was a law enforcement bureau at the Department of the Treasury dedicated to enforcing Federal laws and regulations and collecting revenue relating to alcohol, tobacco products, firearms and explosives. Subsequent to the provisions of the Homeland Security Act of 2002, ATF was divided into two bureaus, the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms, and Explosives (ATF) and the Bureau of Alcohol and Tobacco Tax and Trade. The Department of the Treasury retained the revenue and regulatory functions relating to alcohol and tobacco in the newly created Bureau of Alcohol and Tobacco Tax and Trade. ATF has been realigned to the Department of Justice with responsibility for enforcement of the Federal laws relating to alcohol, tobacco products, firearms and explosives. The new Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco, Firearms and Explosives mission is to deter and investigate violations of law relating to alcohol, tobacco, firearms, explosives and arson. ATF stands in the front ranks of the nation's battle against terrorism. Explosives and firearms can be terrorist tools, and ATF is in the unique position of not only regulating commerce in firearms and explosives, but also of having the requisite expertise and authority to investigate firearms and explosives-related crimes. Through these programs, ATF investigators are positioned to thwart criminal and terrorist activity at every level of the execution process—from the theft or illegal purchase of explosives to the interdiction and neutralization of those explosives. The budget provides $852 million to support ATF.

This appropriation will provide for the custody and care of an average daily population of 176,352 offenders and for the maintenance and operation of 113 penal institutions, 6 regional offices, and a central office located in Washington, D.C. The appropriation also finances the boarding of sentenced Federal prisoners in State and local jails and other facilities for short periods of time. An average daily population of 28,176 sentenced prisoners will be in contract facilities in 2004.

The FPS receives reimbursements for daily care and maintenance of State and local offenders, for utilities used by Federal Prison Industries, Inc., for staff housing, and for meals provided to FPS staff at institutions.

The FPS has restructured its FY 2004 budget in accordance with the President's Management Reform Agenda and the Government Performance and Results Act. The new structure incorporates the old Salaries and Expenses and the Buildings and Facilities budgets into one streamlined budget with two decision units, Inmate Confinement and Inmate Programs.

Inmate Confinement.—This decision unit represents costs associated with Prison Capacity (New Construction, Modernization and Repair, Contract Confinement) and Operations (Institution Security and Administration, Maintenance, Unit Management, Food Service, Training, Medical and the National Institute of Corrections).

PRISON CAPACITY

New Construction.—This activity represents costs associated with the acquisition, construction, and leasing of facilities in order to reduce crowding and provide a safe and humane environment for staff and inmates.

Modernization and repair of existing facilities.—This activity includes rehabilitation and renovation of buildings, necessary modifications to accommodate correctional programs, rehabilitation or replacement of utilities systems, infrastructure, and repair projects at existing facilities.

Contract Confinement.—This activity provides for the confinement of sentenced Federal offenders in Government-owned, contractor-operated facilities and contract, State and local facilities, and for the care of Federal prisoners in contract community residential centers.

OPERATIONS

Institution Security and Administration.—This budget activity covers costs associated with Institution Security, Institution Administration, Institution Maintenance, Institution Staff Training, and Unit Management. This activity finances institution maintenance, motor pool operations, powerhouse operations, institution security, and other administrative functions. In addition, it covers the cost of all food, medical supplies, clothing, welfare services, release clothing, transportation, gratuities, staff salaries (including salaries of Health Resources and Services Administration commissioned officers), and operational costs of functions directly related to providing inmate care. Finally, it covers all costs associated with regional and central office executive direction and management support functions such as research and evaluation, systems support, financial management, human resources management, inmate systems management, safety, and legal counsel.

National Institute of Corrections.—This activity provides assistance by the National Institute of Corrections to State and local corrections.

Inmate Programs.—This decision unit represents costs associated with Reintegration Tools (Education and Vocational Training, Drug Treatment, Life Connections) and Services (Religious, Psychological).

REINTEGRATION TOOLS

Education and Vocational Training.—Education programming provides inmates with an opportunity to learn the functional skills associated with a positive return to society.

Drug Treatment.—The FPS has developed a comprehensive drug abuse treatment consisting of five components: screening and assessment; drug abuse education, non-residential drug abuse counseling services, residential drug abuse programming, and community-transitional drug abuse treatment.

Life Connections.—The Life Connections Program is a multi faith-based, prison pre-release demonstration program to help federal inmates readjust successfully into law-abiding society, thereby reducing recidivism. This program consist of an intensive, multi-phase program to attempt to instill values and character through a curriculum of personal, social and moral development (e.g., education, parenting and family responsibilities, victim-offender mediation, etc.). Life connections pilot projects are being implemented at FCI Petersburg, VA; FCI Milan, MI; USP Leavenworth, KS; FMC Carswell, TX; and FCI Victorville, CA.

SERVICES

Religious.—Activity finances the costs of religious programs.

Psychological.—Activity finances the costs of psychological services.

For 2004, program increases are requested for the activation of 3 U.S. Penitentiaries (USP) and 4 Federal Correctional Institutions (FCI) (FCI Victorville, CA; USP Hazelton, WV; FCI Forrest City, AR; FCI Herlong/Sierra, CA; FCI Williamsburg, SC; USP Canaan, PA; and USP Terre Haute, IN); for contract confinement for female inmates; for counterterrorism resources needed to construct additional bedspace for inmates convicted of terrorist activities; and for BOP's Transitional Drug Treatment Program.

Federal Prison Industries, Inc., was created by Congress in 1934 and is a wholly-owned Government corporation. Its mission is to employ and train Federal inmates through a diversified program providing products and services to other Federal agencies. These operations are conducted in such a manner as to offer a minimum of competition to private industry and labor. Employment provides inmates with work, occupational knowledge and skills, plus money for personal expenses and family assistance.

The Corporation strives to provide additional industrial employment opportunities at existing and planned institutions.

Budget program.—Federal Prison Industries, Inc., operations are entirely self-sustaining. No appropriations are required. The amounts used by the Corporation for administrative expenses are subject to a congressional limitation. Information regarding this limitation is provided separately following this account.

Financing program.—Revenues are derived entirely from the sale of products and services to other Federal agencies. Operating expenses are applied against these revenues, resulting in operating income or loss. Earnings surplus to the needs of the manufacturing operations, capital improvements and cash reserves are used to pay accident compensation.

Operating results.—To date, Federal Prison Industries, Inc., has returned to the Treasury a total of $82 million of retained income excess to the Corporation's needs. No contributions from budget authority have been made to offset deficits for non-revenue producing outlays since the inception of the fund.

The mission of the Office of Justice Programs (OJP) is to provide Federal leadership in developing the nation's capacity to prevent and control crime, administer justice, and assist crime victims. In FY 2004, OJP addressed the President's Management Reform Agenda by streamlining its existing appropriation account structure and consolidating programs and administrative resources into a single decision unit entitled Justice Assistance. The Crime Victims' Fund remains a separate account due to the nature of its resources, which are not provided through appropriations but through the collection of fines and forfeitures.

Within Justice Assistance, OJP has grouped its programs into eight activities, which broadly reflect OJP's major mission critical functions. These activities, and the programs grouped within them, are as follows:

1. Counterterrorism Research and Development: Funds provide for the development of practical tools and approaches to improve the ability of state and local first responders to detect and effectively respond to terrorist acts.

2. Improving the Criminal Justice System: Funds provide a wide range of assistance to States, localities and tribal governments with crime and drug control efforts. These programs and activities target resources to strengthen the capacity of the criminal justice systems at the local level and to promote community-based strategies to prevent and address crime. Funding supports several programs, including:

Regional Information Sharing System (RISS)—Funds State and local law enforcement agencies in the exchange of intelligence information and investigative services and equipment. At its inception, RISS supported state and local law enforcement efforts to combat drug trafficking and organized criminal activity. However, the regional information sharing concept has expanded, and now more law enforcement agencies routinely reach out to share intelligence across jurisdictional boundaries. Section 701 of the USA Patriot Act of 2001 authorizes RISS to operate secure information sharing systems to enhance the investigative and prosecutorial abilities of participating law enforcement agencies in addressing terrorism. The 2004 President's Budget proposes a $12 million increase to expand RISS' accessibility to state and local public safety agencies for the purpose of sharing terrorism alerts and related information.

State and Local Training and Technical Assistance Program—Funds provide targeted training to state and local law enforcement addressing hate crimes and the investigation and prosecution of terrorist crimes. The 2004 President's Budget proposes a total of $4.238 million for this activity.

Justice Assistance Grant Program (—$189.780 million)—For statewide initiatives, technical assistance, training, and other support in the areas of law enforcement, prosecution and court programs, prevention programs, corrections programs and treatment programs. Local funding may also be combined with funding of other jurisdictions to form a regional project. The 2004 President's Budget includes $15 million for the U.S.A. Freedom Corps, which was previously funded under the this program.

Tribal Courts Program (—$7.907 million)—In 2004, this program is proposed to be funded within the total amount requested for the Justice Assistance Grant Program. The Tribal Courts Program seeks to develop new tribal courts, improve operations of existing tribal courts, and provide funding for the training of tribal court staff. Tribal courts help Native American communities develop the capability to address their own crime problems within their communities.

National White Collar Crime Center (—$9.726 million)—Funding is proposed to be eliminated for the White Collar Crime Center due to its specialized, state-specific projects that duplicate Federal efforts in areas such as identity theft.

Hate Crimes Awareness (–$1.238 million)—This program is consolidated under the new State and Local Training and Technical Assistance Program.

3. Research and Demonstration, Evaluation and Statistics: Funds provide a wide range of research and statistical programs addressing criminal justice issues. These programs increase statistics on criminal justice issues and trends, evaluate the effectiveness of current approaches, and identify innovative solutions. Funding supports several programs, including:

Criminal Justice Statistical Programs—Funds provide for the collection and analysis of statistical information concerning crime, victims, offenders, criminal justice processes, and civil disputes in support of public and private policy decisionmaking about society’s response to crime; planning, coordination, implementation and provision of technical assistance to States to initiate innovative applications of communications and information systems technology for State and local criminal justice systems; and assurance of conformity with privacy and security regulations. The 2004 President’s Budget proposes a $2 million increase to begin the automation of the National Crime Victimization Survey.

Research, Development, and Evaluation Programs (–$5 million)—This decrease represents funds allocated for the DNA research and development program, which are consolidated under the proposed DNA Initiative in FY 2004.

Safe Schools Technology Program (–$16.799 million)—Funding is proposed to be eliminated for this program, which develops technologies used by schools to deter violence. However, law enforcement technologies, currently under development using other funding resources, may be adapted to school situations.

Corrections and Law Enforcement Family Support (–$1.497 million)—Funding is proposed to be eliminated for this research program, which has provided valuable information for law enforcement to address stress among their officers. An evaluation, scheduled for completion in 2003, will provide further information about which programs work. As the program has achieved its goals, funding is eliminated.

4. Technology for Crime Identification: Funds provide a wide range of technology-based assistance to States, localities and tribal governments to solve and reduce crime. Funding supports several programs, including:

DNA Enhancements—$177 million is proposed for State and local crime laboratories to reduce and eventually eliminate backlogs of DNA casework samples (including crime scene and convicted offender samples). Effective backlog reduction requires both the direct defrayal of sample analysis costs to meet immediate needs, and improvements, especially automation upgrades, in forensic laboratories to increase their capacity, eventually enabling them to keep abreast of their DNA analysis without additional Federal funding. These efforts will help prosecute the guilty and exonerate the innocent. The amount requested for this effort reflects a nearly $100 million increase over the 2003 request for similar programs.

Crime Identification Technology Act Program (–$79.499 million)—Funding for this program is proposed to be eliminated, which has been severely impacted in its ability to fund innovative technologies due to the level of earmarking that has occurred in recent years.

Crime Lab Improvement Program (–$34.563 million)—This program is replaced by the expanded DNA Initiative.

5. Strengthening the Juvenile Justice System: Funds support State, local and tribal government activities to prevent juvenile delinquency and address juvenile crime through increased accountability.

Title V Incentive Grants for Local Delinquency Prevention (–$17.5 million)—Of the total $77 million requested, $12.5 million is for the Tribal Youth Program, and the balance is available for local incentive grants.

Juvenile Accountability Incentive Block Grants/Project Childsafe (–$177.993 million)—As a result of significant flaws uncovered by the PART process, funding for JAIBG is proposed to be eliminated in 2004. The 2004 President’s Budget includes $26 million for Project Childsafe, which has previously been funded under JAIBG. These resources will allow the Childsafe Program to complete its goals of making gun safety locks widely available ahead of schedule and under budget.

6. Substance Abuse: Demand Reduction: Funds provided are intended to address the problems of substance abuse-related crime, including treatment of offenders with substance abuse problems to improve their ability to transition back into society. These programs include:

Drug Courts—Funds provide assistance to States, local units of government, and to other public or private entities to develop and implement programs for non-violent offenders with substance abuse problems. These programs use the power of the courts and continuing supervision to coerce abstinence through graduated sanctions and the integrated administration of other services such as drug testing and drug treatment. The 2004 Budget proposes a $16 million increase for technical assistance and to ensure existing courts have the resources to provide the full continuum of services that have been proven effective.

Drug Prevention Demonstration Program (–$11.803 million)—This program has not produced substantive results since its inception in 1998 and is proposed for elimination.

7. Direct Services for Victims of Crime: Funds provide resources to State and local governments to ensure timely delivery of direct payments and services to victims of crime.

Public Safety Officers Benefits—Educational Assistance—An increase of $3.5 million is requested to keep pace with the increasing numbers of dependents of public safety officers, either killed or permanently disabled in the line of duty, who are seeking educational assistance.

8. Education and Training to Better Serve Victims of Crime: Funding supports a variety of services provided by public and private organizations to assist victims of crime including:

Missing and Exploited Children’s Program—Additional funds for State training and technical assistance to develop an effective, coordinated Amber Alert program nationwide. The 2004 President’s Budget proposes a $2.5 million increase.

Telemarketing Scams Against the Elderly (–$1.976 million)—Funds are proposed to be eliminated for this program in 2004. However, discretionary resources under the Crime Victims Fund are proposed to be targeted to assist victims of telemarketing fraud.

This program provides payment of death benefits to eligible survivors of public safety officers who die in the line of duty, disability payments to public safety officers who are permanently disabled as a result of injury incurred in the line of duty, and educational assistance to children or spouses of officers who are killed or permanently disabled in the line of duty. Legislation provides for an annual cost of living escalator tied to the Consumer Price Index (CPI) for death benefit payments. The USA Patriot Act of 2001 (P.L. 107-56) increased the base death and disability payments to $250,000 retroactively to January 1, 2001.

Enacted in 1998, the Workforce Investment Act (WIA), is the primary authorization for this appropriation account. The act is intended to revitalize the Nation's job training system to provide workers with the information, advice, job search assistance, and training they need to get and keep good jobs, and to provide employers with skilled workers. Funds appropriated for this account generally are available on a July to June program year basis, but for 2000 through 2003 substantial advance appropriation amounts were provided.

Legislation will be proposed for 2004 to reauthorize the Workforce Investment Act (WIA). The reauthorization proposal will increase State flexibility and target resources more effectively. For adults, the proposal will consolidate the Adult, Dislocated Worker and Employment Service State Grants into a single block grant to facilitate coordination and eliminate duplication in the provision of services to adults. For youth, the proposal will minimize overlap between the Departments of Labor (DOL) and Education by targeting all of DOL's formula resources to out-of-school youth programs and national grant resources to non-school and out-of-school youth programs that have proven effective.

Funds are available for expenditure for up to 5 years after they are provided. This program provides formula grants to States and federally administered competitive grants to local workforce boards, political subdivisions of States, and private entities to assist hard-to-employ welfare recipients to secure lasting, unsubsidized employment.

Legislation will be proposed to authorize grants to States for Re-employment Accounts for unemployed workers. These accounts would provide certain unemployed workers up to $3,000 per person to purchase job training, child care, transportation, or moving services, or to finance other expenses of finding a job. As an additional incentive to find work, an individual who gets a job within thirteen weeks of establishing the account would receive any funds remaining in the account as a re-employment bonus.

The Trade Adjustment Assistance Reform Act of 2002 (Division A of Public Law 107-210) was signed into law on August 6, 2002. This Act amended the Trade Act of 1974 to consolidate the previous Trade Adjustment Assistance (TAA) and NAFTA Transitional Adjustment Assistance (NAFTA-TAA) programs into a single, enhanced TAA program with expanded eligibility, services, and benefits. Additionally, the act provides for a program of Alternative Trade Adjustment Assistance for Older Workers. The amendments generally apply only to those workers covered by a petition for certification filed on or after November 4, 2002. Sections 123(c) and 151(b) and (c) of the Trade Adjustment Assistance Reform Act provide that workers certified under a petition filed before November 4 will continue to be eligible for services and benefits in accordance with the requirements that were applicable to the previous TAA and NAFTA-TAA programs, until such time as their eligibility under those requirements is exhausted. Therefore, the amounts appropriated to the Federal Unemployment Benefits and Allowances (FUBA) account are to provide for services and benefits to workers certified under the amended program, as well as the predecessor programs.

Trade adjustment assistance.—Adjustment assistance, including cash weekly benefits, training, job search and relocation allowances, is paid to workers as authorized by the Trade Act of 1974, as amended.

North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) transitional adjustment assistance.—Adjustment assistance, including weekly cash benefits, training, job search and relocation allowances, is paid to workers determined to be adversely affected as a result of trade with Canada and Mexico as authorized by the Trade Act of 1974, as amended.

Unemployment compensation.—State administration amounts provide administrative grants to State agencies which pay unemployment compensation to eligible workers and collect State unemployment taxes from employers. These agencies also pay unemployment benefits to former Federal personnel as well as trade adjustment assistance to eligible individuals. State administration amounts also provide administrative grants to State agencies to improve the integrity and financial stability of the unemployment compensation program through a comprehensive program, UI Performs. The purpose is to effect continuous improvement in State performance and related activities designed to assess and reduce errors and prevent fraud, waste, and abuse in the payment of unemployment compensation benefits and the collection of unemployment taxes. National activities relating to the Federal-State unemployment insurance programs are conducted through contracts or agreements with the State agencies or with non-state entities. A workload reserve is included in State administration to meet increases in the costs of administration resulting from changes in State law, or increases in the number of claims filed and claims paid. The appropriation automatically provides additional funds whenever unemployment increases above budgeted levels.

Employment service.—The public employment service is a nationwide system providing no-fee employment services to individuals who are seeking employment and employers who are seeking workers. State employment service activities are financed by allotments to States distributed under a demographically based funding formula established under the Wagner-Peyser Act, as amended. Employment service allotments are funded on a program year basis running from July 1 through June 30 of the following year. The reemployment needs of unemployed workers who lose their jobs through no fault of their own and who need extra job finding help are financed by Reemployment Services grants. These funds are distributed to States on a program year basis running from July 1 through June 30 the following year.

Employment service activities serving national needs, which includes certification of aliens for employment-based visas, are conducted through specific reimbursable agreements between the States and the Federal Government under the Wagner-Peyser Act, as amended and other legislation. Funding is also provided for amortization payments for States which had independent retirement plans prior to 1980 in their State employment service agencies.

One-stop career centers.—These funds will be used to support the joint Federal-State efforts to improve the comprehensive One-Stop system created under the Workforce Investment Act (WIA). This system provides workers and employers with quick and easy access to a wide array of enhanced career development and labor market information services. In this activity, funds will be used to implement the emerging e-government strategy for the WIA workforce system, which will improve accessibility, update the one-stop technology infrastructure, and improve the efficiency of the labor exchange and other services.

Work incentive grants.—These funds provide competitive grants to improve access to and coordination of information, benefits, and services to enable individuals with disabilities to return to work.

This account was initiated as a result of the amendments to the Emergency Unemployment Compensation law (P.L. 102–164, as amended) which currently provides for general fund financing for administrative costs related to extended benefits under the optional, total unemployment rate trigger. This account is also used to make reimbursements for a portion of benefits paid under the Temporary Extended Unemployment Compensation Act of 2002 (P.L. 107–147). These funds are transferred to a receipt account in the Unemployment Trust Fund (UTF) so that resources may be transferred to the Employment Security Administration Account in the UTF for administrative costs or to the Extended Unemployment Compensation Account for benefit costs.

This account provides repayable advances to the Black Lung Disability Trust Fund for making payments from that fund whenever its balances prove insufficient. The funding requested in this appropriation for 2004 is entirely for Black Lung. This spending authority is presented as authority to borrow in the Black Lung Disability Trust Fund.

This account may also provide advances to several other accounts to pay unemployment compensation to eligible individuals under various Federal and State unemployment compensation laws whenever the balances in the funds prove insufficient or whenever reimbursements to certain accounts, as allowed by law, are to be made. Advances made to the Federal employees compensation account in the Unemployment Trust Fund and to the Federal unemployment benefits and allowances account are nonrepayable. All other advances made to the Federal unemployment account and to the Extended unemployment compensation account (both in the Unemployment Trust Fund) are repaid, with interest, to the general fund of the Treasury.

The Black Lung Disability Trust Fund (BLDTF) revenues, which consist primarily of excise taxes on coal, are not sufficient to repay its $9 billion debt to the Treasury or to service the interest on that debt. See discussion in the Black Lung Disability Trust Fund for a full description of the Administration's proposal to remedy this problem. As a part of this proposal, the Administration will propose legislation that will provide for a one-time appropriation to permit the BLDTF to compensate the General Fund for lost interest income.

The financial transactions of the Federal-State and railroad unemployment insurance systems are made through the Unemployment Trust Fund. All State and Federal unemployment tax receipts are deposited in the trust fund and invested in Government securities until needed for benefit payments or administrative costs. States may receive repayable advances from the fund when their balances in the fund are insufficient to pay benefits. The fund may receive repayable advances from the general fund when it has insufficient balances to make advances to States or to pay the Federal share of extended benefits.

State payroll taxes pay for all regular State benefits. During periods of high State unemployment, extended benefits, financed one-half by State payroll taxes and one-half by the Federal unemployment payroll tax, are also paid. The Federal tax pays the costs of Federal and State administration of unemployment insurance and veterans employment services and 97% of the costs of the employment service. The Federal tax also pays for benefits under the Temporary Extended Unemployment Compensation program.

The Federal employees compensation account provides funds to States for unemployment compensation benefits paid to eligible former Federal civilian personnel, Postal Service employees, and ex-servicemembers. Benefits paid are reimbursed to the Federal employees compensation account by the various Federal agencies. Any additional resources necessary to assure that the account can make the required payments to States will be provided from the Advances to the Unemployment Trust Fund and other funds account.

Both the benefit payments and administrative expenses of the separate unemployment insurance program for railroad employees are paid from the Unemployment Trust Fund and receipts from the tax on railroad payrolls are deposited in the fund to meet expenses.

Legislation will be proposed for 2004 to amend the Wagner-Peyser Act and the Workforce Investment Act to consolidate the Employment Service State Grants with the Adult and Dislocated Worker programs into a single block grant to increase state flexibility, facilitate coordination, and eliminate duplication in the provision of employment services to adults.

In addition to the legislative proposal to consolidate the Employment Service and Workforce Investment Act Adult and Dislocated Worker grant programs, legislation will also be proposed to reform unemployment insurance (UI) administration. The proposal is designed to make the UI system more responsive to the needs of workers and employers by giving states flexibility and control. It would reduce current Federal payroll taxes on employers by 25 percent in 2005 and 75 percent in 2009. These changes would not affect workers' UI benefits, which are paid by State, not Federal funds.

This wholly owned government corporation administers mandatory insurance programs to prevent loss of pension benefits under covered private, defined-benefit pension plans if single-employer plans terminate or if multiemployer plans are unable to pay benefits.

The 2004 Budget proposes the elimination of a discretionary limit on administrative expenditures for the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation (PBGC). In 2004 and beyond, the Budget will provide permanent authority to finance the PBGC's administrative expenditures through revised appropriations language. This proposal will increase the PBGC's ability to manage effectively its fluctuating workload of plan terminations, while ensuring accountability. The request also includes new budget activities to strengthen the link between resources, workload, and results.

Single employer benefit payment.—The single-employer program protects about 34 million participants in about 35,000 pension plans. Under this program, a company may voluntarily seek to terminate its plan, or PBGC may seek termination under certain circumstances. The PBGC must seek termination when a plan cannot pay current benefits.

In a "standard" termination, plan assets must be sufficient to pay all benefits before the plan is allowed to end. That payment is in the form of an annuity purchased from an insurance company or a lump sum payment. After the payment is made, the PBGC guarantee ends. A plan that cannot pay all benefits may be ended by a "distress" termination, but only if the employer meets tests proving severe financial distress, for example, the likelihood that continuing the plan would force the company to shut down. If the terminated plan cannot pay at least the PBGC-guaranteed benefits, the PBGC uses its funds to ensure guaranteed benefits are paid.

Retirees receiving monthly benefits .....	403,000	500,000	525,000

Multi-employer financial assistance.—The multiemployer insurance program protects about 8.8 million participants in about 1,700 plans. Multiemployer pension plans are maintained under collectively bargained agreements involving unrelated employers, generally in the same industry. If a PBGC-insured multiemployer plan is unable to pay guaranteed benefits when due, the PBGC will provide the plan with financial assistance to continue paying guaranteed benefits, ordinarily in the form of a loan to the plan. Thirty plans are expected to receive assistance in 2004.

Pension insurance activities.—Includes pension plan premium collections, premium investments, technical assistance, and new pension plan promotion activities.

Pension plan termination.—Includes all activities related to plan termination and trusteeship; plan asset management, investment and accounting; and benefit administration services.

Operational support.—Includes the administrative, information technology infrastructure, and other shared program support for both PBGC's insurance and plan termination activities.

Without sufficient assets .....	157	110	110
Average time to replace initial with final benefit levels .....	3.3 yrs	3.0 yrs	2.9 yrs

Financing.—The primary source of financing is annual premiums paid by sponsors of ongoing covered plans, which vary according to the plans' funding level. Other sources of financing include assets from terminated plans, investment income, and amounts due PBGC from the sponsors of terminating plans. Also, PBGC is authorized to borrow up to $100 million from the U.S. Treasury.

Operating results.—The following tables show the status of PBGC's trust funds and PBGC's operating results.

Enforcement of wage and hour standards.—The Wage and Hour Division works to obtain and encourage compliance with the minimum wage, overtime, child labor, and other employment standards under the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Migrant and Seasonal Agricultural Worker Protection Act (MSPA), the Family and Medical Leave Act, certain provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act, the wage garnishment provisions in Title III of the Consumer Credit Protection Act, and the Employee Polygraph Protection Act. Prevailing wages are determined and employment standards enforced under various Government contract wage standards. In 2004, approximately 241,500 persons are expected to be aided under the Fair Labor Standards Act through securing agreements with firms to pay back wages owed to their workers. In government contract compliance actions, about 23,500 persons will be aided through securing agreements to pay wages owed to workers. Under MSPA, approximately 2,000 investigations and 900 housing inspections will be completed. In the course of all on-site investigations, investigators will routinely check for employer compliance with child labor standards and, in all “directed” (non-complaint) investigations, for compliance with the employment eligibility verification recordkeeping requirements of the Immigration and Nationality Act. The Budget maintains resources for the Wage and Hour Division which are assigned to areas where employment of illegal immigrants is most prevalent. The targeting of labor standards enforcement efforts in those industries and geographic areas where unauthorized workers are most prevalent will help to reduce the economic incentive for such illegal employment practices and will, in turn, help reduce illegal immigration.

Federal contractor Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) standards enforcement.—The Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs (OFCCP) enforces equal employment opportunity and nondiscrimination requirements of Federal contractors and subcontractors. In particular, OFCCP enforces: Executive Order 11246, which prohibits employment discrimination on the basis of race, sex, religion, color, and national origin; Section 503 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (through a memorandum of understanding with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission), which prohibit employment discrimination against individuals with disabilities; and the Vietnam Era Veterans Readjustment Assistance Act of 1974, as amended, which prohibits employment discrimination against certain protected veterans. OFCCP programs cover close to 200,000 work-sites with a total workforce of 26 million persons.

OFCCP monitors contractors’ compliance through various levels of reviews and reporting requirements. In 2004, approximately 2,060,000 individuals will be aided through 6,250 compliance reviews, 279 complaint investigations, and 2,934 other compliance actions.

OFCCP also encourages and supports voluntary compliance by providing compliance assistance to covered contractors. OFCCP has implemented a compliance assistance program available to all Federal contractors and subcontractors. For example, as part of its compliance assistance program, OFCCP provides technical assistance in understanding regulatory requirements to contractors through Industrial Liaison Groups. In addition, OFCCP has placed important compliance assistance information on the Internet. OFCCP also ensures that Federal contractors and subcontractors are provided linkages to recruitment sources for hiring and advancement of minorities, women, protected veterans and individuals with disabilities. OFCCP honors Federal contractors and linkage organizations through the Secretary of Labor Opportunity Awards and the EVE/EPIC program for their outstanding compliance initiatives.

Federal programs for workers’ compensation.—Under this activity, the Employment Standards Administration administers the Federal Employees’ Compensation Act, the Longshore and Harbor Workers’ Compensation Act, the Energy Employees Occupational Illness Compensation Program Act, and the benefit provisions of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act of 1977. These programs ensure that eligible disabled and injured workers or their survivors receive compensation and medical benefits and a range of services including rehabilitation, supervision of medical care, and technical and advisory counseling to which they are entitled. OWCP also monitors State workers’ compensation laws.

The Administration has included in the 2004 Budget, an amendment to the Federal Employees’ Compensation Act (FECA) that would allow the Department of Labor to add an administrative surcharge to the amount billed to Federal agencies for their FECA compensation costs, thereby shifting FECA administrative costs to agencies in proportion to their program usage. This proposal is discussed in further detail in the Special Benefits account narrative.

Program direction and support.—This activity directs the various units that support the Employment Standards Administration’s operating programs and helps ensure effective management of these programs through planning, personnel management, financial management, and Federal/State liaison programs. Major goals in 2004 will include continued efforts to eliminate internal fraud, waste, and mismanagement; improvement of management information, automated data processing, and program and fiscal accountability; and legislative and regulatory improvements.

Labor-management standards.—The Office of Labor-Management Standards (OLMS) receives and discloses statutorily required reports required of unions and others, including union financial reports; audits union financial records and investigates possible embezzlements of union funds; conducts union officer election investigations; supervises reruns of union officer elections pursuant to voluntary settlements or after court determinations that elections were not conducted in accordance with the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act; and administers the statutory program to certify employee protection provisions under various federally-sponsored transportation programs. In 2004, OLMS plans enhanced efforts to advance union financial integrity protections, primarily through increased union audits and compliance assistance efforts. OLMS expects to process 36,000 reports and conduct a total of 4,582 investigations, audits, and supervised elections.

Federal Employees' Compensation Act benefits.—The Federal Employees' Compensation Act program provides monetary and medical benefits to Federal workers who sustain work-related injury or disease. Not all benefits are paid by the program, since the first 45 days of disability are usually covered by keeping injured workers in pay status with their employing agencies (the continuation-of-pay period). In 2004, 155,000 injured federal workers or their survivors will file claims; 55,500 will receive long-term wage replacement benefits for job-related injuries, diseases, or deaths. Most of the costs of this account are charged back to the beneficiaries' employing agencies.

The Administration has included in the 2004 Budget an amendment to the Federal Employees' Compensation Act that would allow the Department of Labor to add an administrative surcharge to the amount billed to Federal agencies for their FECA compensation costs, thereby shifting FECA administrative costs from the Department to federal agencies in proportion to their program usage. The 2004 level for each affected agency includes funding for the estimated 2004 surcharge. In subsequent years, agencies dependent upon an annual appropriation would include in their annual budget estimates the total amount of the Chargeback bills, which would include the surcharge amounts. The Chargeback bills are sent by ESA to Federal agencies in mid-August of each year covering each agency's workers' compensation costs from July 1 of the previous year through June 30 of the current year. The legislation would produce estimated government-wide benefit savings of more than $80 million over ten years.

Longshore and harbor workers' compensation benefits.—Under the Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, as amended, the Federal Government pays from direct appropriations one-half of the increased benefits provided by the amendments for persons on the rolls prior to 1972. The remainder is provided from the special fund which is financed by private employers assessed at the beginning of each calendar year for their proportionate share of these payments.

The Administration will propose legislation to strengthen program integrity and make the Act more equitable and easier to administer by: 1) converting compensation for new injuries or new claims for disability to a lower retirement-level benefit at age 65; 2) moving the 3-day waiting period, during which an injured worker is not entitled to compensation, to the point immediately after an injury; 3) changing the way schedule awards are paid to allow uniform lump-sum payments to federal employees eligible for such awards; 4) replacing augmented compensation for dependents with a slightly higher basic benefit level for all claimants; 5) allowing OWCP to recover the costs of continuation of pay (COP), a large annual expenditure for federal agencies, from responsible third parties; and 6) updating benefit levels for funeral expenses and disfigurement resulting from work injury.

Energy Employees' Compensation Act benefits.—The Department of Labor is delegated responsibility to adjudicate and administer claims for benefits under the Energy Employees Occupational Illness Compensation Program Act of 2000. In July 2001, the Program began accepting claims from employees or survivors of employees of the Department of Energy (DOE) and of private companies under contract with DOE who suffer from a radiation-related cancer, beryllium-related disease, or chronic silicosis as a result of their work in producing or testing nuclear weapons. The Act authorizes a lump-sum payment of $150,000 and reimbursement of medical expenses.

DOE is responsible for providing exposure histories at employment facilities covered under the Act, as well as other employment information. DOJ assists claimants who have been awarded compensation under the Radiation Exposure Compensation Act (RECA) to file for additional compensation, including medical benefits, under EEOICPA.

Title IV of the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act authorizes monthly benefits to coal miners disabled from coal workers' pneumoconiosis (black lung) and to their widows and certain other dependents. Part B of the Act assigned the processing and paying of claims filed between December 30, 1969 (when the program originated) and June 30, 1973 to the Social Security Administration (SSA). P.L. 107-275 transferred Part B claims processing and payment operations from SSA to the Department of Labor's (DOL) Employment Standards Administration (ESA), Office of Workers' Compensation Programs, with an effective date of February 1, 2003.

This fund was established to provide for the accumulation of funds to meet the Panama Canal Commission's obligations to defray costs of workers' compensation which will accrue pursuant to the Federal Employees' Compensation Act (FECA). On December 31, 1999, the Commission was dissolved as set forth in the Panama Canal Treaty of 1977, and the liability of the Commission for payments beyond that date did not end with its termination. The establishment of this fund, into which funds were deposited on a regular basis by the Commission, was in conjunction with the transfer of the administration of the FECA program from the Commission to the Department of Labor effective January 1, 1989.

The trust fund consists of all moneys collected from the coal mine industry under the provisions of the Black Lung Benefits Revenue Act of 1981, as amended by the Consolidated Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1985, in the form of an excise tax on mined coal. These moneys are expended to pay compensation, medical, and survivor benefits to eligible miners and their survivors, where mine employment terminated prior to 1970 or where no mine operator can be assigned liability. In addition, the fund pays all administrative costs incurred in the operation of part C of the Black Lung program. The fund is administered jointly by the Secretaries of Labor, the Treasury, and Health and Human Services. The Benefits Revenue Act provides for repayable advances to the fund in the event fund resources will not be adequate to meet program obligations. Such advances are to be repaid with interest. The outstanding debt at the end of each year was: 1981, $1,510 million; 1982, $1,793 million; 1983, $2,151 million; 1984, $2,497 million; 1985, $2,833 million; 1986, $2,884 million; 1987, $2,952 million; 1988, $2,993 million; 1989, $3,049 million; 1990, $3,049 million; 1991, $3,266 million; 1992, $3,606 million; 1993, $3,949 million; 1994, $4,363 million; 1995, $4,738 million; 1996, $5,112 million; 1997, $5,487 million; 1998, $5,857 million; 1999, $6,259 million; and 2000, $6,749 million; 2001, $7,254 million; and 2002, $7,719 million. It is estimated to be $8,160 million in 2003 and $8,627 million in 2004 if the refinancing proposal is not enacted.

The Black Lung Disability Trust Fund (BLDTF) revenues, which consist primarily of excise taxes on coal, are not sufficient to repay the over $8 billion debt it owes to the Treasury or to service the interest on that debt. Under current conditions, this indebtedness will continue to grow, with the BLDTF never becoming solvent, even when benefit outlays have declined to a level approaching zero. To solve this problem, the Administration will propose legislation that will: (1) authorize a refinancing (debt restructuring) of the outstanding BLDTF debt, (2) extend at current rates BLDTF excise tax levels (set to expire in January 2014) until solvency is attained, and (3) provide for a one-time appropriation to compensate the General Fund for the lost interest income.

The trust funds consist of amounts received from employers for the death of an employee where no person is entitled to compensation for such death, for fines and penalty payments, and pursuant to an annual assessment of the industry, for the general expenses of the fund under the Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, as amended.

These trust funds are available for payments of additional compensation for second injuries. When a second injury is combined with a previous disability and results in increased permanent partial disability, permanent total disability, or death, the employer's liability for benefits is limited to a specified period of compensation payments after which the fund provides continuing compensation benefits. In addition, the fund pays one-half of the increased benefits provided under the Longshore and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, as amended, for persons on the rolls prior to 1972. Maintenance payments are made to disabled employees undergoing vocational rehabilitation to enable them to return to remunerative occupations, and the costs of necessary rehabilitation services not otherwise available to disabled workers are defrayed. Payments are made in cases where other circumstances preclude payment by an employer and to provide medical, surgical, and other treatment in disability cases where there has been a default by the insolvency of an uninsured employer.

Safety and health standards.—This activity provides for the development, promulgation, review and evaluation of feasible occupational safety and health standards and guidance. Before any standard is proposed or promulgated, a determination is made that: (1) a significant risk of serious injury or health impairment exists; (2) the standard will reduce this risk; (3) the standard is economically and technologically feasible; and (4) the standard is economically and technologically feasible when compared with alternative regulatory proposals providing equal levels of protection. Regulatory reform efforts include consensus-based rulemaking, development of common sense regulations, rewriting existing standards so they are understandable to those affected by them, and regulatory and non-regulatory process improvements.

Enforcement.—This activity provides for the enforcement of workplace standards promulgated under the Occupational Safety and Health (OSHA) Act of 1970 through the physical inspection of worksites, and by fostering the voluntary cooperation of employers and employees. Programs are targeted to the investigation of claims of imminent danger and employee complaints, investigation of fatal and catastrophic accidents, programmed inspections of firms with injury-illness rates that are above the national average, and special emphasis inspections for serious safety and health hazards. OSHA's enforcement strategy includes a selective targeting of inspections and related compliance activities to specific high hazard industries and worksites.

State programs.—This activity assists states in assuming responsibility for administering occupational safety and health programs under State plans approved by the Secretary. Under section 23 of the OSHA Act, matching grants of up to fifty percent of total program costs are made to States that meet the Act's criteria for establishing and implementing State programs which are at least as effective as the Federal program. State programs, like their Federal counterpart, provide a mix of enforcement, outreach, training and compliance assistance activities.

Technical support.—This activity provides specialized technical expertise and advice in support of a wide range of program areas, including construction, standards setting, variance determinations, compliance assistance, and enforcement. Areas of expertise include laboratory accreditation, industrial hygiene, occupational health nursing, occupational medicine, chemical analysis, equipment calibration, and safety engineering.

Compliance assistance—Federal.—This activity supports a range of cooperative programs, training, and outreach that provide compliance assistance in improving workplace safety and health, with particular emphasis on small business. OSHA works with employers and employees through Voluntary Protection Programs recognizing and promoting effective safety and health management; partnerships focusing on the development of extended cooperative relationships; and alliances committing organizations to collaborative efforts and improving their job safety and health programs. Occupational safety and health training is provided at the OSHA Training Institute and associated Education Centers throughout the country. Compliance and technical assistance materials are prepared and disseminated to the public through various means, including the Internet.

State consultation grants.—This activity supports 90 percent Federally-funded cooperative agreements with designated State agencies to provide free on-site consultation to employers upon request. State agencies tailor workplans to specific needs in each State while maximizing their impact on injury and illness rates in smaller establishments. These projects offer a variety of services, including safety and health program assessment and assistance, hazard identification and control, and training of employers and their employees.

Training grants.—This activity supports safety and health training grants to organizations that provide training and education and develop educational materials for employers and employees. Grants address safety and health education needs related to specific topics and industries identified by the agency.

Safety and health statistics.—This activity supports the information technology infrastructure, management information, and statistical basis for OSHA's programs and field operations. These are provided through an integrated data network, and statistical analysis and review. OSHA administers and maintains the recordkeeping system that serves as the foundation for the BLS survey on occupational injuries and illnesses and provides guidance on recordkeeping requirements to both the public and private sectors.

Executive direction and administration.—This activity supports executive direction, planning and evaluation, management support, legislative liaison, interagency affairs, administrative services, and budgeting and financial control.

Note: The Program Evaluation and Information Resources (PEIR) activity, added in the FY 2004 Budget, consists of funds formerly spread among other MSHA activities. Comparative funding for PEIR is as follows: in fiscal year 2002, $14 million; and in fiscal year 2003, $17 million.

Enforcement.—The Enforcement strategy in 2004 will be an integrated approach that links all actions to preventing occupational injuries and illness. These include inspection of mines as mandated by the Federal Mine Safety and Health Act of 1977, special emphasis initiatives that focus on persistent safety and health hazards, promulgation of safety and health standards, investigation of serious accidents, and on-site education and training. The desired outcome of these enforcement efforts is to lower fatality and injury rates.

Assessments.—This activity assesses and collects civil monetary penalties for violations of safety and health standards.

Educational policy and development.—This activity develops and coordinates MSHA's mine safety and health education and training policies, and provides classroom instruction at the National Academy for MSHA personnel, other governmental personnel, and the mining industry. States provide mine health and safety training materials, and provide technical assistance through the State Grants program.

Technical support.—This activity applies engineering and scientific expertise through field and laboratory forensic investigations to resolve technical problems associated with implementation of the Mine Act. Technical support administers a fee program to approve equipment, materials, and explosives for use in mines and performs field and laboratory audits of equipment previously approved by MSHA. It also collects and analyzes data relative to the cause, frequency, and circumstances of accidents.

Program evaluation and information resources (PEIR).—This new activity provides program evaluation and information technology resource management services for the agency. Additionally, PEIR is responsible for meeting the requirements of the Government Performance and Results Act (GPRA) and developing MSHA's performance plan and Annual Performance Report.

Program administration.—This activity performs general administrative functions.

State administration.—The Disabled Veterans' Outreach Program specialists provide outreach services and intensive employment services to meet the employment needs of eligible veterans. Priority of service is given to special disabled veterans, disabled veterans, and other eligible veterans. In providing these services, the maximum emphasis is on meeting the employment needs of economically or educationally disadvantaged veterans. Local Veterans' Employment Representatives conduct outreach to area employers to develop employment opportunities for veterans. They also facilitate employment, training, and placement services to veterans. In addition, each Local Veterans' Employment Representative is administratively responsible to the manager of the employment service delivery system to provide quarterly reports to the manager of such office and to the Director of Veterans' Employment and Training regarding compliance with Federal

That program ensures the provision of labor-market and employment-related information and other services to military service members separating from active duty to expedite and facilitate their transition from military to civilian employment. Administers programs designed to help homeless veterans become gainfully employed and to help veterans with service-connected disabilities and others with significant employment barriers obtain training and employment assistance. Promotes the concept of hiring veterans to employers, particularly Federal contractors. Provides information and investigates complaints to help veterans, reservists and members of the National Guard obtain employment and reemployment rights, including helping veterans obtain veterans' preference in Federal employment.

National Veterans Employment and Training Services Institute.—Administers the development of competency-based training courses and delivers training to Federal and State providers of services to veterans through a contract.

Homeless veterans reintegration program.—Provides grants to States or other public entities and non-profits, including faith-based organizations, to operate employment programs to reach out to homeless veterans and help them become employed. Coordinates with the Department of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development to promote multi-agency-funded programs and integration of the different services needed by homeless veterans. Grants are provided for both urban and rural areas.

Veterans workforce investment program.—Provides grants mostly to public entities for training, retraining and employment opportunities for veterans most at risk, including those with the service-connected disabilities, those with significant barriers to employment, and recently separated veterans. Provides smaller grant to non-profit organizations, including faith-based organizations, to conduct pilot or demonstration employment programs for hard-to-serve veterans.

the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency and U.S. Information Agency (excluding broadcasting activities) into the Department beginning in 2000.

Executive direction and policy formulation.—This activity identifies resources which provide sound management through the direction of the Secretary and with the assistance of staff offices, specialized offices, and functional and regional bureaus, for policy formulation and in pursuit of regional and global foreign policy objectives including the hosting of various international conferences and meetings in the United States and abroad.

Conduct of diplomatic relations.—Resources of this activity are used to provide for: the political and economic reporting and analysis of interests to the United States; the representation of U.S. diplomatic and national interests to countries abroad; and the bilateral and multilateral negotiation of our foreign policy objectives, including the hosting of and participation in various international conferences, meetings and other multilateral activities in the United States and abroad. These resources also fund the conduct of U.S. diplomatic policy through political and multilateral affairs, economic and social affairs, international budgetary and management affairs, and participation in and hosting various international conferences. Resources also fund the management of U.S. participation in arms control, nonproliferation, and disarmament negotiations and other verification and compliance activities, in addition to funds otherwise available for such purposes.

Conduct of consular relations.—Activities included are: overseas and American citizen services; the issuance of passports to U.S. citizens both here and abroad; and, implementing a coordinated strategy to improve consular systems and processes in support of U.S. border security including sharing data with the Department of Homeland Security, the Department of Justice, the Intelligence Community and the Treasury Department. Visa services involve: the issuance, denial, and adjudication of immigrant and non-immigrant visas; refugee processing; and visa fraud detection and investigation. American citizen services include the issuance of passports, emergency and other assistance to American citizens abroad. Passport services include the issuance of passports in the United States and U.S. missions abroad and passport fraud detection and investigation.

Conduct of Public Diplomacy.—As a result of the merger of USIA into the Department of State in 2000, resources in this appropriation will support the conduct of international informational, educational, cultural and exchange programs of the United States and advising the President and the National Security Council on these matters. Formerly, these activities were carried out by the U.S. Information Agency. The resources in this activity are used to define, explain and advocate U.S. policies abroad and to seek to increase knowledge and understanding among foreign audiences of U.S. society and its values. Department posts also administer exchange-of-persons programs and conduct informational and cultural activities.

Professional development and training.—The professional development and training activity is a continuous process by which the Department ensures that its professionals have the skills, experience, and judgment to fulfill its functions at all levels. Training programs are designed to provide employees with the specific functional area and language skills needed for the conduct of foreign relations in the Department and abroad.

Information management.—This activity identifies resources that are used for the effective and efficient creation, collection, processing, transmission, dissemination, use, storage, and disposition of information required for the formulation and exe-cutation of foreign policy and for the conduct of daily business. Its requirements are driven by the informational needs of the President, the Secretary of State, the Department and its 260 missions, and approximately fifty Government agencies. Components of the information management activity include: telecommunications; classified information handling; unclassified data and word processing; pouch, mail, and publishing services; administration of an electronic and archival records management program; document classification and declassification; information security; information technology capital planning; and, provision of information management services, as appropriate, to all branches of the Government and to the public.

In all of these programs, responsibilities range from policy setting to planning and design, implementation, operation, and maintenance. The Department manages large computer and communications centers to provide administrative, consular, economic, and political information. The computer systems support worldwide consular applications, financial management systems, management of building programs, and intelligence research systems.

Security.—This activity identifies resources that are used in meeting security and counter-terrorism responsibilities, including both foreign and domestic. Covered in this activity are: security operations; engineering services, which relate to the technical defense of U.S. Government personnel and establishments against electronic and physical attack; homeland security related activities; protection of dignitaries; and physical security operations.

Medical.—This activity encompasses medical programs for the Department of State, the Foreign Service, and other U.S. Government departments and agencies overseas. Services are provided in Washington as well as at missions worldwide and cover more than 90,000 employees, dependents and local hires.

Administration and staff activities.—These activities include normal domestic and overseas administrative services directly related to Department programs. They include:

- The direction and control of administration and management operations, representing and negotiating U.S. Government administrative matters with foreign officials, and reviewing and setting resource levels and priorities for various programs and bureaus financed by this appropriation.
- The budgeting, financial planning, and fiscal operations for bureaus and offices financed by this appropriation and most federal agencies resident abroad.
- The management, recruitment, and performance evaluation of Foreign and Civil Service employees (particularly the recruitment of qualified minorities, including Hispanics and African Americans) and Foreign Service National staff.
- The contracting and procurement of services and supplies, maintenance and repair of equipment and physical property (including the operation and routine maintenance of property directly leased or owned by the Department), vehicle operation, and shipping and customs services.

Under the direction of the Secretary of State, the overall mission of the Bureau of Overseas Buildings Operations is to ensure that U.S. Diplomatic and Consular Missions abroad are provided safe, secure and functional facilities which will assist them in achieving the foreign policy objectives of the United States. Specific program functions in support of the mission include: providing guidance concerning overseas facilities to posts, regional bureaus and other foreign affairs agencies; providing expert space and facilities planning to posts; overseeing the design, construction and renovation of diplomatic facilities; incorporating security features into overseas and domestic facilities and ensuring the security of facilities during construction or renovation; establishing standards and policies for overseas housing; developing, in conjunction with posts, maintenance programs for post facilities and keeping inventory of maintenance requirements; ensuring the safety of the building occupants through the development of fire/life safety programs; and providing real property management that establishes priorities for the acquisition and disposal of real property, determines the best use for proceeds from the sale of real property, and maintains an inventory of U.S. Government real property holdings overseas. The Department intends to initiate a capital security cost sharing surcharge pilot program in 2004. The purpose of the program is to have all agencies (including State) contribute to the capital costs of constructing overseas facilities. By February 2003, OMB will, in consultation with the State Department, form a working group to review the proportionality of costs and space overseas. The Administration has tasked each Federal agency with staff overseas to evaluate their current staffing levels and staffing plans for the future in order to assess a prospective charge per agency that is more fair and equitable in 2005. Each agency will then be charged this fee in 2005 based on their revised overseas staffing total and by the policies agreed to by the working group.

The objective of the Asset Management Program is to obtain the best use of diplomatic and consular properties overseas through sale, exchange, or redevelopment. Most often, this involves the sale of surplus or underutilized properties and reinvestment of the proceeds in properties that provide a greater return to the U.S. Government. Balances realized are slated for long-term capital investment that contains the growth of U.S. Government leasehold requirements (by acquiring property that reduces the need for leased facilities) or that addresses a high-priority need for new construction in lieu of appropriated resources.

This appropriation also provides for capital expenditures necessary to preserve, maintain, repair, and plan for buildings that are owned or directly leased by the Department of State in the United States and, in addition to funds otherwise made available, the renovation of the Main State building and Blair House.

This is a new retirement fund for Locally Employed Staff (LES) employed by the Department of State and other Foreign Affairs agencies. The purpose of the fund is to accumulate and distribute US Government contributions for end-of-service benefits for LES at overseas US missions where it has been determined that participation in the local social security system is not in the public interest. State will determine which countries will be eligible for participating in the fund. Upon separation, payments will be made from the fund as a lump sum paid directly to the employee.

This fund, authorized by section 13 of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956 (22 U.S.C. 2684), finances on a reimbursable basis, certain administrative services, such as printing and reproduction, editorial material, motor pool operations and dispatch agencies operations, inter-agency cooperative administrative support services, and expenses of carrying out the Foreign Missions Act, including any acquisitions of property under section 204(f) of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956 (22 U.S.C. 4304(f)).

Using the Working Capital Fund, the International Cooperative Administrative Support Services (ICASS) program was fully implemented in 1998. ICASS restructures overseas administrative support activities to allow more decision-making and managerial participation by all participating agencies, more equitable cost distribution, and incentives for efficient provision of services. Under ICASS, each agency represented at an overseas post chooses the services it wishes to receive and pays a proportional share of the cost of those services. Working through inter-agency councils at each overseas post, all agencies have a say in determining post administrative budgets and defining service standards, as well as reviewing costs and vendor performance.

The Federal Aviation Reauthorization Act of 1996 (P.L. 104-264) authorized the collection of user fees for services provided by the FAA to aircraft that neither take off nor land in the United States, commonly known as overflight fees. The Act permanently appropriated the first $50 million of such fees for the Essential Air Service program and rural airport improvements. To the extent that fee collections fall below $50 million, the law required the difference to be covered by Federal Aviation Administration funds. The FY 2004 budget proposes a $50 million program to be fully financed from overflight fees. The budget proposes a general provision to restructure the program.

The Working Capital Fund finances common administrative services that are centrally performed in the interest of economy and efficiency in the Department. The fund is financed through agreements with the Department of Transportation operating administrations and other customers.

In FY 1997, the Working Capital Fund was renamed the Transportation Administrative Services Center (TASC) to reflect the expanded level of services and the new TASC organization. In FY 2003 the functions of TASC were realigned to place service providers in the same organization as the offices responsible for service policies. The realignment will promote greater program efficiency, make the best use of employee expertise, allow the Department to identify and eliminate redundancies and reduce organizational layers, and provide the best possible value to the government by consolidating and delivering services more efficiently. For FY 2004, the TASC account is renamed to the previously titled Working Capital Fund.

Through 1997, this program was funded from the Airport and Airway Trust Fund. Starting in 1998 the FAA reauthorization funded it as a mandatory program supported by overflight fees under the Essential Air Service and Rural Airport Improvement Fund. In 2003, in addition to mandatory funding supported by overflight fees, direct appropriations from the Airport and Airway Trust Fund to the Payments to Air Carriers program were enacted to meet the needs of the essential air service program. No direct appropriations for this account are being requested in 2004.

For 2004, the Budget requests $7,591 million. These funds will be used to continue to promote aviation safety and efficiency. In particular, the Budget increases the number of air traffic controllers and safety inspectors and provides more funding for critical safety oversight initiatives and operational improvements designed to increase capacity and reduce delays. The Budget also provides funding to maintain internal security and the Hazardous Material program—a safety program in the FAA.

The Federal Aviation Reauthorization Act of 1996 (P.L. 104-264) authorized the collection of user fees for services provided by the FAA to aircraft that neither take off nor land in the United States, commonly known as overflight fees. In addition, the Act permanently appropriated the first $50 million of such fees, or other FAA resources in the event that collections are lower than $50 million, to be used for the Essential Air Service (EAS) program and rural airport improvements. Amounts collected in excess of $50 million are permanently appropriated for authorized expenses of the FAA. The Budget estimates that $33 million in overflight fees will be collected in 2004, and transferred to the Essential Air Service. As collections are estimated to be below required EAS funding, the Budget proposes that $17 million in EAS financing will be provided from balances of previously collected overflight fees.

The fund provides direct support for the aviation insurance program (chapter 443 of title 49, U.S. Code). Income to the fund is derived from premium collections for premium insurance coverage issued, income from authorized investments, and binder fees for nonpremium coverage issued. The binders provide aviation insurance coverage for U.S. air carrier aircraft used in connection with certain Government contract operations by the Department of Defense and the Department of State.

As amended by the Homeland Security Act (P.L. 107-296), the Air Transportation System Safety and Stabilization Act (P.L. 107-42) expanded the aviation insurance program to cover U.S. air carriers for domestic operations, and limited air carrier third party liability to $100 million for the period September 22, 2001-December 31, 2003 for losses that the Secretary of Transportation certifies are caused by a terrorist act. Because third party liability coverage above $50 million has not been reasonably available commercially, FAA has been issuing such coverage for civil aircraft operations for losses so certified, above $50 million and up to $100 million, at premiums set by the Secretary. In addition, FAA has been issuing coverage at premiums set by the Secretary, for civil aircraft operations for war risk losses other than those so certified: (i) for hull losses, this coverage is at fair market value; (ii) for death, injury, or property loss to passengers or crew, the limit is the same as that of the air carrier's coverage before September 11, 2001; and (iii) for third party liability, the limit is twice that of such coverage.

In 1997, the Federal Aviation Administration established a franchise fund to finance operations where the costs for goods and services provided are charged to the users on a reimbursable basis. The fund improves organizational efficiency and provides better support to FAA's internal and external customers. The activities included in this franchise fund are: training, accounting, payroll, travel, duplicating services, multi-media services, information technology, material management (logistics), and aircraft maintenance.

Section 9502 of Title 26, U.S. Code, provides for amounts equivalent to the funds received in the Treasury for the passenger ticket tax and certain other taxes paid by airport and airway users to be transferred to the Airport and Airway Trust Fund. In turn, appropriations are authorized from this fund to meet obligations for airport improvement grants, FAA facilities and equipment, research, and operations, and for the Bureau of Transportation Statistics Office of Airline Information.

Note.—Improve reliability of the national air space system has an estimated contingent liability of $63 million (present value) associated with the FAA's long-term lease of facilities at the Mike Monroney Aeronautical Center, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. This contingent liability will be funded through this account.

Funding in this account provides for the national airspace system equipment, facility, and related applied research activities. For 2004, the majority of proposed funding is allocated to the following performance goal areas of the FAA: improve aviation safety; improve efficiency to the air traffic control system; increase capacity of the national airspace system; improve reliability of the national airspace system; and, improve efficiency of mission support.

FEDERAL HIGHWAY ADMINISTRATION

The Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century (TEA-21), which authorized most surface transportation programs from 1998 through 2003, expires September 30, 2003. The President's Budget and reauthorization proposals build and improve upon TEA-21's successes. The President's Budget continues transportation infrastructure investment to increase the mobility and productivity of the Nation, strengthens transportation safety programs, and provides focus on program efficiencies, oversight, and accountability.

Title 23 U.S.C. ("Highways") and other supporting legislation provide authority for the various programs of the Federal Highway Administration designed to improve highways throughout the Nation.

In 2004, the Federal Highway Administration continues major programs, including the Surface Transportation Program, the National Highway System, Interstate Maintenance, Highway Bridge Replacement and Rehabilitation Program, Congestion Mitigation and Air Quality Improvement Program, and Transportation Infrastructure Finance and Innovation programs. In addition, the Budget proposes a new $1 billion Infrastructure Performance and Maintenance Program targeted at "ready-to-go" highway projects. The program will use the Surface Transportation Program funding formula.

In summary, the 2004 budget consists of $30,412 million in new budget authority and $29,675 million in outlays. The following table reflects program levels (obligations). Because project selection is determined by the States, the 2003 and 2004 program levels are estimates.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1968 authorized the establishment of a right-of-way revolving fund. This fund was used to make cash advances to States for the purpose of purchasing right-of-way parcels in advance of highway construction and thereby preventing the inflation of land prices from significantly increasing construction costs.

This program was terminated by TEA-21 but will continue to be shown for reporting purposes as loan balances remain outstanding. The purchase of right-of-way is an eligible expense of the Federal-aid program and therefore a separate program is unnecessary. No further obligations are proposed in 2004.

The Highway Revenue Act of 1956, as amended, provides for the transfer from the General Fund to the Highway Trust Fund of revenue from the motor fuel tax and certain other taxes paid by highway users. The Secretary of the Treasury estimates the amounts to be transferred. In turn, appropriations are authorized from this fund to meet expenditures for Federal-aid highways and other programs as specified by law.

This table shows the status of the resources of the Highway Trust Fund relative to the obligational authority that has been made available for programs financed by the trust fund. The encumbered balance indicates the degree to which the outstanding obligational authority exceeds the estimated cash balances of the fund each year. Under the laws governing the Highway Trust Fund, the amount of obligational authority available at any time cannot exceed the actual cash balances plus the amount of receipts estimated to be collected during the following two years; for most other trust funds obligational authority is limited to the actual receipts of the fund.

The Administration proposes the redirection to the highway account of the Highway Trust Fund of the 2.5 cents per gallon of the excise tax on gasohol currently deposited in the General Fund of the Treasury. This change would be effective October 1, 2003.

The status of the fund is as follows:

The Federal-Aid Highways (FAH) program is designed to aid in the development, operations and management of an intermodal transportation system that is economically efficient, environmentally sound, provides the foundation for the Nation to compete in the global economy, and moves people and goods safely.

All programs included within FAH are financed from the Highway Trust Fund and most are distributed via apportionments and allocations to States. Liquidating cash appropriations are subsequently requested to fund outlays resulting from obligations incurred under contract authority. The budget proposes to fund most programs from within the Federal-Aid Highway obligation limitation. Emergency Relief and a portion of the Minimum Guarantee program ($639 million) will be exempt from the limitation.

The FAH program is funded by contract authority in legislation currently provided through 2003 by the Transportation Equity Act for the 21st Century (TEA-21).

Infrastructure performance and maintenance.—The Administration proposes a new highway performance and maintenance initiative funded at $1 billion per year for six years. This initiative would be based on the Surface Transportation Program funding formula and targeted to “ready-to-go” highway projects that address traffic congestion and improve infrastructure conditions. States would be required to commit funds in the first half of each fiscal year. Failure to obligate funds quickly would trigger a reallocation of these funds among states.

Surface transportation program (STP).—STP funds may be used by States and localities for projects on any Federal-aid highway, bridge projects on any public road, transit capital projects, and intracity and intercity bus terminals and facilities. A portion of the funds reserved for rural areas may be used on rural minor collectors. Ten percent of STP funds are set aside for transportation enhancements and State suballocations are provided, including the special rule for areas less than 5,000 population.

National highway system (NHS).—The NHS program provides funding for a designated National Highway System consisting of roads that are of primary Federal interest. The NHS consists of the current Interstate, other rural principal arterials, urban freeways and connecting urban principal arterials, and facilities on the Defense Department’s designated Strategic Highway Network, and roads connecting the NHS to intermodal facilities. Legislation designating the 161,000 mile system was enacted in 1995 and TEA-21 added to the system the highways and connections to transportation facilities identified in the May 24, 1996 report to Congress.

Interstate maintenance (IM).—The IM program finances projects to rehabilitate, restore, resurface and reconstruct the Interstate system. Reconstruction that increases capacity, other than HOV lanes, is not eligible for IM funds.

Emergency relief.—The Emergency Relief (ER) program provides funds for the repair or reconstruction of Federal-aid highways and bridges and Federally-owned roads and bridges which have suffered serious damage as the result of natural disasters or catastrophic failures. The ER program supplements the commitment of resources by States, their political subdivisions, or Federal agencies to help pay for unusually heavy expenses resulting from extraordinary conditions. The Administration will propose to increase the annual authorization for the ER program contained in title 23, U.S.C. from $100 million to $200 million.

Bridge replacement and rehabilitation.—The bridge program enables States to respond to the problem of unsafe and inadequate bridges. The funds are available for use on all bridges, including those on roads functionally classified as rural minor collectors and as local.

Congestion mitigation and air quality improvement program (CMAQ).—The CMAQ program directs funds toward transportation projects and programs to help meet and maintain national ambient air quality standards for ozone, carbon monoxide, and particulate matter. A minimum 1/2 percent of the apportionment is guaranteed to each State.

Federal lands.—This category funds improvement for forest highways; park roads and parkways; Indian reservation roads; refuge roads; and recreation roads. Roads funded under this program are open to public travel. State and local roads (29,500 miles) that provide important access within the National Forest System are designated Forest Highways. These roads should not be confused with the Forest Development Roads, which are under the jurisdiction of the Forest Service. Park Roads and Parkways (8,000 miles) are owned by the National Park Service and provide access within the National Park System. The Indian Reservation Roads program consists of the Bureau of Indian Affairs road system (25,000 miles) and State and local roads (25,000 miles) that provide access within Indian lands. There are approximately 4,250 miles which are under the jurisdiction of the Fish and Wildlife Service. Refuge Roads consist of public roads that provide access to or within the National Wildlife Refuge System.

Transportation infrastructure finance and innovation (TIFIA) program.—The TIFIA credit program will provide funds to assist in the development of surface transportation projects of regional and national significance. The goal is to develop major infrastructure facilities through greater non-Federal and private sector participation, building on public willingness to dedicate future revenues or user fees in order to receive transportation benefits earlier than would be possible under traditional funding techniques. The TIFIA program provides secured loans, loan guarantees, and standby lines of credit which can be used to secure junior lien debt and thus enhance a project's overall debt obligations.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

Federal highway research, technology and education.—The research, technology, and education program develops new transportation technology that can be applied nationwide. Activities include surface transportation research, including Intelligent Transportation Systems; development and deployment, training and education; University Transportation Research; and funding for State research, development, and technology implementation.

Miscellaneous.—This category includes Scenic Byways, Highway Use Tax Evasion Projects, National Recreational Trails, Value Pricing, Ferry Boats, Commonwealth of Puerto Rico Highway Program, Environmental Streamlining, Miscellaneous Studies, Reports, and Projects, Border and Corridor programs, Transportation and Community and System Preservation, and programs that may require modification. The details of the Administration's reauthorization proposal will be submitted to Congress following the transmittal of the Budget. Funding for some of these initiatives have been included under Reauthorization Initiatives and Other Programs for FY 2004.

Motor Carrier Safety Grants are funded at $223 million in 2003, of which $165 million is dedicated to Motor Carrier Safety Assistance Program (MCSAP) state grants. Grants will be used to support compliance reviews in states; identify and apprehend traffic violators; conduct roadside inspections; and support safety audits on new entrant carriers. State safety enforcement efforts at both the southern and northern borders are funded at a total of $32 million to ensure that all points of entry into the U.S. are fortified with comprehensive safety measures. In addition, $22 million is included to improve State commercial driver's license (CDL) oversight activities to prevent unqualified drivers from being issued CDLs, and $4 million is provided for the Performance Registration Information Systems and Management (PRISM) program, which links state motor vehicle registration systems with carrier safety data in order to identify unsafe commercial motor carriers.

A total of $218 million is proposed for Operations and Research.

Programs funded under the Operations and Research appropriation are described below.

Safety Performance Standards (Rulemaking) Programs.—Supports the promulgation of Federal motor vehicle safety standards for motor vehicles, and safety-related equipment; automotive fuel economy standards required by the Energy Policy and Conservation Act; international harmonization of vehicle standards; and consumer information on motor vehicle safety, including the New Car Assessment Program.

Safety Assurance (Enforcement) Programs.—Provides support to ensure compliance with motor vehicle safety and automotive fuel economy standards, investigate safety-related motor vehicle defects, enforce federal odometer law, encourage enforcement of state odometer law and conduct safety recalls when warranted.

Research and Analysis.—Provides motor vehicle safety research and development in support of all NHTSA programs, including the collection and analysis of crash data to identify safety problems, develop alternative solutions, and assess costs, benefits, and effectiveness. Research will continue to concentrate on improving vehicle crash worthiness and crash avoidance, with emphasis on increasing safety belt use, decreasing alcohol involvement in crashes, decreasing the number of rollover crashes, improving vehicle-to-vehicle crash compatibility, and improved data systems.

Highway Safety Programs.—Provides for research, demonstrations, technical assistance, and national leadership for highway safety programs conducted by state and local governments, the private sector, universities and research units, and various safety associations and organizations. This program emphasizes alcohol and drug countermeasures, vehicle occupant protection, traffic law enforcement, emergency medical and trauma care systems, traffic records and licensing, state and community evaluation, motorcycle riders, pedestrian and bicycle safety, pupil transportation, young and older driver safety programs, and development of improved accident investigation procedures.

General Administration.—Provides program evaluation, strategic planning, and economic analysis for agency programs. Objective quantitative information about NHTSA's regulatory and highway safety programs is gathered to measure their effectiveness in achieving objectives. This activity also funds development of methods to estimate economic consequences of motor vehicle injuries in forms suitable for agency use in problem identification, regulatory analysis, priority setting, and policy analysis.

National Driver Register.—Provides funding to implement and operate the Problem Driver Pointer System (PDPS) and improve traffic safety by assisting state motor vehicle administrators in communicating effectively and efficiently with other states to identify drivers whose licenses have been suspended or revoked for serious traffic offenses, such as driving under the influence of alcohol or other drugs.

Section 402.—The Section 402 State and Community Grant Program is a three part performance-based program administered by NHTSA. The basic formula grant funding is allocated to the States on the basis of a statutory formula. Incentive grants will be awarded to States based on performance and passage of primary safety belt laws. Performance incentives will be calculated using highway safety performance measures for overall fatalities, occupant protection, impaired driving, and a combined measure of motorcycle, pedestrian, and bicycle safety. States use the formula and performance incentive funding to reduce traffic crashes, fatalities, and injuries. The grants are used to support State highway safety programs, focused on national priority areas, implemented jointly with all members of the highway safety community. States develop safety goals, performance measures, and strategic plans to manage use of grants for programs to reduce deaths and injuries on the Nation's highways, such as programs associated with excessive speeds, failure to use occupant restraints, alcohol/impaired driving, and roadway safety. A final portion of Section 402 funds will support an impaired driving initiative in which grants are awarded strategically to the States where the greatest gains in reducing alcohol-related fatalities can be made.

State Traffic Safety Information System Improvement.—Incentive grants will be provided to States to support improvements in their highway safety data systems. Funds may be used only for eligible highway safety data improvements such as collecting all model minimum uniform crash criteria elements, linking data, and driving while intoxicated tracking systems.

Emergency Medical Services.—Grants will be provided to assist States in developing comprehensive wireless emergency access and response systems.

Funds are used to redevelop the Pennsylvania Station in New York City, which involves renovating the James A. Farley Post Office building as a train station and commercial center, and basic upgrades to Pennsylvania Station. Funding for this project was included in the Grants to the National Railroad Passenger Corporation appropriation in 1995 through 1997, and the Northeast Corridor Improvement Program in 1998. In 2000 an advance appropriation of $20 million was provided for 2001, 2002, and 2003. In 2001 the $20 million in advance appropriations for the Farley Building was made available specifically for fire and life safety initiatives. No funds are requested in FY 2004.

The National Railroad Passenger Corporation (Amtrak) was established in 1970 through the Rail Passenger Service Act. Amtrak is operated and managed as a for profit corporation with all Board members appointed by the Executive Branch of the Federal Government, with the advice and consent of the Senate. Amtrak is not an agency or instrumentality of the U.S. Government.

Grant funding, administered by the Federal Railroad Administration, is being provided to support Amtrak's operating and capital requirements including Northeast Corridor improvements, railroad retirement, debt service interest and principal payments, operating assistance, preservation of capital and investments, and rolling stock maintenance. The request supports the Administration's Amtrak reform principles. To facilitate these changes, the budget proposes funding to support operations, expand capital and infrastructure maintenance programs and begin to address structural reform through employee buyouts and other measures that will improve Amtrak's future viability. In an effort to ensure that States play a major role in determining the route structure of a national passenger rail system, the proposal will encourage States to contribute to those routes they believe are critical to their transportation needs.

The Amtrak Reform Council was created by the Amtrak Reform and Accountability Act of 1997 (P.L. 105-134) to perform an independent assessment of Amtrak. The 1999 Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Act expanded the Council's mandate to include identifying Amtrak routes that could be candidates for closure or realignment. The Council was an independent entity and its funding was presented within the Federal Railroad Administration for display purposes only. The Council's charter expired in December 2002.

ALAMEDA CORRIDOR DIRECT LOAN FINANCING PROGRAM

The Alameda Transportation Corridor is an intermodal project connecting the Ports of Los Angeles and Long Beach to downtown Los Angeles. The project replaces the current 20 miles of at-grade rail line with a high-speed, below-grade corridor, thereby eliminating over 200 grade crossings. It also widens and improves the adjacent major highway on this alignment and mitigates the impact of increased international traffic transferring through the San Pedro Ports. The loan has permitted construction to continue without interruption through the sale of debt obligations, the proceeds of which funded the majority of the project's costs.

The amount of subsidy budget authority originally provided for the Alameda Corridor Transportation project was $59 million. The Alameda Corridor Transportation Authority (ACTA) has now completely drawn down the DOT loan proceeds totaling $400 million. In January 1999, ACTA received investment grade ratings from three rating agencies on its debt obligations financing construction of the project.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loan obligated in 1997. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis. No funds are requested for this account in 2004, as all funds required to complete this project were provided in 1997.

FEDERAL TRANSIT ADMINISTRATION

The Federal Transit Administration (FTA) provides funding to transit operators, State and local governments and other recipients for the construction of facilities; the purchase of vehicles and equipment; the improvement of technology, service techniques, and methods; the support of region-wide transportation planning; and transit operations. In addition to improving general mobility, FTA provides financial assistance to help implement other national goals relating to mobility for the elderly, people with disabilities, and economically disadvantaged individuals. The FTA budget includes program streamlining and consolidation to support the President's goal of creating a citizen-centered, outcome-based government. The Administration proposes consolidating the myriad of separate transit programs in order to give States and localities additional flexibility to better meet the mobility needs in their communities. This consolidation has the added benefit of reducing the administrative burden or grantees, since fewer separate grant applications would be required. In addition, the FTA proposes new initiatives, including performance incentives and the President's New Freedom Initiative.

In 2004, $7,226 million is proposed for transit programs. The following tables show the funding for the Federal Transit Administration programs.

The budget assumes that flex funding transfer between FHWA and FTA will continue, and will be documented at the end of the fiscal year.

FTA continues to focus on the President's Management Agenda, long-term management of the Federal workforce, and fostering a citizen-centered, results-based government that is organized to be flexible and lean. FTA remains committed to continuing aggressive efforts to increase efficiency and productivity within available staffing resources, and to improve the services offered to its customers. FTA has been a leader in the Department by expanding its automated systems to provide direct access by our customers. The Transportation Electronic Award and Management (TEAM) system provides on-line access to grantees for grant awards and disbursements.

New Starts.—$1,515 million for the construction of new fixed guideway systems and extensions to existing fixed guideway systems. FTA is implementing a number of changes to the New Starts evaluation process. In addition, the Administration proposes to expand the New Starts program to make new non-fixed guideway transportation corridor systems and extensions ("small starts") eligible for funding, in order to more cost-effectively address the transit needs of some communities. In order to accommodate growth in the "small starts" category and ensure that meritorious New Starts projects can be funded in the future, FTA seeks a modest increase in the New Starts program.

Planning.—$19 million for Metropolitan and Statewide Planning activities. This portion of the Metropolitan and Statewide planning activities will be funded from Major Capital Investment Grants. Fixed guideway modernization funding is provided in the Formula Grants and Research account.

Formula Grants and Research funds totaling $5,615.4 million are requested in 2004. Formula Grant funds can be used for all transit purposes including planning, bus and railfare purchases, facility repair and construction, maintenance and where eligible, operating expenses. Increased investment levels help transit succeed in alleviating congestion, ensuring basic mobility, promoting economically vital communities and meeting the requirements of the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) and the Clean Air Act (CAA). In 2004, the budget requests $4.8 million for the Alaska Railroad, $7 million for the Rural Transportation Accessibility Incentive Program, commonly referred to as the Over-the-Road Bus Accessibility Program, and $3.5 million for the National Transit Database.

National Transit Database (NTD).—$3.5 million for operation and maintenance of the NTD system, a database of statistics for the transit industry, and is Congressionally mandated under 49 U.S.C. 5335(a)(1)(2). The NTD provides for the national collection and dissemination of a uniform system of transit system financial accounts and operating data. As set forth in legislative formulas, these data are used in the national allocation of FTA formula funding.

Over-the-Road Bus Accessibility Program.—$7 million for the Rural Transportation Accessibility Incentive Program established in TEA–21 will assist operators of over-the-road buses to finance the incremental capital and training costs of complying with the Department of Transportation’s final rule regarding accessibility of over-the-road buses required by the ADA.

Urbanized Area Formula.—$3,521.3 million in funds will be apportioned to areas with populations of 50,000 or more. Funds may be used for any transit capital purpose, including preventive maintenance for these capital assets, in urban areas over 200,000 in population. In urbanized areas under 200,000, both capital and operating costs are eligible expenditures. This funding will assist public transit agencies in meeting the requirements of the Clean Air Act Amendments and the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Fixed Guideway Modernization.—$1,214.4 million for the acquisition, reconstruction and improvement of facilities and equipment for use on fixed guideways including heavy and light rail, commuter rail, and ferryboat operations. Funding for this program will help ensure that the Nation’s older fixed guideway systems continue to meet the transportation needs of the communities they serve.

State Administered Programs.—$741.4 million. Nonurbanized Area Formula—$359.4 million, will be apportioned according to a legislative formula based on State’s nonurban population to areas with populations of less than 50,000. Available funding may be used to support intercity bus service as well as to help meet rural and small urban areas’ transit needs, including $5 million for the Rural Transit Assistance Program formerly apportioned from Transit Planning and Research funds. Formula Grants for Elderly and Individuals with Disabilities—$87 million will be apportioned to each State according to a legislatively required formula to assist in providing transportation to the elderly and individuals with disabilities. Grants are made for the purchase of vehicles and equipment and for transportation services under a contract, lease or similar arrangement. Job Access and Reverse

Commuter—$150 million to be apportioned to the States by formula to provide grants to non-profit organizations and local transit agencies to fund transportation services in urban, suburban and rural areas to assist welfare recipients and low income individuals to access employment opportunities. Federal transit funds would provide 50 percent of the project costs, with grant recipients supplying the remaining 50 percent from local or Federal sources other than the Department of Transportation. New Freedom Initiative—$145 million to provide additional tools to overcome significant barriers facing Americans with disabilities seeking access to jobs and integration into the workforce. FTA is requesting authority to provide $145 million to be allocated to States by formula to fund competitive grants for alternative transportation services so that persons with disabilities have greater access to the workplace.

National and University Research.—$49.8 million to fund National and University Research. The National Research program is funded at $31.5 million. These funds will be used to cover costs for FTA's essential safety and security activities and transit safety data collection. Additional research programs include $8 million for Transit Cooperative Research, and $4 million for the National Transit Institute. Under the national component of the program, FTA is a catalyst in the research, development and deployment of transportation methods and technologies which address such issues as accessibility for the disabled, air quality, traffic congestion, and transit service and operational improvements. The National Research Program supports the development of innovative transit technologies, such as hybrid electric buses, fuel cells, and battery powered propulsion systems. Proposed funding for the University Transportation Research program is $6 million. This program provides continued support for research, education and technology transfer activities aimed at addressing regional and national transportation problems. These funds are matched with support from non-Federal sources. This program also receives funding from the Federal Highway Administration.

Planning.—$70.2 million to fund Metropolitan and State-wide planning activities.

Federal hazardous materials law (49 U.S.C. 5101 et seq.), established a national registration program for shippers and carriers of hazardous materials. In 2004, to reduce the unobligated balance in the Emergency Preparedness Grant account, RSPA will impose fees of $150 for small businesses and $300 for large businesses. The reduced fees should result in annual collections of $6 million. These fees finance emergency preparedness planning and training grants, development of a training curriculum for emergency responders, and technical assistance to States, political subdivisions, and Indian tribes. In 2004, obligations are proposed to be limited to $14.3 million.

The Oil Pollution Act of 1990 requires the preparation of oil spill response plans by pipeline operators to minimize the environmental impact of oil spills and to improve public and private sector response capabilities. The Research and Special Programs Administration (RSPA) is responsible for the review, approval and testing of these plans, and for ensuring that the public and the environment are provided with an adequate level of protection from such spills. RSPA does this through data analysis, spill monitoring, pipeline mapping, environmental indexing, and advanced technologies to detect and prevent leaks.

The Surface Transportation Board was created on January 1, 1996, by P.L. 104-88, the ICC Termination Act of 1995 (ICCTA). The Board is specifically responsible for the regulation of the rail and pipeline industries and certain non-licensing regulation of motor carriers and water carriers.

Rail Carriers.—This regulatory oversight encompasses the regulation of rates, mergers, and acquisitions, construction, and abandonment of railroad lines, as well as the planning, analysis and policy development associated with these activities.

Other Surface Transportation Carriers.—This regulatory oversight includes certain regulation of the intercity bus industry and surface pipeline carriers as well as the rate regulation of water transportation in the non-contiguous domestic trade, household good carriers, and collectively determined motor rates.

2004 Program Request.—$19 million is requested to implement rulemakings and adjudicate the ongoing caseload within the directives and deadlines set forth by the ICCTA.

The following paragraph is presented in compliance with Section 703 of the ICCTA. It is presented without change or correction.

The Board's Request to OMB.—The Board had submitted to the Secretary of Transportation and the Office of Management and Budget a 2004 appropriation request of $19.238 million and a request for $1.050 million from reimbursements from the offsetting collection of user fees. The offsetting collection of user fees is based on the costs incurred by the Board for fee-related activities and is commensurate with the costs of processing parties' submissions. In past fiscal years, the Board received both an appropriation and authorization for offsetting collections to be made available to the appropriation for the Board's expenses. In light of Congressional action on the FY 2003 appropriation act, the FY 2004 request reflects offsetting collections as a credit to the appropriation received, to the extent that they are collected.

BUREAU OF TRANSPORTATION STATISTICS

The Bureau's (BTS') 2004 request reflects a reauthorization proposal that sharpens the agency's focus. BTS' data programs will develop useful and reliable data on freight movement, personal travel behavior, transportation economics, airline data, and geographic information systems. The research programs will develop and publish key indicators of national transportation system performance and improve statistical methods to address transportation-specific problems.

BTS will continue to provide guidance on good statistical practice to Department of Transportation operating administrations and publish the National Transportation Statistics and Pocket Guide to Transportation as basic references.

In 2004, $36 million is proposed for the BTS. Of this total, $32 million is derived from the Highway Trust Fund and $4 million—for airline data collection and analysis—is from the Airport and Airways Trust Fund.

AIRLINE DATA AND ANALYSIS

(AIRPORT AND AIRWAY TRUST FUND)

For necessary expenses of the Bureau of Transportation Statistics for the collection and analysis of airline data, $3,971,000, to be derived from the Airport and Airways Trust Fund.

The Office of Airline Information (OAI) is part of the Bureau of Transportation Statistics (BTS). OAI will remain BTS' primary airline data program. OAI collects and publishes on-time data for airlines (monthly data that are used widely in marketing airline performance), as well as more extensive operating data for both foreign and domestic airlines. It also collects detailed financial statistics for domestic airlines, and various statistics on service quality. The data reporting is mandated by law.

OAI data is used by the Secretary of Transportation to analyze airline competition, negotiate international agreements, set international and intra-Alaska mail rates, determine community eligibility for essential air service subsidies, evaluate air carrier fitness, and conduct policy analyses. In 2001 and 2002, it was used to distribute airline assistance funds in the wake of the September 11th terrorist attacks.

The Federal Aviation Administration uses OAI data to help allocate airline safety inspection resources, analyze traffic levels to plan control tower staffing requirements, allocate grant funding through its Airport Improvement Program (AIP), forecast traffic, analyze airport capacity and noise abatement policies, and monitor flight delays.

OAI data is also used by other agencies to estimate the Gross Domestic Product, prepare producer and consumer price indexes, measure labor productivity, assist with antitrust investigations, and administer the collection of USDA and Customs fees.

MARITIME ADMINISTRATION

The Maritime Administration (MARAD) is responsible for programs authorized by the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended. MARAD's mission is to strengthen the U.S. maritime industry in support of the nation's security and economic needs. MARAD, working closely with the Department of Defense (DOD), helps provide a seamless, time-phased transition from peacetime to wartime operations, while balancing the defense and commercial elements of the maritime transportation system. MARAD establishes DOD's prioritized use of ports and related intermodal facilities during DOD mobilizations to ensure the smooth flow of military cargo through commercial ports. MARAD also manages the Maritime Security Program, the Voluntary Intermodal Sealift Agreement Program and the Ready Reserve Force, which assure DOD access to commercial and strategic sealift and associated intermodal capacity. Further, MARAD's Education and Training Programs, through the U.S. Merchant Marine Academy and six state maritime schools, help provide skilled U.S. merchant marine officers.

In FY 2004, MARAD requests funds to continue its support of the U.S. as a maritime nation, and to help meet its management challenge to dispose of obsolete merchant-type vessels in the National Defense Reserve Fleet by the end of 2006.

The Ship disposal program provides resources to dispose of obsolete merchant-type vessels in the National Defense Reserve Fleet (NDRF), which the Maritime Administration is required by law to dispose of by the end of 2006. There is a backlog of over 130 ships awaiting disposal as of December 2002. These vessels, many of which are 50 years in age, pose significant environmental threat due to the presence of hazardous substances such as asbestos and solid and liquid polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs).

MARITIME SECURITY PROGRAM

For necessary expenses to maintain and preserve a U.S.-flag merchant fleet to serve the national security needs of the United States, $98,700,000, to remain available until expended.

The Maritime Security Program provides resources to maintain a U.S.-flag merchant fleet crewed by U.S. citizens to serve both the commercial and national security needs of the United States. The program provides direct payments to U.S.-flag ship operators engaged in U.S.-foreign trade. Participating operators are required to keep the vessels in active commercial service and are required to provide intermodal sealift support to the Department of Defense in times of war or national emergency.

The Operating-Differential Subsidies (ODS) account helped to maintain a U.S.-flag merchant fleet to serve both the commercial and national security needs of the U.S. by providing operating subsidies to U.S.-flag ship operators to offset certain differences between U.S. and foreign operating costs. This program has been replaced by the Maritime Security Program.

Public Law 99-198 amended section 901 of the Merchant Marine Act to increase from 50 to 75 percent the amount of agricultural commodities under specified programs that must be carried on U.S.-flag vessels. The increased cost associated with this expanded U.S.-flag shipping requirement stems from higher rates charged by U.S.-flag carriers compared with foreign-flag carriers. The Maritime Administration is required to reimburse the Department of Agriculture for ocean freight differential costs for the added tonnage above 50 percent. These reimbursements are funded through borrowings from the Treasury.

The Maritime Administration's ocean freight differential costs are one portion of the government's cargo preference program. The ocean transportation subsidy costs related to cargo preference for all relevant agencies are presented in the following schedule.

Funding for the Ready Reserve Force (RRF) account is included in appropriations for the Department of Defense. Management of the RRF remains with MARAD. Reimbursements from the Department of Defense for the RRF account are reflected in MARAD's Vessel Operations Revolving Fund account. Obligations shown above are the spendout of funding appropriated directly to MARAD prior to 1996 for the RRF.

The RRF is comprised of Government-owned, U.S.-flag merchant ships laid up in the National Defense Reserve Fleet (NDRF). The RRF is maintained in an advanced state of readiness to meet surge shipping requirements during a national emergency.

The Maritime Administration is authorized to reactivate, operate, deactivate, and charter merchant vessels. These operations are financed through the Vessel Operations Revolving Fund with reimbursements from sponsoring agencies. In addition, the fund is available to finance the necessary expenses to protect, maintain, preserve, acquire, and use vessels involved in mortgage foreclosure or forfeiture proceedings instituted by the United States other than those financed by the Federal Ship Financing Fund or the Maritime Guaranteed Loan (Title XI) Financing Account; and to process advances received from Federal agencies. Also the acquisition and disposal of ships under the trade-in/scrap-out program is financed through this account.

Reimbursements from other Federal agencies also pay for various DOD/Navy-sponsored activities, such as the operation of activated RRF vessels, installation of sealift enhancement features and other special projects. The Vessel Operations Revolving Fund account includes DOD/Navy reimbursements for the RRF account. DOD/Navy funding for RRF provides for additional RRF vessels, RRF ship activations and deactivations, maintaining RRF ships in an advanced state of readiness, berthing costs, capital improvements at fleet sites, and other RRF support costs.

The Merchant Marine Act of 1936, as amended, established the Federal Ship Financing Fund to assist in the development of the U.S. merchant marine by guaranteeing construction loans and mortgages on U.S.-flag vessels built in the United States. No new commitments for loan guarantees are projected for the Federal Ship Financing Fund as this Fund is used only to underwrite guarantees made under the Title XI loan guarantee program prior to 1992.

This program provides for guaranteed loans for purchasers of ships from the U.S. shipbuilding industry and for modernization of U.S. shipyards.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account includes the subsidy costs associated with the loan guarantee commitments made in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

Funds for administrative expenses for the Title XI program are appropriated to this account, then transferred by reimbursement to the Operations and Training account to be obligated and outlayed. The schedule above shows the post-transfer amounts for 2002. For 2003 and 2004, the schedule displays pre-transfer amounts in order to comply with the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990.

In an effort to reduce corporate subsidies, no new funds for loan guarantees are requested for 2004.

(1) Purchase of american-made equipment and products.—In the case of any equipment or product that may be authorized to be purchased with financial assistance provided using funds made available in this Act, it is the sense of the Congress that entities receiving the assistance should, in expending the assistance, purchase only American-made equipment and products to the greatest extent practicable.

(2) Notice to recipients of assistance.—In providing financial assistance using funds made available in this Act, the head of each Federal agency shall provide to each recipient of the assistance a notice describing the statement made in paragraph (1) by the Congress.

(c) PROHIBITION OF CONTRACTS WITH PERSONS FALSELY LABELING PRODUCTS AS MADE IN AMERICA.—If it has been finally determined by a court or Federal agency that any person intentionally affixed a label bearing a "Made in America" inscription, or any inscription with the same meaning, to any product sold in or shipped to the United States that is not made in the United States, the person shall be ineligible to receive any contract or subcontract made with funds made available in this Act, pursuant to the debarment, suspension, and ineligibility procedures described in sections 9.400 through 9.409 of title 48, Code of Federal Regulations.

SEC. 317. Rebates, refunds, incentive payments, minor fees and other funds received by the Department from travel management centers, charge card programs, the subleasing of building space, and miscellaneous sources are to be credited to appropriations of the Department and allocated to elements of the Department using fair and equitable criteria and such funds shall be available until expended.

SEC. 318. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, rule or regulation, the Secretary of Transportation is authorized to allow the issuer of any preferred stock heretofore sold to the Department to redeem or repurchase such stock upon the payment to the Department of an amount determined by the Secretary.

SEC. 320. For an airport project that the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) determines will add critical airport capacity to the national air transportation system, the Administrator is authorized to accept funds from an airport sponsor, including entitlement funds provided under the "Grants-in-Aid for Airports" program, for the FAA to hire additional staff or obtain the services of consultants: Provided, That the Administrator is authorized to accept and utilize such funds only for the purpose of facilitating the timely processing, review, and completion of environmental activities associated with such project.

SEC. 321. The federal share of funds available for new fixed guideway projects under 49 U.S.C. 5309, after September 30, 2004, shall not be more than 50 percent: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to projects for which a full funding grant agreement has been executed prior to October 1, 2004.

SEC. 322. Amounts made available in this or any other Act that the Secretary determines represent improper payments by the Department of Transportation to a third party contractor under a financial assistance award, which are recovered pursuant to law, shall be available for the following—

(b) to pay contractors for services provided in recovering improper payments; and

(c) amounts in excess of that required for subsections (a) and (b):

(1) shall be credited to and merged with the appropriation from which the improper payments were made, and shall be available for the purposes and period for which such appropriations are available; or

(2) if no such appropriation remains available, shall be deposited in the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

SEC. 323. The Secretary of Transportation is authorized to transfer the unexpended balances available for the bonding assistance program from the Office of the Secretary, Salaries and Expenses account to the Minority Business Outreach account.

SEC. 324. Notwithstanding sections 41732(b), 41733, 41734(b)–(h), 41735, 41736, and 41742 of subchapter II of Chapter 417 of title 49, United States Code, and section 332 of Public Law 106–69, subsidies for essential air service, or ground or other services supporting such transportation, shall be provided as follows:

(a) The Secretary shall rank all subsidized points that are willing and able to provide 25% of their subsidy need from non-Federal sources, except that points that are more than 210 highway miles from the nearest large or medium hub airport shall be willing and able to provide only 10% of their subsidy need from non-Federal sources, in their order of relative decreasing highway distance from the nearest large/medium or small hub airport, making allowances for the fact that a small hub airport provides less connection to the national air transportation system than does a large/medium hub. As used herein, "highway distance" means the shortest driving distance as determined by the Federal Highway Administration.

(b) The Secretary shall provide subsidy first to the most isolated community, as determined in subsection (a), that requires subsidy and is willing and able to provide the portion of its subsidy need from non-Federal sources specified in paragraph (a), and then the next most isolated community requiring subsidy and willing and able to provide the portion of its subsidy need from non-Federal sources as specified in paragraph (a), and so on, in order, until the Secretary has obligated not more than $50,000,000 for subsidy in fiscal year 2004, which shall come from the amounts received by the Federal Aviation Administration credited to the account established under 49 U.S.C. 45303.

(c) If a community becomes eligible to receive subsidy after the Secretary makes the determinations in subsections (a) and (b) of this section, the Secretary shall determine the community's eligibility for subsidy in accordance with those subsections, making whatever recalculations are required. In making such recalculations, the Secretary may deny subsidy for any time in the future to any community already receiving subsidy.

(d) The limitation in section 209 of P.L. 106–181 is repealed.

(e) There are no minimum service requirements for eligible places. Service may consist, among others, of ground transportation, single-engine, single-pilot operations, air taxi, charter service, or regionalized service.

(f) In determining between or among carriers competing to provide service at a community, the Secretary shall consider the relative subsidy requirements of the carriers.

SEC. 325. Beginning in fiscal year 2004 and thereafter, the Secretary may use up to 1 percent of the amounts made available to carry out sections 5307, 5309, and 5311 of title 49, U.S.C. for oversight activities under 49 U.S.C. 5327.

To maximize efficiencies and effectiveness, legislative language is being proposed which will merge the Treasury Inspector General and the Treasury Inspector General for Tax Administration into a new Inspector General office, called the Inspector General for Treasury. The new organization will have all of the same powers and authorities as its predecessors have under current law.

The Inspector General for Treasury conducts and supervises audits, investigations, and evaluations to assess the operations and programs of the bureaus and offices of the Department of the Treasury. It (1) promotes the economy, efficiency, and effectiveness of Departmental programs and operations by preventing fraud, waste, and abuse in those programs and operations, (2) keeps the Secretary and the Congress fully and currently informed of these issues and the progress made toward resolving them, (3) reviews existing and proposed legislation and regulations relating to the programs and operations of the Department, and makes recommendations concerning the impact of such legislation and regulations on the economy and efficiency in the administration of programs and operations of the Department of the Treasury. The audit function provides program audit, contract audit, information technology audit, and financial statement audit services. Program audits review and audit all facets of agency programs and operations and related entities. Contract audits provide professional advice to agency contracting officials on accounting and financial matters relative to negotiation, award, administration, repricing, and settlement of contracts. Information technology audits review all aspects of the acquisition, implementation, and security of electronic systems. Financial statement audits assess whether financial statements fairly present the agency's financial condition and results of operations, the adequacy of accounting controls, and compliance with laws and regulations. These audits contribute significantly to improved financial management by helping Treasury managers identify improvements needed in their accounting and internal control systems. The evaluations function reviews program performance and issues critical to the mission of the Department of the Treasury, including assessing the Department's implementation of the Government Performance and Results Act. The investigative function provides for the detection, investigation of and protection against improper and illegal activities involving programs, personnel, and operations of Department of the Treasury including external attempts to corrupt or threaten their employees, systems and facilities.

The Budget does not seek additional funding for Expanded Access to Financial Services, though the program will continue to operate on unobligated balances of budget authority. Appropriated amounts from 2002 remain unavailable, however, as the program lacks congressional authorization.

On November 26, 2002, President Bush signed into law the Terrorism Risk Insurance Act of 2002 (P.L. 107-297). The Act establishes and provides mandatory funding for a temporary Terrorism Insurance Program to be administered by the Department of the Treasury. Under the program, the Federal Government is responsible for paying 90 percent of the insured losses arising from acts of terrorism above the applicable insurer deductible and below the $100 billion annual cap.

The budget includes estimates of the general administrative costs of the program. Given the uncertainty surrounding the risk of future terrorist attacks, the budget does not include estimates of the timing or magnitude of potential insurance claims under the program, which is scheduled to sunset on December 31, 2005. Any such claims would be paid from permanent, indefinite authority and would not require subsequent appropriations.

Public Law 102-393 authorized the establishment of the Treasury Forfeiture Fund. It is available to pay or reimburse certain costs and expenses related to seizures and forfeitures that occur pursuant to the Treasury Department's law enforcement activities. The Coast Guard also participates in the program. The Treasury Forfeiture Fund is being transferred to the Department of Justice Asset Forfeiture Fund in 2004. Proposed legislation to effect this transfer will follow.

Matching funds in primaries.—Upon certification by the Federal Election Commission, every candidate eligible to receive payments is entitled to receive $250 in Federal matching funds for each eligible $250 private contribution received after the beginning of the calendar year immediately preceding the election year through the end of the calendar year of the election.

Nominating conventions of parties.—Upon certification by the Commission, payments may be made to the national committee of a major party or a minor party which elects to receive its entitlement. The total of such payments will be limited to the amount in the account at the time of payment. The national committee of each party may receive payments beginning on July 1 of the year immediately preceding the calendar year in which a presidential nominating convention of the political party is held. By statute, the two major parties receive $4 million each, plus a cost-of-living increase. In 2000, both parties received $13.5 million for their nominating conventions.

Candidates for general elections.—By statute, the eligible candidates of each major party in a presidential election are entitled to equal payments in an amount which, in the aggregate, shall not exceed $20 million each, plus a cost-of-living increase. In 2000, this amounted to $67.6 million for each candidate.

Also, provision is made for new parties, minor parties and candidates, who may receive in excess of 5 percent of the popular vote and therefore be entitled to reimbursement of qualified campaign expenditures.

The Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to deal in gold and foreign exchange and other instruments of credit and securities as deemed necessary, consistent with U.S. obligations in the International Monetary Fund (IMF), regarding orderly exchange arrangements and a stable system of exchange rates. An Exchange Stabilization Fund, with a capital of $200 million, is authorized by law for this purpose (31 U.S.C. 5302). All earnings and interest accruing to this fund are available for the purposes thereof. Transactions in special drawing rights (SDR's) and U.S. holdings of SDR's are administered by the fund. U.S. drawings from the IMF, if any, are also advanced to the fund.

The principal sources of the fund's income have been profits on foreign exchange transactions and earnings on investments held by the fund, including interest earned on fund holdings of U.S. Government securities.

The amounts reflected in the 2002 and 2003 estimates entail only projected net interest earnings on Exchange Stabilization Fund (ESF) assets. The estimates are subject to considerable variance, depending on changes in the amount and composition of assets and the interest rates applied to investments. In addition, exchange rate fluctuations can cause the dollar value of income received on foreign currency and SDR investments to fluctuate. Moreover, estimates make no attempt to forecast gains or losses reflecting SDR valuation or foreign currency valuation. As required by Public Law 95-612, the fund is not used to meet the administrative expenses.

Department of the Treasury was chosen as a pilot Franchise Fund under P.L. 103-356, the Government Management and Reform Act of 1994. Begun in 1997, financial and administrative services included in the Franchise Fund (Fund) are financed on a fee-for-service basis. Treasury's Fund is a revolving fund used to supply financial and administrative services on the basis of services supplied. For 2004, service activities are expected to have spending authority of $384 million and employ 543 people.

Activities included in the Fund are financial training, accounting cross-servicing, and various administrative support services. The Fund concept is intended to increase competition for government and financial administrative services, resulting in lower costs and higher quality.

The Riegle Community Development and Regulatory Improvement Act of 1994 established the Community Development Financial Institutions (CDFI) Fund. The CDFI Fund provides equity investments, grants, loans, and technical assistance to new and existing community development financial institutions (CDFIs) such as community development banks, community development credit unions, community development loan and venture capital funds, and microenterprise loan funds. Funds provided by the CDFI Fund will enhance the capacity of these institutions to finance economic development, including small businesses, community facilities, housing, and other community development initiatives in distressed urban, rural, Native American, Native Hawaiian, and Alaska Native communities. The CDFI Fund also provides grants to insured depository institutions to facilitate investment in CDFIs and increase community lending activities. In addition, the CDFI Fund administers the New Markets Tax Credit Program by providing allocations of tax credits to Community Development Entities (CDEs) which in turn provide the tax credits to entities which invest in the CDEs. The Fund is seeking reauthorization of its activities under the Community Development Banking and Financial Institutions Act.

The CDFI Fund helps to address the urgent problems of declining economic and social infrastructure, loss of jobs, lack of private enterprise, and deteriorating housing facing many American communities today. Government investment and technical assistance supplements private funds and expertise to ensure that CDFIs are effective in restoring and creating healthy economies.

FinCEN, created in 1990 and elevated to bureau status in 2001, supports law enforcement investigations to prevent and detect money laundering, terrorist financing, and other financial crimes. FinCEN links law enforcement, financial, and regulatory communities into a single information-sharing network. Using Bank Secrecy Act (BSA) information reported by banks and other financial institutions, FinCEN serves as the nation's central clearinghouse for broad-based financial intelligence and information sharing on money laundering. This information helps illuminate the financial trail for investigators to follow as they track criminals and their assets.

Investigative Analysis, BSA Administration, and International Activities.—Through their investigative analysis efforts, FinCEN provides support for the investigation and prosecution of law enforcement cases at the Federal, state, local and international levels, using financial data collected under the BSA, as well as other commercial and law enforcement information. FinCEN serves as a catalyst for research, analysis, and dissemination of information on money laundering methods and trends through joint case analysis with law enforcement, integration of all source information and the application of state-of-art data processing techniques. FinCEN also establishes policies to administer the BSA effectively while balancing the associated burden imposed on the regulated financial institutions. Internationally, FinCEN maintains in-depth, country-specific expertise concerning money laundering, terrorist financing, and other financial crimes around the world to assist decision makers in developing and promoting U.S. government anti-money laundering policies. FinCEN also uses this expertise to promote the development of Financial Intelligence Units (FIUs) in other countries, and to facilitate investigative exchanges with them.

Regulatory Support Program, including Money Services Businesses.—This program supports new requirements to strengthen anti-money laundering controls with the money services business industry, casino, broker/dealer, securities, and other industries with new program or reporting requirements under the Bank Secrecy Act (BSA). The USA Patriot Act has expanded anti-money laundering program and reporting requirements to a number of industries previously not covered by the BSA. FinCEN will undertake programs to reach these new industry groups, as necessary. FinCEN will also continue efforts with the IRS, especially related to the money service business industry, to assure compliance, respond to public inquiries, distribute forms and publications, and support information processing of the BSA data.

Loan guarantee financing accounts receive various payments and fees and make payments on defaults. When cash balances result from an excess of receipts over outlays, these balances are deposited at the Treasury and earn interest. This account pays such interest to credit loan guarantee financing accounts from the general fund of the Treasury in accordance with section 505(c) of the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990. The estimates of interest paid by this fund are derived from the estimates of interest received in the various financing accounts.

The payment of interest on investments in Treasury securities that the Secretary of the Treasury suspended or redeemed during the "debt limit suspension period" that he declared during 2002. The statutes permit this action when Treasury is constrained by the statutory debt limit. They require that the Treasury restore all due interest and principal to these funds as soon as this can be done without exceeding the debt limit. A payment of interest was made to the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund for $15 million and the G-Fund within the Thrift Savings Fund for $168 million.

This account was created to provide loan guarantees for the construction of biomass-to-ethanol facilities, as authorized under Title II of the Energy Security Act. All of the loans guaranteed by this account went into default. The guarantees have been paid off, and the assets of all but one of the projects have been liquidated. The one remaining project, the New Energy Company of Indiana, continues to make payments to the Treasury on their loan, which the government acquired after paying off the guarantee.

The U.S. Customs Service collects duties assessed pursuant to a countervailing duty order, an antidumping duty order, or a finding under the Antidumping Act of 1921. Under a provision enacted in 2000, the Customs Service currently distributes these duties to affected domestic producers. These distributions provide a significant additional benefit to procedures that already gain protection from the increased import prices provided by the tariffs. While the Administration does not believe that these payments are inconsistent with U.S. treaty obligations, legislative repeal of the provision would allow the funds to be directed to higher priority uses.

This fund was established as a permanent, indefinite appropriation in order to maintain adequate funding of the Check Forgery Insurance Fund (Fund). The Fund facilitates timely payments for replacement Treasury checks necessitated due to a claim of forgery. The Fund recoups disbursements through reclamations made against banks negotiating forged checks.

To reduce hardships sustained by payees of Government checks that have been stolen and forged, settlement is made in advance of the receipt of funds from the endorsers of the checks. If the U.S. Treasury is unable to recover funds through reclamation procedures, the Fund sustains the loss.

The Federal Financing Bank (FFB) was created in 1973 to reduce the costs of Federal and federally-assisted borrowing and to ensure the coordination of such borrowing from the public in a manner least disruptive to private financial markets and institutions. Prior to that time, many agencies borrowed directly from the private market to finance credit programs involving lending to the public at higher rates than on comparable Treasury securities. With the implementation of the Federal Credit Reform Act in 1992, however, agencies simply finance such loan programs through direct loan financing accounts that borrow directly from the Treasury. Therefore, FFB loans are now used primarily to finance direct agency activities such as construction of Federal buildings by the General Services Administration and meeting the financing requirements of the U.S. Postal Service. In certain cases, the FFB finances Federal direct loans to the public that would otherwise be made by private lenders and fully guaranteed by a Federal agency.

Lending by the FFB is set at 1/8 percent above Treasury rates and may take one of three forms, depending on the authorizing statutes pertaining to a particular agency or program: (1) the FFB may purchase agency financial assets; (2) the FFB may acquire debt securities that the agency is otherwise authorized to issue to the public; and (3) the FFB may originate direct loans on behalf of an agency by disbursing loans directly to private borrowers and receiving repayments from the private borrower on behalf of the agency. Because law requires that transactions by the FFB be treated as a means of financing agency obligations, the budgetary effect of the third type of transaction is reflected in the budget in the following sequence: a loan by the FFB to the agency, a loan by the agency to a private borrower, a repayment by a private borrower to the agency, and a repayment by the agency to the FFB.

Under a provision in the 1987 enabling legislation for the Agriculture Department's Cushion of credit payments program, the FFB receives substantially less interest each year on certain loans that it holds than it is contractually entitled to receive. This provision, however, does not reduce the amount of interest the FFB owes on its corresponding loans from Treasury. The shortfalls in interest received by the FFB as a result of the provision resulted in substantial losses to the FFB in the past. The FFB will likely experience future losses due to this provision.

The following table shows the annual net lending by the FFB by agency and program and the amount outstanding at the end of each year. In October 2002, the FFB redeemed $15 billion of debt that it had issued to the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund. The FFB repaid this debt by borrowing from the Treasury.

Two of the Administration's legislative proposals would affect the FFB's interest payments and balances of outstanding debt. First, proposed legislation reducing payments from the Postal Service to the Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund would allow the Postal Service Fund to repay its loans from the FFB earlier than projected under current law. Second, proposed legislation in the Native American and Transitional Housing Direct Loan Program would eliminate its need to borrow through the FFB.

The Homeland Security Act created a new bureau within the United States Department of the Treasury charged with collecting revenue and protecting the public. This new bureau enforces the Federal laws and regulations relating to alcohol and tobacco by working directly and in cooperation with others to: (1) Maintain a sound revenue management and regulatory system that continues reducing taxpayer burden, improving service, collecting the revenue due and preventing tax evasion and other criminal conduct; and (2) Protect the public and prevent consumer deception in regulated commodities.

Performance measurements continue to be refined and improved in order to provide viable output and outcome measures for the bureau. The organization is participating in the American Customer Satisfaction Index with the University of Michigan to benchmark customer services satisfaction (e.g. Certificates of Label Approvals).

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing designs, manufactures, and supplies Federal Reserve notes, various public debt instruments, as well as most evidences of a financial character issued by the United States, such as postage and internal revenue stamps. The Bureau executes certain printings for various territories administered by the United States, particularly postage and revenue stamps.

The anticipated work volume is based on estimates of requirements submitted by agencies served. The program comprises the following activities:

Engraving and printing—

Currency.—Total deliveries of currency for 2003 and 2004 are estimated to be 8.2 and 8.5 billion respectively. During 2002, the Bureau delivered 7.0 billion Federal Reserve notes.

Stamps.—This category of work is comprised of postal and internal revenue stamps. The projected requirements of 2003 and 2004 are estimated to be 9.0 billion and 7.5 billion stamps, respectively. In 2002, the Bureau delivered 12.2 billion stamps.

Securities.—This program encompasses the production of a wide variety of bonds, notes, and debentures for the Bureau of Public Debt and certain other agencies of the Government.

Commissions, certificates, etc.—This program is comprised primarily of Presidential and Department of Defense commissions and certificates, White House invitations, and identification cards for various Government agencies. It represents a small portion of the Bureau's total workload.

Space utilized by other agencies.—Other agencies are charged for services provided in the space occupied in the Bureau's buildings.

Other miscellaneous services.—A wide variety of miscellaneous services are performed by Bureau personnel for other agencies, which are charged on an actual cost basis.

Purchase of operating equipment.—This category consists of new purchases and replacement of printing equipment and other related printing items.

Plant alterations and experimental equipment.—This category encompasses alterations made on the Bureau's buildings and purchases of experimental equipment.

The operations of the Bureau are currently financed by means of a revolving fund established in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 656, August 4, 1950 (31 U.S.C. 181), which requires the Bureau to be reimbursed by customer agencies for all costs of manufacturing products and services performed. The Bureau is also authorized to assess amounts to acquire capital equipment and provide for working capital needs. Bureau operations during 2002 resulted in a decrease to retained earnings of $29 million.

The United States Mint manufactures coins, sells numismatic and investment products, and provides for security and asset protection. Public Law 104-52, dated November 19, 1995, enacted 5136, of Subchapter III of chapter 51 of subtitle IV of title 31, United States Code established the United States Mint Public Enterprise Fund (the Fund). The Fund encompasses the previous Salaries and Expenses, Coinage Profit Fund, Coinage Metal Fund, and the Numismatic Public Enterprise Fund. The Mint submits annual audited business-type financial statements to the Secretary of the Treasury and to Congress in support of the operations of the revolving fund.

The operations of the Mint are divided into three major activities: Circulating Coinage; Numismatic and Investment Products; and Protection. The Mint is credited with receipts from its circulating coinage operations, equal to the full cost of producing and distributing coins that are put into circulation, including depreciation of the Mint's plant and equipment on the basis of current replacement value. From that, the Mint pays its cost of operations, which includes the costs of production and distribution. The difference between the face value of the coins and these costs are profit, which is deposited as seigniorage to the general fund. In 2002, the Mint transferred $1,030 million to the general fund. Any seigniorage used to finance the Mint's capital acquisitions is recorded as budget authority in the year that funds are obligated for this purpose, and as receipts over the life of the asset.

Circulating Coinage.—This activity funds the manufacture of circulating coins for sale to the Federal Reserve System as determined by public demand. In 2004, this activity will manufacture 13.8 billion coins for sale to the Federal Reserve System. In 1996, with the merger of the former Coinage Metal Fund into the Mint Public Enterprise Fund, the Mint began including the cost of metal in the Circulating Coinage activity.

Numismatic and Investment Products.—This activity funds the manufacture of numismatic and bullion coins, medals, and other products for sale to collectors and the general public. These coins include annual recurring programs such as proof and uncirculated sets, silver proof coins, the American Eagle gold and silver bullion uncirculated and proof coins, American Eagle platinum coins, and national and historic medals. The activity also includes nonrecurring programs for coins and medals which are legislated to commemorate specific events or individuals. In 2004, this activity will fund the Thomas A. Edison Commemorative Coin Program and the Lewis and Clark Expedition Commemorative Coin Program. In addition, the Fifty States Commemorative Coin Program Act authorized, beginning in 1999, the issuance of quarters for sale to the public and to the Federal Reserve System honoring each of the 50 states with a design emblematic of that state. These quarters will be issued in the order of each state's admission to the Union. The Mint will produce five different state quarter designs each year resulting in a 10-year program. All coins produced for this program are considered to be numismatic products (Public Law 105-124).

Protection.—This activity funds protection of the Government's stock of gold and silver bullion, coins, Mint employees and visitors, plant facilities and equipment, and all other Mint property against abuse, theft, damage, disorders, and all other unsafe or illegal practices by utilizing police officers and modern protective devices.

INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE

The mission of the Internal Revenue Service is to provide America's taxpayers top quality service by helping them understand and meet their tax responsibilities and by applying the tax law with integrity and fairness to all.

To achieve this mission, the Service has established three strategic goals. In order to achieve the first goal "Service to Each Taxpayer," the IRS will make filing easier, provide first quality service to each taxpayer needing help with his or her return or account, provide prompt, professional, helpful treatment to taxpayers in cases where additional taxes may be due, and improve taxpayer access to toll-free telephone assistance. Second, to achieve the goal of "Service to All Taxpayers," the IRS will increase fairness of compliance, and increase overall compliance. The Service will meet its third goal "Productivity Through a Quality Work Environment," by increasing employee job satisfaction and productivity while the economy grows and service improves.

Ensuring Fair Compliance: The IRS is shifting enforcement resources from lower income individual and small corporate returns to focus on higher income individual returns, tax shelters and abusive schemes. In addition, the Budget includes a $133 million initiative for 1,700 staff to help insure that compliance is enforced fairly for all taxpayers.

Reengineering of the Collection Process: The IRS goal is to collect all unpaid tax assessments that can be reasonably collected while protecting taxpayer rights through efficient, least burdensome techniques. The key to this goal is to identify taxpayer accounts with a high risk of non-payment as early as possible and to intervene immediately. To achieve this, the Budget proposes legislation to allow the use of contract collection agents. In addition, IRS is completely reengineering the collection process using new technology.

The IRS is changing the way it uses measures to focus attention on priorities, assess organizational performance and identify improvement opportunities. Management processes and activities are being realigned to ensure that they support the mission of the IRS and incorporate the principles of a balanced measurement system. Under this new approach, the framework for measuring organizational performance is aligned with its strategic goals and balances the Service's focus across three major areas: business results, customer satisfaction, and employee satisfaction, with business results being comprised of measures of quality and quantity.

The IRS has a long-term plan to raise performance in all dimensions of its mission by modernizing and reengineering all basic activities to conform to known best practices. In FY 2004, the IRS will improve performance primarily through better management and fundamental reengineering of business processes, and secondarily by increases in resources.

Business Systems Modernization: The Business Systems Modernization (BSM) appropriation provides for revamping business practices and acquiring new technology by a formal process of prioritization, approval, funding, and evaluation of an investment portfolio.

Telephone Level of Service: The goal is to provide service comparable to the best quality telephone based customer service organizations. This is measured by access, quality, and customer satisfaction. Success in these areas can be achieved by continuing implementation of our long-term plan which includes using technology to route telephone calls automatically to employees with specialized training.

Increased e-File/e-Services: Additional electronic filing options continue to produce long-term resource savings as we promote e-filed returns. Further savings will be realized during migration to an information- and transaction-based web site, facilitating more efficient communication with stakeholders.

Health Insurance Tax Credit Administration: The Budget includes a new account to fund the administrative costs of administering the new Trade Adjustment Assistance health insurance tax credit.

This appropriation provides for expanded customer service and public outreach programs, strengthened enforcement activities, and enhanced research efforts to reduce overclaims and erroneous filings associated with the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC).

The budget includes a $100 million initiative to implement an integrated approach to enhancing EITC administration. This approach recommended by Treasury's EITC Task Force would have claimants provide additional information to the IRS to validate eligibility before payment. Two principles underlie this approach: (1) the IRS will only refund EITC after there is clear information that the EITC filer is entitled to the EITC and (2) the IRS will use compliance and other available data to determine whether specific groups of claimants can be eliminated from certain certification requirements because they pose less risk. This approach promises to reduce non-compliance while minimizing burden and providing certainty to eligible claimants. A significant portion of the FY 2004 request will be used to develop new business processes and supporting technology infrastructure. Remaining funds will be used to begin the certification proposal with the recommendation of the EITC Task Force.

This appropriation provides for Servicewide information systems operations and maintenance, and investments to enhance or develop business applications for the IRS Business Units. The appropriation includes staffing, telecommunications, hardware and software (including commercial-off-the-shelf), and contractual services.

Information services.—This activity provides the salaries, benefits, and related costs to manage, maintain, and operate the information systems that support tax administration. These systems are located in a variety of sites including the Martinsburg, Tennessee and Detroit Computing Centers; Service Centers; and in other field office operations. Staffing in this activity develops and maintains the millions of lines of programming code supporting all aspects of tax-processing; as well as operating and administering the Service's hardware infrastructure of mainframes, minicomputers, personal computers, networks, and a variety of management information systems.

Information systems improvement programs.—This activity funds improvements or enhancements to business applications. These investments conform to the modernized IRS architecture. These projects differ in scope from those funded by the Business Systems Modernization Program, which addresses major common tax administration systems.

As provided by law, there will be instances wherein the earned income tax credit will exceed the amount of tax liability owed through the individual income tax system, resulting in an additional payment to the tax filer. The Earned Income Credit was originally authorized by the Tax Reduction Act of 1975 (Public Law 94-12) and made permanent by the Revenue Adjustment Act of 1978 (Public Law 95-600). The Tax Reform Act of 1986 and the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Acts of 1990 and 1993 have increased the credit amount and expanded the eligibility for earned income credit.

The budget proposes to permanently extend the EITC provisions in the Economic Growth and Tax Relief Reconciliation Act of 2001, which sunset on December 31, 2010. These provisions reduce EITC-related marriage penalties, simplify certain eligibility criteria for the credit, and allows the IRS to use more cost-efficient procedures to deny questionable EITC claims.

The Trade Act of 2002 established an advanceable, refundable tax credit for 65 percent of cost of qualified insurance. This credit is available to recipients of trade adjustment assistance (TAA) and Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation pension benefits who are aged 55–64 and have lost their employer health benefits.

To help lower income families purchase private health insurance, the budget includes a proposed new refundable tax credit for health insurance purchased by individuals and families who are neither covered by employer-sponsored insurance nor enrolled in public programs. This schedule reflects the effects of this proposed credit in cases where the credit exceeds the individual tax liability resulting in payment to the tax filer.

Under certain circumstances, as provided in 26 U.S.C. 6611, interest is paid on Internal Revenue collections that must be refunded. The Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act of 1982 (Public Law 97–248) provides for daily compounding of interest. Under the Tax Reform Act of 1986 (Public Law 99–514), interest paid on Internal Revenue collections will equal the Federal short-term rate plus two percentage points, such rate to be adjusted quarterly.

As provided by law (26 U.S.C. 7623), the Treasury Secretary may make payments to individuals resulting from information given that leads to the collection of Internal Revenue taxes. The Taxpayer Bill of Rights of 1996 (Public Law 104–168) provides for payments of such sums to individuals from the proceeds of amounts (other than interest) collected by reason of the information provided, and any amount collected shall be available for such payments. This information must lead to the detection of underpayments of taxes, or detection and bringing to trial and punishment persons guilty of violating the internal revenue laws (in cases where such expenses are not otherwise provided for by law).

This revolving fund was established pursuant to section 112(a) of the Federal Tax Lien Act of 1966, to serve as the source of financing the redemption of real property by the United States. During the process of collecting unpaid taxes, the government places a tax lien on real estate in order to protect the government's interest. Situations arise where property of this nature is collateral for other indebtedness and the tax lien is subordinate to the original indebtedness. In this circumstance, it is often to the government's interest to purchase the property during the foreclosure sale. The advantage arises when the property is worth substantially more than the first lienholder's equity but is being sold for an amount that barely covers that equity, thereby leaving no proceeds to apply against delinquent taxes. Under these circumstances, if the Government buys the property and subsequently puts it up for sale under more advantageous conditions, it is possible to realize sufficient profit on the transaction to fully or partially collect the amount of taxes due. The revolving fund is reimbursed from the proceeds of the sale in an amount equal to the amount expended from the fund for the redemption. The balance of the proceeds are applied against the amount of the tax, interest, penalties, and additions thereto, and for the costs of sale. The remainder, if any, would revert to the parties legally entitled to it.

As directed by the Internal Revenue Service Restructuring and Reform Act of 1998 (section 7802(d) 26 U.S.C.), the Internal Revenue Service Oversight Board shall annually review and approve a budget request for the Internal Revenue Service. The Oversight Board's approved request shall be submitted to the President by the Secretary without revision, and the President shall submit the request, without revision, to Congress together with the President's Budget request for the Internal Revenue Service. The 2004 Oversight Board budget recommendation for the Internal Revenue Service is $10,724 million.

The Office of the Comptroller of the Currency was created for the purpose of establishing and regulating a national banking system. The National Currency Act of 1863 (12 U.S.C. 1 et seq., 12 Stat. 665) rewritten and reenacted as the National Bank Act of 1864, provided for the chartering and supervising functions in this connection. The income of the bureau is derived principally from assessments paid by national banks and interest on investments in U.S. Government securities.

As the Administrator of National Banks, the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency charters new banking institutions only after investigation and due consideration of charter applications. Supervision of existing national banks is aided by the required submission of periodic reports and detailed onsite examinations, which are conducted by a staff of approximately 1,900 national bank examiners. At present, there are approximately 2,100 national banks and 52 Federal branches with total assets of more than $3.8 trillion.

In addition, the Comptroller considers applications for mergers in which the resulting bank will be a national bank and applications from banks to establish branches. The Comptroller of the Currency also promulgates rules and regulations for the guidance of national banks and bank directors.

The Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) was created by the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 (12 U.S.C. 1811 note). The OTS assumed the regulatory functions of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board dissolved by the same act.

The OTS charters, regulates and examines Federal thrifts, all of which are insured by the Savings Association Insurance Fund. In addition, the OTS cooperates in the examination and supervision of State-chartered thrifts insured by the Savings Association Insurance Fund. The OTS sets capital standards for Federal and State thrifts and reviews applications of State-chartered thrifts for conversion to Federal thrifts. It also reviews applications for establishment of branch offices.

Income of the bureau is derived principally from assessments on thrifts, examination fees and interest on investments in U.S. Government obligations. As of September 30, 2002, OTS oversees 983 thrifts with total assets of $987 billion.

DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS

The 2004 budget provides $28,057 million in discretionary funding for veterans health, benefits, and other services, including $30,199 million in gross discretionary budget authority and $2,141 million in anticipated discretionary medical collections.

VA is submitting its 2004 budget request using a new account structure that focuses on nine major programs—medical care, research, compensation, pension, education, housing, vocational rehabilitation and employment, insurance and burial. The new budget account structure will better position VA to more readily determine the full cost of each of our programs. This will allow the Department to more effectively evaluate the program results we achieve with the total resources associated with each program. A feature of the revised budget structure is requesting both mandatory and discretionary funding within each program while ensuring the Department fully complies with all provisions of the Budget Enforcement Act.

For 2004, the budget requests total resources for the VA Medical Care Business Line of $27.5 billion, an increase of $3.1 billion ($2.6 billion in appropriation and $0.5 billion in collections) over the 2003 level. This includes $25.4 billion in appropriated budget authority, $2.1 billion to be collected in the Medical Care Collections Fund.

The budget request also includes a comprehensive set of legislative and regulatory proposals that will refocus the VA health care system to better meet the needs of our highest priority core veterans—those with service-connected conditions, those with lower incomes, and veterans with special health care needs. These proposals are in response to the significant growth in enrollment and usage by priority level 7 veterans over the last 3 years, as well as anticipated future growth. To address the rapid growth in the number of health care users and ensure that VA continues to provide timely, high-quality health care to our core population, the proposals focus primarily on nonservice-connected veterans with comparatively higher incomes.

There are several major components to the set of proposals. First, stop enrollment of new priority level 8 veterans. Second, establish an annual enrollment fee for nonservice-connected priority level 7 veterans and all priority level 8 veterans. Third, increase co-payments for outpatient care and pharmacy benefits for priority level 7 and 8 veterans. Fourth, restrict institutional long-term care to veterans with service-connected conditions of 70 percent or greater and to veterans who require transitional, post-acute care. Fifth, reduce the pharmacy co-payment burden for priority level 2-5 veterans by raising the income threshold from the pension level of $9,690 to the aid and attendance level of $16,169. Sixth, require veterans to provide VA with health insurance information. The legislative proposals associated with these policy proposals are included in the general provisions of the appropriation request. Resource request estimates in this section reflect the net cost and revenue associated with these policy proposals.

The Medical Care Business Line appropriation finances the maintenance, administration, construction, alteration, and operation of a comprehensive, integrated health care delivery system that addresses the needs of the Nation's veterans.

Medical Care.—Provides for the health care system that supports eligible veterans; a national academic education and training program to enhance veterans' quality of care; responsibilities for assistance in natural emergencies and backup to the Department of Defense health care system; and administrative support for capital facilities.

National Program Administration.—Provides corporate leadership and support to VA's comprehensive and integrated health care system with a Headquarters' staff that includes a capital facilities management and development process.

Compensated Work Therapy Program (formerly Special Therapeutic and Rehabilitation Activities Fund).—This program provides a transition-working environment for veterans living in community assisted living arrangements under VA psychiatric care to help them become self-sufficient.

Capital Investments.—Provides for capital investments, necessary to ensure VA's infrastructure is adequate to support the delivery of quality health care. The capital investment program finances the following activities:

(1) Major and Minor Construction.—Provides for constructing, altering, extending, and improving any VA facility. This includes planning, architectural and engineering services, Capital Asset Realignment for Enhanced Services (CARES) activities, assessments, and site acquisition where the estimated cost of a project is $4,000,000 or over for major construction and less than $4,000,000 for minor construction.

(2) Grants for Construction of State Extended Care Facilities.—Provides for grants to assist States to acquire or construct State nursing home and domiciliary facilities and to remodel, modify, or alter existing hospital, nursing home, and domiciliary facilities in State homes, for furnishing care to veterans.

Medical Care Collections Fund (MCCF).—VA estimates collections of more than $2.1 billion, representing 8 percent of available resources. The objective of consolidating all collections into the MCCF is to improve planning, simplify systems, enhance the recovery of funds, and focus on accountability for medical collections. This fund will consist of revenue derived from the following sources:

(1) Medical Care Collections Fund.—VA has the authority to collect inpatient and outpatient co-payments, medication co-payments, and nursing home co-payments; authority for certain income verification; and authority to recover third-party insurance payments from veterans for nonservice-connected conditions.

(2) Health Services Improvement Fund.—VA collects funds as a result of any increase in pharmacy co-payments; enhanced use lease authority; and VA's agreements with the Department of Defense for the proposed provision of care to eligible military retirees.

(3) Long-Term Care Co-payments (formerly Veterans Extended Revolving Fund).—Long-term co-payments of $97 a day are collected from non-service connected veterans receiving extended care services such as geriatric evaluation; nursing home care; domiciliary services; adult day health care; other noninstitutional alternatives to nursing home care; and respite care.

(4) Compensated Work Therapy Program (formerly Special Therapeutic and Rehabilitation Activities Fund).—These funds are derived from actual work performed by patients and members in VA health care facilities under contracts developed with private industry, non-profit organizations, and state and federal entities and are used to support the program.

(5) Compensation and Pension Living Expenses Program (formerly Medical Facilities Revolving Fund).—Veterans who do not have either a spouse or child may have their monthly pension payments reduced to $90. The difference between the veteran's regular monthly pension payment and the $90 is transferred from the Compensation and Pension account to the Compensation and Pension Living Expenses Program.

(6) Parking Program (formerly Parking Revolving Fund).—VA collects parking fees for the use of parking facilities at VA facilities.

(7) Sale of Assets (formerly the Nursing Home Revolving Fund).—Provides for construction, alteration, and acquisition (including site acquisition) of medical care facilities through collections that may be realized from the transfer of any interest in real property that is owned by the United States and administered by the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Miscellaneous benefits and services.—An increase of $112 million is estimated in 2004 for the cost of this activity which includes items of nondirect medical care and treatment such as beneficiary travel, care of the dead, operation of personnel quarters at medical facilities, and the cost of furnishing supply, engineering, housekeeping, and other administrative support services to other departments on a nonreimbursable basis.

National program administration (NPA).—In 2004, an increase of $17 million reflects two major changes. First, there is a realignment of $8 million from direct medical care to NPA, which was previously reimbursed to NPA. As a result of the budget restructure, this $8 million is reflected as direct appropriation for NPA. Second, an increase of $9 million is estimated to fund the Reorganization of the Office of the Under Secretary for Health to allow greater oversight of the Veterans Integrated Service Networks.

Construction, major.—In 2004, an increase of $97 million is estimated for the implementation of the Capital Asset Re-alignment for Enhanced Services (CARES) program that will right-size the health care infrastructure. CARES will assess veterans' health care needs across the country and guide the reallocation of capital assets to support the delivery of quality health care.

Construction, minor.—In 2004, an increase of $15 million is estimated for construction projects costing less than $4 million. These projects will reduce risks to patient life and safety, correct code deficiencies, improve inpatient care and ambulatory care settings, and implement CARES. CARES funding is $42 million, an increase of $7 million over the 2003 budget.

Civilian health and medical program of the Department of Veterans Affairs (CHAMPVA).—An increase of $162 million is estimated in 2004 for private hospital and outpatient care for dependents and survivors of certain veterans.

Estimated operating levels are:

Grants to States.—In 2004, a decrease of $109 million is estimated for grants for construction of State extended care facilities. This decrease was due to an increase in obligations in 2003 because of a decrease in obligations funds in 2002. In 2003, VA will award additional grants to states to reduce the current inventory of grant request by using appropriated funds and drawing down unobligated balances. This is a very-cost effective program that helps meet veterans' nursing home care needs by providing grants to assist States in acquiring or construction State home facilities.

For 2004, the budget process provides total resources for the VA Medical and Prosthetic Research Business Line of $822.2 million, an increase of $28 million over the 2003 level. This appropriation represents 54 percent of the total $1.5 billion research effort with the balance of $206 million provided from private contributions and $483 million provided from federal programs support.

The 2004 budget request reflects a new account structure that will better position VA to more readily determine the full cost of a comprehensive research program leading the Nation's efforts to promote the health care of veterans. The Medical and Prosthetic Research Business Line includes the consolidation of what was the Medical and Prosthetic Research appropriation and the medical care research support funding formerly appropriated in the Medical Care appropriation.

This account is an intramural program whose mission is to acquire knowledge and create innovations that advance the health and care of veterans and the Nation. Veterans' health issues are addressed comprehensively in the following four program divisions and the medical care research support required for these programs:

Medical Research.—Medical Research strives to understand the disease process so that efficient, rational interventions can be made to cure or alleviate the effects of disease. The program supports investigator-initiated research projects, the training of clinicians in basic and clinical research, and centers of excellence devoted to specific diseases. The research is done in areas particularly relevant to the veteran population—aging, chronic disease, mental illness, substance abuse, military occupations, and environmental exposures.

Medical Research Support.—Provides the indirect costs of the VA Research and Development program which includes such costs as the facility utility costs associated with laboratory space; administrative costs of human resources support, fiscal service, and supply service attributable to research; research's portions of a medical center's hazardous waste disposal and nuclear medicine licenses; and, most importantly, the funding for the time clinicians devote to their research activities.

Rehabilitation Research.—Rehabilitation Research is dedicated to the development and application of science and engineering to improve the care and quality of life for the physically disabled. The program supports investigator-initiated research projects, the training of clinicians and engineers in rehabilitation research, centers of excellence devoted to specific disabilities, and technology transfer. The research is done in areas particularly relevant to the disabled veteran population—aging, sensory loss, and trauma related illness.

Health Services Research.—Health Services Research is directed toward improving the outcome effectiveness and cost efficiency of health care delivery for the veteran population. The program supports investigator-initiated research projects, the training of clinicians in applied clinical research, centers of excellence devoted to specific aspects of health care delivery, and service-directed projects addressing clinical management needs. The research focuses on the translation of research findings to clinical best practices for all veteran patients. Particular contributions are made in the areas of aging, substance abuse, health systems, and special populations.

Cooperative Studies.—Cooperative Studies Research has recently been separated from the Medical Research and Health Services Research programs and is directed toward large multi-site clinical trials. Cooperative Studies supports the clinical trials with its own statistical support centers and its own FDA-approved pharmacy. The research determines the efficacy and cost effectiveness of new medications and new treatment strategies of direct benefit to the veteran population in the areas of aging, chronic disease, mental illness, special populations, and military occupations and environmental exposures.

VA's Medical and Prosthetic Research programs are included in the Federal Science & Technology (FS&T) budget.

Focus Medical Research Programs.—Designated Research Areas are focused on prevalent conditions within the veteran patient population. VA maintains this focus by monitoring and ensuring that the vast majority of resources are directed to these research areas.

The mandatory request in this appropriation provides for the payment of compensation to veterans and survivors. Compensation is paid to veterans for disabilities incurred in or aggravated during active military service. Dependency and Indemnity Compensation is paid to survivors of servicepersons or veterans whose death occurred while on active duty or as a result of service-connected disabilities. Compensation and vocational rehabilitation is provided to the children of Vietnam veterans who were born with certain birth defects. The Secretary may pay a clothing allowance to each veteran who uses a prescribed medication for a service-connected skin condition or wears a prosthetic or orthopedic appliance (including a wheelchair) which, in the judgment of the Secretary, tends to damage or tear the clothing of such veteran.

In addition, certain disabled veterans are provided with automobile grants with the associated approved adaptive equipment. An allowance, up to a maximum of $9,000, is provided to certain service-disabled veterans and servicepersons toward the purchase price of an automobile. Adaptive equipment and the maintenance and replacement of such equipment is also provided. Miscellaneous benefits provided for are:

(a) payments to emergency officers of World War I and certain officers of the Regular Establishment who have retired because of service-connected disability;

(b) payments for claims made pursuant to the provision of the World War Adjusted Compensation Act of 1924, as amended;

(c) a special allowance (38 U.S.C. 1312) to dependents of certain veterans who died after December 31, 1956, but who were not fully and currently insured under the Social Security Act; and

(d) payments authorized by the Equal Access to Justice Act.

The mandatory request also includes a pilot program authorizing VA to contract out medical examinations to determine service-connected disabilities of veterans who are potential applicants of compensation benefits and a program to allow VA to perform income matches for certain compensation recipients.

In accordance with Public Law 97-377, the Reinstated Entitlement Program for Survivors (REPS) program restores social security benefits to certain surviving spouses or children of veterans who died of service-connected causes. Financing is provided in the form of offsetting collections from the Department of Defense.

The discretionary request in this appropriation provides for the corporate leadership and operational support to VA's Compensation business line. Additionally, funding is provided for capital asset investments.

Legislation is proposed to provide a cost-of-living adjustment comparable to the annual social security increase to recipients of disability compensation, dependency and indemnity compensation, and clothing allowances. The increase, effective with payments made on January 1, 2004, is expected to be 2.0 percent.

Legislation is proposed to authorize the regional benefits office in Manila, Philippines for an additional five years. Under current law, the authority to maintain and operate this facility expires on December 31, 2003. VA administers programs that provide compensation, pension, education, and burial benefits to veterans living in the Philippines.

(Legislative proposal, subject to PAYGO)

Legislation is proposed to restore the original interpretation of section 1110 of title 38 USC prohibiting the granting of service-connected disability arising secondarily from alcohol or drug-abuse. In February 2001, a three-judge panel of the US Court of Appeals interpreted section 1110 as not precluding compensation for an alcohol or drug-abuse-related disability arising secondarily from a service-connected disability. Enactment of this provision is estimated to save $127 million in 2004.

Legislation is proposed to provide payment at the full rate of authorized benefits for World War II veterans of the New Philippine Scouts and for survivors of Filipino veterans, who reside in the United States. Enactment of this proposal will result in additional cost of $3 million in 2004.

The mandatory request in this appropriation finances educational assistance allowances for certain service persons, peacetime veterans and for eligible dependents of those veterans: (a) who died from service-connected causes or have a total and permanent rated service-connected disability; and (b) servicepersons who were captured or missing in action. Voluntary contributions by eligible servicepersons and matching contributions provided by the Department of Defense are included in the Post-Vietnam Era Veterans Education Account.

The discretionary request in this appropriation provides for the corporate leadership and operational support to VA's Education business line. Additionally, funding is provided for capital asset investments.

In compliance with the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, the Education Loan Fund Program account is reported separately under the Vocational Rehabilitation and Education Loans Program account. The Education Loan program provides loans of up to $2,500 to dependents of veterans who are eligible for training benefits under chapter 35, title 38, U.S.C. and who are without sufficient funds to meet their education related expenses.

All Volunteer Force educational assistance (Montgomery GI Bill).—Public Law 98-525, enacted October 19, 1984, established two new peacetime educational programs: an assistance program for veterans who enter active duty during the period beginning July 1, 1985; and an assistance program for certain members of the Selected Reserve. The Education appropriation pays the basic benefit allowance for the peacetime veterans, except for certain Post-Vietnam Era Veterans Education participants who transferred to the Montgomery GI Bill program. Supplementary educational assistance and the basic benefit allowance for peacetime veterans, Post-Vietnam Era Veterans Education converters, and reservists are financed by payments from the Department of Defense and the Department of Transportation.

The following table shows a caseload and cost comparison for these beneficiaries under existing legislation.

The Administration will transmit legislation to extend the time for using education benefit for members of the National Guard activated after September 11, 2001, who qualify for chapter 35, regardless of whether they were called to active duty under title 10 or title 32 of the United States Code. The estimated cost in 2004 is $150,000 with an estimated ten year cost of $5 million.

The Administration will transmit legislation to modify the Montgomery G.I. Bill to enable veterans to be reimbursed for certain self-employment training programs. The estimated cost in 2004 is $360,000 with an estimated ten year cost of $4 million.

Legislation is required to extend the Department of Veterans Affairs Education Advisory Committee. Under current law, authority to maintain the committee expires December 31, 2003.

The Education Loan program has not issued a loan in over ten years. Since there is no longer a demand for the program, the Administration will transmit legislation to eliminate the program and waive all outstanding balances.

The Insurance business line administers six life insurance programs, including two trust funds, two public enterprise funds, a trust revolving fund, and Veteran's Mortgage Life Insurance (VMLI), and supervises two additional programs for the benefit of servicepersons, veterans, and their beneficiaries through contracts with a commercial company. All programs are operated on a commercial basis, to the extent possible, consistent with all applicable statutes. The Insurance appropriation is the funding mechanism for the following administration of the Government life insurance activities: U.S. Government Life Insurance Fund (USGLI); National Service Life Insurance (NSLI); Service-Disabled Veterans Insurance Fund (S-DVI); and Veterans Mortgage Life Insurance (VMLI).

Military and naval insurance.—Payments are made to the USGLI fund for certain World War I veterans for extra hazards of military service and for claims on war risk insurance issued to servicemen and veterans of World War I.

National service life insurance (NSLI).—Payments are made to the NSLI fund for certain World War II veterans for: (a) the extra hazards of service; (b) gratuitous insurance granted to certain persons unable to apply for national service life insurance; and (c) death claims on policies under the waiver of a premium while the insured was on active duty.

Payment to service-disabled veterans insurance fund (S-DVI).—Payments are made to the S-DVI fund to supplement the premiums and other receipts of the fund in amounts necessary to pay claims on insurance policies issued to veterans with service-connected disabilities.

Veterans mortgage life insurance (VMLI).—Payments are made to mortgage holders under this program, which provides mortgage protection life insurance to veterans who have received a grant for specially adapted housing due to severe disabilities. The general decline in the number of policies and the amount of insurance in force is expected to continue in 2004 as indicated in the following table.

The mandatory request in this appropriation provides for the payment of pensions to veterans or their survivors. A veteran's entitlement is based on active duty service of a specific length (normally 90 days or more) during a designated war period, disabilities considered permanent and total, and countable income below established levels. There is no disability requirement for survivor cases or veterans age 65 or older. Income support is provided at established benefit levels. An automatic annual cost-of-living increase comparable to the annual social security increase is provided for those pensioners in the improved program and to parents receiving dependency and indemnity compensation. The increase, effective with payments made on January 1, 2004, is expected to be 2.0 percent.

The discretionary request in this appropriation provides for the corporate leadership and operational support to VA's Pension business line. Additionally, funding is provided for capital asset investments.

The Department of Veterans Affairs administers a range of burial programs to benefit eligible veterans and family members. The responsibility for these programs is divided between two VA organizations. Most monetary benefits and the burial flags program are administered by the Veterans Benefits Administration (VBA). Cemetery programs and other in-kind benefits are administered by the National Cemetery Administration (NCA). Funding for the provision of burial benefits and services in VA is provided from the Burial Appropriation and the National Cemetery Gift Fund.

The mandatory request in this appropriation provides burial benefits for: (a) the payment of an allowance of $300 (plus transportation charges where death occurs under VA care) to reimburse, in part, the burial and funeral expense of an eligible deceased veteran; (b) the payment of $300 for a plot allowance where an eligible veteran is not buried in a national cemetery or other cemetery under the jurisdiction of the United States; (c) the payment of a burial allowance up to $2,000 when a veteran dies as the result of service-connected disability; (d) furnishing a flag to drape the casket of each deceased veteran entitled thereto; (e) furnishing a headstone or marker for the grave of a veteran and, in certain cases, eligible dependents; and (f) authority to provide outer burial receptacles in the National Cemetery Administration.

The discretionary request in this appropriation provides for the corporate leadership and support to VA's Burial business line and for four related programs managed by the National Cemetery Administration including: (1) burying eligible veterans and family members in national cemeteries and maintaining the graves and their environs as national shrines; (2) providing aid to States in establishing, expanding, or improving State veterans cemeteries; (3) providing headstones and markers for the graves of eligible persons in national, state, and private cemeteries; and (4) providing presidential memorial certificates to family and friends of deceased veterans, recognizing the veteran's contribution and service to the Nation. Additionally, funding is provided for capital asset investments.

Specific performance goals relating to the Burial business line are contained in VA's annual performance plan. The mission of the National Cemetery Administration is to honor veterans with a final resting place and lasting memorials that commemorate their service to our Nation. The National Cemetery Administration's vision is to provide a lasting tribute to our Nation's veterans by being mission-driven, results-oriented, and customer-focused. The National Cemetery Administration also reflects budget information for the National Cemetery Gift Fund. Through this Trust Fund, the Secretary is authorized to accept gifts and bequests which are made for the purpose of beautifying national cemeteries or are determined to be beneficial to such cemeteries, or are made for the purpose of the operation, maintenance, or improvement of the National Memorial Cemetery of Arizona.

The Administration will transmit legislation that would amend the effective date of eligibility for receiving a Government headstone or marker for a veteran's grave in a private cemetery regardless of whether or not it is already marked from September 11, 2001 to November 1, 1990.

The Administration will transmit legislation that would allow states to receive a burial plot allowance for all veterans buried at no cost in a state veterans cemetery.

This fund finances the payment of claims on nonparticipating life insurance policies issued and currently is open for new issues to veterans having service-connected disabilities. The program provides insurance coverage for service-disabled veterans at standard rates.

Operating costs—

Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

All other.—Represents payments to policyholders who surrender their policies for their cash value and hold endowment policies which have matured.

Capital investment.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94 percent of the value of his policy.

The trend in the number and amount of policies in force is indicated in the following table.

POLICIES AND INSURANCE IN FORCE

Financing.—Operations are financed from premiums and other receipts. Additional funds are received by transfer from the veterans' insurance and indemnities appropriation, instead of direct appropriations to this fund.

Operating results and financial condition.—Since premium and other receipts are insufficient to cover operations, the fund continues to project liabilities in excess of assets. The deficit is expected to reach an estimated $463 million by September 30, 2004.

Note.—The Department of Veterans Affairs insurance policy loans are not an extension of Federal credit. Credit schedules previously shown for this account have been discontinued.

This fund pays claims and administrative costs on participating life insurance policies issued during the period May 1, 1965, through May 2, 1966, under three life insurance programs: (1) service-disabled standard insurance; (2) service-disabled rated insurance; and (3) nonservice disabled insurance availing disabled World War II and Korean conflict veterans an opportunity to acquire life insurance coverage who were no longer eligible for other Government insurance.

Budget program—

Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

Dividends.—Policyholders participate in the distribution of annual dividends.

All other.—This represents resources for the administrative costs of processing claims and maintaining the accounts, and to those policyholders who: (a) surrender their policies for cash value; (b) hold endowment policies which have matured; and (c) have purchased total disability income coverage and subsequently become disabled.

Policy loans made.—A policyholder may borrow up to 94 percent of the cash value of his policy at an interest rate adjusted to reflect private sector borrowing costs.

The following table reflects the decrease in the number of policies and the amount of insurance in force:

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for these programs, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated and loan guarantees committed in 1992 and beyond, (including modifications of direct loans or loan guarantees that resulted from obligations or commitments in any year) as well as for the administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a net present value basis.

Veterans housing benefit program fund program account.—The Federal guaranty for this program protects lenders against the following types of losses: (a) for loans of $45,000 or less, 50 percent of the loan is guaranteed; (b) for loans greater than $45,000, but not more than $56,250, $22,500; (c) for loans more than $56,250, but less than $144,000, the lesser of $36,000 or 40 percent of the loan; or (d) for loans greater than $144,000, the lesser of $60,000 or 25 percent of the loan.

Native American veterans housing loan program account.—The Native American Veterans Housing Loan program provides direct loans to veterans living on trust lands under 38 U.S.C. chapter 37, section 3761. These loans are available to purchase, construct or improve homes to be occupied as the veteran's residence. The principal amount of a loan under this authority is generally limited to $80,000, except in areas where housing costs are significantly higher than average costs nationwide. This is a pilot program that began in 1993 and is authorized through December 31, 2005.

Guaranteed transitional housing loans for homeless veterans program account.—Public Law 105-368, the "Veterans Benefits Improvement Act of 1998," established a pilot project designed to expand the supply of transitional housing for homeless veterans and to guarantee up to 15 investment loans with a maximum aggregate value of $100 million. The project must enforce sobriety standards and provide a wide range of supportive services such as counseling for substance abuse and job readiness skills. Residents will be required to pay a reasonable fee. The Administration will transmit legislation that will convert the program from a mandatory loan program to a discretionary grant program in order to improve service to veterans subject to Congressional authorization.

Specially adapted housing grants.—Specially adapted housing grants, up to a maximum of $48,000, are provided to certain severely disabled veterans. Veterans who suffer service-connected blindness or who have lost the use of both upper extremities can receive up to $8,250. The following table shows caseload for this program. Specific performance goals are contained in VA's annual performance plan.

Legislation is proposed to extend VA's authority to sell and/or lease acquired properties to government agencies, nonprofit organizations and veteran service organizations to use in providing services primarily to homeless veterans. The provision allowing VA to sell and/or lease these properties expires December 31, 2003.

The discretionary request in this appropriation provides for the corporate leadership and operational support to VA's housing business line. Additionally, funding is provided for capital asset investments.

The Housing program facilitates the extension of private capital, on more liberal terms than generally available to nonveterans, to: assist veterans and servicepersons in obtaining housing credits; provide grants to aid permanently and totally disabled veterans in acquiring specially adapted housing; and assist veterans in retaining their homes during periods of temporary economic difficulty through intensive supplemental mortgage loan servicing.

Note.—The Department of Veterans Affairs insurance policy loans are not an extension of Federal credit. Credit schedules previously shown for this account have been discontinued.

This fund was established in 1940. It is for the World War II servicemen's and veterans' insurance program. Over 22 million policies have been issued under this program. Activity of the fund reflects a rising claim workload. The trend in the number and amount of policies in force is shown as follows:

POLICIES AND INSURANCE IN FORCE

Insurance in force (dollars in millions) .....	$15,550	$14,809	$14,005

This fund is operated on a commercial basis to the extent possible. The income of the fund is derived from premium receipts, interest on investments, and payments which are made to the fund from the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation.

Assets of the fund, which are largely invested in special interest-bearing Treasury securities and in policy loans, are expected to decrease from $11,991 million as of September 30, 2003 to $11,587 million as of September 30, 2004. The actuarial estimate of policy obligations as of September 30, 2003, total $11,315 million, leaving a balance of $272 million for contingency reserves.

Note.—The Department of Veterans Affairs insurance policy loans are not an extension of Federal credit. Credit schedules previously shown for this account have been discontinued.

This fund was established in 1919 to receive premiums and pay claims on insurance issued under the provisions of the War Risk Insurance Act. The general decline in the activity of the fund is indicated in the following table:

POLICIES AND INSURANCE IN FORCE

	2002 actual	2003 est.	2004 est.
Number of policies .....	13,217	11,700	10,240
Insurance in force (dollars in millions) .....	$42	$37	$32

The fund is operated on a commercial basis to the extent possible. The income of the fund is derived from interest on investments and payments from the Veterans insurance and indemnities appropriation. Effective January 1, 1983, premiums were discontinued because reserves held in the fund were adequate to meet future liabilities of the program.

Assets of the fund, which are largely invested in interest-bearing securities and policy loans, are estimated to decrease from $59 million as of September 30, 2003, to $52 million as of September 30, 2004, as an increasing number of policies mature through death or disability. The actuarial evaluation of policy obligations as of September 30, 2004, totals $51 million, leaving a balance of $1 million for contingency reserves.

The status of the fund, excluding noncash transactions, is as follows:

Note.—The Department of Veterans Affairs insurance policy loans are not an extension of Federal credit. Credit schedules previously shown for this account have been discontinued.

This fund finances the payment of claims on life insurance policies issued before January 3, 1957, to veterans who served in the Armed Forces subsequent to April 1, 1951. No new policies can be issued. Policyholders may elect to purchase total disability income coverage with the payment of additional premiums.

Budget program—

Death claims.—Represents payments to designated beneficiaries.

Cash surrenders.—A policyholder may terminate his or her insurance by cashing in the policy for its cash value.

Dividends.—Policyholders participate in the distribution of annual dividends.

All other.—Classified in this category are payments to policyholders who: (a) hold endowment policies which have matured; (b) have purchased total disability income coverage and subsequently become disabled; and (c) are paid interest on dividend credits and deposits.

The following table reflects the decrease in the number of policies and the amounts of insurance in force:

POLICIES AND INSURANCE IN FORCE

Number of policies .....	227,341	220,340	212,650
Insurance in force (dollars in millions) .....	$2,604	$2,564	$2,514

Financing.—Payments from this fund are financed primarily from premium receipts and interest on investments.

Operating results and financial condition.—Lower than expected death rates on insurance written against this fund has kept death claim payments well below the amount of premium and interest receipts, thereby producing an annual increase in the total revenue of the fund. Excess earnings of the fund are now distributed to the policyholders in the form of an annual dividend.

Under the provisions of 38 U.S.C. 8121, the Supply Fund is responsible for the operation and maintenance of a supply system for VA. The Supply Fund is an intragovernmental revolving fund without fiscal year limitations.

Budget program.—The fund provides financial support for: (1) a National Acquisition Center or central contracting office; (2) the maintenance of field station inventories; (3) a service and distribution center; (4) a service and reclamation program; (5) a national prosthetics distribution center; and (6) an asset management service.

Costs for the administration of supply activities at VA field stations are not financed by the Supply Fund. These costs are charged directly to applicable appropriations accounts.

Financing.—Costs of supplies, equipment, and services acquired through the Supply Fund and Supply Fund operating costs are recovered through reimbursements from the VA appropriations and other Government agencies receiving goods and services. For 2004, Supply Fund sales are estimated to reach $1.26 billion. Average inventory needed to support those sales will be $34 million.

Operating results.—The Fund operated at a profit of $25 million in 2002. The new total of retained earnings is $77 million. Operating expense as related to sales was 6 percent.

VA was chosen as a pilot Franchise Fund agency under the Government Management and Reform Act, P.L. 103-356, of 1994. This budget's general provisions extends the authority under that Act. Established in 1997, administrative services included in the Franchise Fund are financed on a fee-for-service basis rather than through VA's General Administration appropriation. VA Enterprise Centers are the lines of business within the VA Franchise Fund and are expected to have net billings of about $164 million and employ 762 people, who were transferred from their parent organizations.

The Franchise Fund concept is intended to increase competition for government administrative services resulting in lower costs and higher quality.

This appropriation funds construction, major rehabilitation, and related activities for water resources projects whose principal purpose is to provide navigation, flood and storm damage reduction, or aquatic ecosystem restoration benefits to the Nation.

The budget focuses on completing ongoing construction projects, rather than starting new projects that add to the existing workload. New projects delay the completion of ongoing projects.

The budget proposes to expand the use of the Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund to include all Federal costs associated with coastal port and channel construction. See "Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund" and "Inland Waterways Trust Fund" for the construction costs financed through those accounts.

This account includes $66 million for the Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan (CERP), which represents 4.9 percent of the total request for this account and 1.6 percent of the total 2004 request for the Corps of Engineers. Funding the CERP at this level would not have a significant impact on the overall Corps of Engineers civil works program in the 2004 budget year. The budget assumes continuation of the study and design phases for CERP projects over the next few years, which would not have a significant impact on the overall Corps of Engineers civil works program. Future levels of funding for construction of CERP projects will depend on the availability of funds, and the impact of such future long-term funding on the overall Corps of Engineers civil works program cannot be determined at this time. The budget for the Department of the Interior (DOI) includes an additional $9 million for the CERP.

This Corps account and the DOI budget include $78 million and $103 million, respectively, for other Everglades work. Therefore, the budget includes a total of $256 million for the Everglades restoration effort for FY 2004.

The budget provides funds for the continuing authorities program (projects that do not require specific legislation), which includes projects for flood control (Section 205), emergency streambank and shoreline protection (Section 14), beach erosion control (Section 103), mitigation of shore damages (Section 111), navigation (Section 107), snagging and clearing (Section 208), aquatic ecosystem restoration (Section 206), beneficial uses of dredged material at operating projects (Sections 204, 207, and 933), and project modifications for improvement of the environment (Section 1135).

For expenses necessary for the operation, maintenance, and care of existing river and harbor, flood and storm damage reduction, aquatic ecosystem restoration, and related projects; for providing security for infrastructure owned and operated by, or on behalf of, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, including administrative buildings and facilities, laboratories, and the Washington Aqueduct; for the maintenance of harbor channels provided by a State, municipality, or other public agency that serve essential navigation needs of general commerce, where authorized by law; and for surveys and charting of northern and northwestern lakes and connecting waters, clearing and straightening channels, and removal of obstructions to navigation, $1,939,000,000, to remain available until expended, of which such sums as are necessary to cover one-quarter of the costs of operation and maintenance of all Federal inland waterways that have averaged more than five billion ton-miles of commercial cargo per year over the past five years, and one-half of the cost of operation and maintenance of all other Federal inland waterways, shall be derived from the Inland Waterways Trust Fund; of which such sums as are necessary to cover the Federal share of operation and maintenance costs for coastal harbors and channels shall be derived from the Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund; of which such sums as become available from the special account for the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers established by the Land and Water Conservation Act of 1965, as amended (16 U.S.C. 4601-6a(i)), may be derived from that account for resource protection, research, interpretation, and maintenance activities related to resource protection in the areas at which outdoor recreation is available; and of which such sums as become available under section 217 of the Water Resources Development Act of 1996, Public Law 104-303, shall be used to cover the cost of operation and maintenance of the dredged material disposal facilities for which fees have been collected.

Note.—A regular 2003 appropriation for this account had not been enacted at the time the budget was prepared; therefore, this account is operating under a continuing resolution (P.L. 107-229, as amended). This appropriation funds operation, maintenance, and related activities at the water resources projects that the Corps of Engineers operates and maintains. Work to be accomplished consists of dredging, repair, and operation of structures and other facilities, as authorized in the various River and Harbor, Flood Control, and Water Resources Development Acts. Related activities include aquatic plant control, monitoring of completed coastal projects, removal of sunken vessels, and the collection of domestic waterborne commerce statistics. The budget proposes to use this account to fund all of the costs associated with protecting Corps of Engineers facilities from potential security threats. This appropriation also includes funds for National Emergency Preparedness under Executive Order 11490.

The budget proposes to expand the use of the Inland Waterways Trust Fund to include the costs of operating and maintaining, as well as constructing and rehabilitating, the inland waterways system. Specifically, the fund also would finance a portion of the system's operation and maintenance costs, as follows: (a) one-quarter of the operation and maintenance costs of all Federal inland waterways that have averaged more than five billion ton-miles of traffic per year over the past five years; and (b) one-half of the costs of operating and maintaining all other Federal inland waterways. See "Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund" and "Inland Waterway Trust Fund" for the operation and maintenance costs financed through those accounts.

In accordance with Section 2406 of the National Energy Policy Act of 1992 (P.L. 102-486), the Secretary of the Army entered into an agreement with the Bonneville Power Administration for direct funding of hydropower activities in the Pacific Northwest beginning in FY 1999. The budget is proposing the direct funding of hydropower operation and maintenance for the three other Federal Power Marketing Administrations that sell power generated at Corps of Engineers facilities.

This account includes no funding for the Comprehensive Everglades Restoration Plan (CERP), as these projects are in the study and design phases; therefore, funding the CERP at this level would not have a significant impact on the overall Corps of Engineers civil works program in the 2004 budget year. The budget assumes continuation of the study phase for CERP projects over the next couple of years, which would not have a significant impact on the overall Corps of Engineers civil works program. Future levels of funding for operation and maintenance of CERP projects will depend on the pace of project construction and availability of funds. The impact of such future long-term funding on the overall Corps of Engineers civil works program cannot be determined at this time.

The budget proposes to finance the costs of operation and maintenance of certain Army Corps of Engineers hydropower facilities directly from receipts collected by the Southeastern Power Administration, the Southwestern Power Administration, and the Western Area Power Administration. Each year, these Power Marketing Administrations would transfer an agreed upon amount to the Army Corps of Engineers for deposit in its "Operation and Maintenance" account. The transferred funds would be treated as an offsetting collection. The $1,939,000,000 request for "Operation and Maintenance" for FY 2004 includes $145,000,000 derived from such receipts. A direct funding arrangement already is in place for the Bon-neville Power Administration.

The Inland Waterways Trust Fund is authorized under the Inland Waterways Revenue Act of 1978 (P.L. 95-502), as amended by the Water Resources Development Act of 1986 (P.L. 99-662). Revenue is derived from taxes imposed on fuel for vessels engaged in commercial waterway transportation, plus investment interest. The budget shows all activity related to the Inland Waterways Trust Fund as occurring within this account, rather than in the "Construction" and "Operation and Maintenance" accounts.

The fund is used to pay one-half of the construction and major rehabilitation costs of specified federal inland waterways projects. The budget proposes to expand the use of the fund to include the costs of operating and maintaining, as well as constructing, the inland waterways system. Specifically, the fund would finance a portion of the system's operation and maintenance, as follows: (a) one-quarter of the operation and maintenance costs of all federal inland waterways that have averaged more than five billion ton-miles of traffic per year over the past five years; and (b) one-half of the costs of operating and maintaining all other federal inland waterways.

The Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund is authorized under the Harbor Maintenance Revenue Act of 1986 (P.L. 99-662, Title XIV), as amended. Revenue is derived from receipts from a 0.125 percent ad valorem tax imposed upon commercial users of specified U.S. ports, Saint Lawrence Seaway tolls, and investment interest. The budget shows all activity related to the Harbor Maintenance Trust Fund as occurring within this account, rather than in the "Construction" and "Operation and Maintenance" accounts.

The Harbor Maintenance Revenue Act authorized expenditures from this fund to finance up to 100 percent of Corps of Engineers harbor operation and maintenance costs, including the operation and maintenance of Great Lakes navigation projects. The fund fully finances the operation and maintenance of the Saint Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation. Public Law 104-303 authorized the federal share of construction costs for facilities under the dredged material disposal facilities program to be derived from the fund.

The North American Free Trade Agreement Implementation Act (P.L. 103-182, section 683), authorized payment from the fund of administrative expenses incurred by the Department of the Treasury, the Army Corps of Engineers, and the Department of Commerce related to administration of the harbor maintenance tax, but not to exceed $5,000,000 for any fiscal year.

The budget proposes to expand the use of the fund to include all federal costs associated with coastal port and channel construction.

A 1995 decision by the United States Court of International Trade, United States Shoe Corp. v. United States (Case No. 94-11-00668), found the harbor maintenance tax unconstitutional under the export clause of the Constitution (Article I, section 9, clause 5), and enjoined the Customs Service from collecting the tax on exports. The Supreme Court affirmed that decision on March 31, 1998.

Public Law 98-94 provided for accrual funding of the military retirement system and for the establishment of a Department of Defense Military Retirement Fund in 1985. The fund has three sources of income. The first is payments from the Military Personnel accounts, which cover the liability for future benefits accruing to current service members. The second is a payment from the general treasury to cover the accrued unfunded liability of current members and current retirees. The third source is income from the investment of fund balances from past and current payments into the fund.

Public Law 106-398 provides for accrual funding for health care to Medicare-eligible retirees. The statute establishes an accrual health care fund which has three sources of funding: The first is monthly payments from the Military Personnel accounts, which cover the liability for future benefits accruing to current service members. The second is an annual payment from the general treasury on the accrued unfunded liability and the third source is income from the investment of fund balances.

The President's Budget proposes to extend accrual financing to non-Medicare eligible retirees.

The 1991 Defense Authorization Act, Public Law 101-510, created an Armed Forces Retirement Home Trust Fund to finance the United States Soldiers' and Airmen's Home and the United States Naval Home. The homes, which are currently in operation, are financed by appropriations drawn from the trust fund.

The Armed Forces Retirement Home is cooperating with the Department of Defense on a Most Efficient Organization Study and an updated Federal Activities Inventory Reform Act (FAIR) inventory to consider additional outsourcing opportunities. Proceeds from the lease of excess land are projected to add to the revenue estimates.

The Armed Forces Retirement Home provides medical and domiciliary care and other authorized benefits for the relief and support of certain retired and former military personnel of the Armed Forces.

The average number of members receiving domiciliary and hospital care are shown below:

The Selective Service System (SSS) continues to register men as they reach age 18, as required by law, and maintain an active data base of registrant records. Should the Nation return to conscription for a national emergency, the agency would have the first draftees at military processing centers 193 days after a mobilization. In cooperation with the Department of Defense, Active Duty and Reserve Officers are being reduced to reflect the reduced readiness requirements.

The SSS will continue to strengthen its partnership with the Armed Services. The agency will continue its national initiative to offer every young man that receives an acknowledgment, almost two million annually, the opportunity to volunteer for the military services.

In addition to improving its business processes and national registration compliance statistics, while helping to sustain military recruiting efforts, the Agency is incorporating advanced information technology architectures to ensure faster, more accurate registration processing and better customer services via the Internet.

This appropriation supports EPA's core programs, and the Agency's effective management goal to establish a management infrastructure that will set and implement the highest quality standards for effective internal management and fiscal responsibility. To assist the Agency in accomplishing this goal, the Office of Inspector General (OIG) will provide audit, evaluation, and investigative products and advisory services to improve the performance and integrity of EPA programs and operations. These products and services will contribute substantially to improved environmental quality and human health. Specifically, the OIG performs contract audits and investigations which focus on costs claimed by contractors, and on the award and management of contracts. Assistance agreement audits and investigations evaluate the award, administration, and costs of assistance agreements. Program audits, evaluations and investigations determine the extent to which the desired results or benefits envisioned by the Administration and Congress are being achieved, and identify activities that contribute to or undermine the integrity, efficiency, and effectiveness of Agency programs. Financial statement audits review financial systems and statements to ensure that adequate controls are in place and the Agency's accounting information is accurate, reliable and useful, and complies with applicable laws and regulations. Systems audits review the economy, efficiency, and effectiveness of operations by examining the Agency's management structures, its strategic planning, human resources development, customer focus, and process management. Additional funds for audit, evaluation and investigative activities associated with the Superfund Trust Fund are appropriated under that account and transferred to the Inspector General account to allow for proper accounting, including the costs of the ombudsman function. This appropriation also supports activities under the Working Capital Fund.

This appropriation finances salary, travel, science, technology, research and development activities including laboratory and center supplies, certain operating expenses (including activities under the Working Capital Fund), contracts, grants, intergovernmental agreements, and purchases of scientific equipment. These activities provide the scientific and technology basis for EPA’s regulatory actions.

Superfund research costs are appropriated in the Hazardous Substance Superfund appropriation and transferred to this account to allow for proper accounting. A portion of funding provided through this account to support the mobile sources program is to be derived from fees charged for motor vehicle engine certifications that are deposited in the Environmental Services special fund.

This appropriation supports core Agency programs and a number of the Agency’s ten goals. Specifically in 2004, our emphasis will be placed on the following:

Clean Air.—To ensure that every American community has safe and healthy air to breathe, EPA will conduct a range of science and technology activities. These include research on the effects to human health of toxic air pollutants, and research on criteria air pollutants (ozone, carbon monoxide, sulfur dioxide, nitrogen dioxide, lead, and particulate matter) to develop the scientific basis for EPA’s national ambient air quality standards. EPA will also develop control measures for mobile sources, including the development of cleaner engine technologies, and cleaner burning fuels and tools for States to develop clean air plans and achieve the air quality standards.

Clean and Safe Water.—To support the goal of the American public having water that is clean and safe to drink, EPA will conduct research to support development of water quality and safe drinking water standards. A concerted effort will be made to help small communities meet the new drinking water standards for arsenic, microbial contaminants, and disinfection byproducts. EPA will work with states, tribes, drinking water and wastewater utilities, and other partners to enhance the security of water utilities. EPA will also conduct the research to strengthen the scientific basis for development of effective beach evaluation tools, and to enhance understanding of the structure and function of aquatic systems through the development of improved aquatic ecocriteria.

Safe Food.—To ensure that the food the American public consumes will be free from unsafe pesticide residues, EPA research laboratories and centers provide analytical and environmental chemistry services in support of EPA’s registration, reregistration and tolerance/reassessment programs for food-use pesticides. Also, EPA laboratories will provide analytical chemistry capabilities to validate food tolerance enforcement methods.

Preventing Pollution and Reducing Risk in Communities, Homes, Workplaces and Ecosystems.—EPA will enhance its assessments of potential risks to human health and ecological systems from commercial chemicals, microorganisms and genetically modified organisms. Pollution Prevention and risk management strategies will be aimed at cost-effectively eliminating, reducing, or minimizing potential risks due to emissions and contamination. The Agency aims to improve indoor environments through technical support, analysis and producing necessary information to understand indoor air effects, and identifying potential health risks so that risk managers can make informed decisions.

Better Waste Management, Restoration of Contaminated Waste Sites, and Emergency Response.—To ensure that America's waste will be stored, treated, and disposed of in ways that prevent harm to people and the environment, EPA will research ways to reduce uncertainties associated with ground-water/soil/sediment sampling and analysis, to develop methods and models of contaminant transport, and to reduce the time and cost associated with site characterization and the site remediation activities that it guides. Field analytical methods for characterizing soils are also intended to provide cheaper and more timely analyses and to reduce the uncertainty of site characterization.

Reduction of Global and Cross-Border Environmental Risks.—EPA global change research is dedicated to enhancing our capability to assess the vulnerability of human health and ecosystems to climate-induced stressors at the regional scale, and to assess mitigation and adaptation strategies. The Agency will continue to work with the U.S. automobile industry in a cooperative research effort to develop advanced automotive powertrain and engine technology that is both clean and highly fuel efficient. This effort will focus on developing cost-effective, near-term technologies for cleaner and more efficient cars and trucks that can run on both conventional and renewable fuels. Through its Transportation Efficiency Program, EPA will support ongoing efforts to provide public information about transportation choices and consumers' impact on air quality, traffic congestion and climate changes.

Quality Environmental Information.—To provide the public with information about the environment, EPA will continue to focus on improving data collection and data quality and on deploying new technologies for real time and automated measurement, monitoring and information delivery. EPA intends to develop policies and procedures for planning, documenting, implementing and assessing data collection for use in making Agency decisions.

Sound Science, Improved Understanding of Environmental Risk, and Greater Innovation to Address Environmental Problems.—EPA will develop and apply the best available science for addressing current and future environmental hazards, as well as new approaches toward improving environmental protection. The Agency will continue to improve its understanding of risks to the health of the American public and the Nation's ecosystems. EPA will address emerging environmental issues while seeking to develop innovative, cost-effective solutions to pollution prevention and risk reduction. EPA will seek to reduce uncertainties in risk assessment and help to prevent and manage risk by using cost-effective approaches.

A Credible Deterrent to Pollution and Greater Compliance with the Law.—The National Enforcement Investigations Center is the primary source of forensics expertise in EPA. It provides technical services not available elsewhere to support the needs of EPA Headquarters and Regional offices, other Federal Agencies, and state and local environmental enforcement organizations.

Effective Management.—EPA will improve the quality of its internal management, contract administration, and fiscal responsibility efforts. The Agency will invest in its employees through training, education and implementation of automated and streamlined human resource processes. The Agency will focus its contracting efforts on performance-based service contracts instead of the traditional cost-plus, level-of-effort contracting, relying on guidance developed by the Office of Federal Procurement Policy. EPA will concentrate on resolution of material weaknesses previously identified in the area of grant closeouts, and on implementation of the best practices identified government-wide by the General Account Office (GAO) for information resources management and integration of information technology investments. EPA will also provide support for electronic reporting to reduce the burden to the Agency's highest-volume submitters.

This appropriation includes funds for salaries, travel, contracts, grants, and cooperative agreements for pollution abatement, control, and compliance activities and administrative activities of the operating programs, including activities under the Working Capital Fund.

This appropriation supports core Agency programs and each of the Agency's ten goals. Specifically in 2004, EPA will emphasize the following:

Clean Air.—To ensure that every American community has safe and healthy air to breathe, EPA will develop and implement new strategies to attain ambient air quality standards for ozone and particulate matter, and reduce regional haze through geographic initiatives in areas where significant transport of pollutants occurs. EPA will continue to develop and issue national technology-based and risk-based standards to reduce the quantity of toxic air pollutants emitted from industrial and manufacturing processes, as well as urban sources. EPA will also develop control measures for mobile, stationary and other sources that are regulated at the Federal level. The Acid Rain program will continue its market-based approach to achieving reduced emissions of sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxides primarily from electric utilities.

Clean and Safe Water.—To provide all Americans with water that is clean and safe to drink, EPA will work with States and Tribes in developing and implementing new drinking water standards for microbiological contaminants, disinfectant and disinfection byproducts, and chemicals identified as posing high risks. EPA will also work with its State and Tribal partners to address protection of drinking water sources and will take a leadership role to enhance security at drinking water and wastewater facilities. EPA will provide the tools and guidance for its partners to better protect the Nation's waters, and protect and restore wetlands. EPA and its partners will make progress toward completing Total Maximum Daily Loads (TMDLs) for impaired U.S. waters and improving implementation of TMDL programs. EPA will work with its partners to assure effective implementation of the National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System and pretreatment program. EPA will also work with its partners to address sources of polluted runoff.

Safe Food.—To ensure that the foods Americans eat will be free from unsafe levels of pesticide residues, EPA plans to apply strict health-based standards to the registration of pesticides for use on food or animal feed, ensure that older pesticides meet current health standards, decrease the use of pesticides with the highest potential to cause adverse effects, and expedite and increase the registration of safer pesticides.

Preventing Pollution and Reducing Risk in Communities, Homes, Workplaces and Ecosystems.—Pollution prevention and risk management strategies will be aimed at cost-effectively eliminating, reducing, or minimizing toxic chemical emissions and contamination. EPA intends to reduce potential human and environmental risks as a result of pesticides from commercial and residential exposure, as well as programs targeting farmworker protection, endangered species protection, environmental stewardship, and integrated pest management. Through voluntary actions, EPA seeks to ensure healthier indoor air for American homes, schools and office buildings. EPA plans to encourage the development of safer chemicals by minimizing or reducing the regulatory burdens on new chemicals that replace more hazardous chemicals already in the marketplace. The toxicity of wastes will be reduced by focusing on reductions in persistent, bioaccumulative and toxic (PBTs) chemicals. The quantity of wastes will also be reduced through source reduction and recycling.

Better Waste Management, Restoration of Contaminated Waste Sites, and Emergency Response.—To ensure that America's waste will be stored, treated, and disposed of in ways that prevent harm to people and to the natural environment, EPA will continue its Hazardous Waste Minimization and Combustion Strategy, including setting new standards for hazardous waste incinerators and cement kilns that burn hazardous waste. In addition, the Agency will focus on controlling human exposures and groundwater releases at Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA) facilities designated as high priority for corrective action. EPA will develop and promulgate standards, regulations, and guidelines to reduce exposure from radiation sources. The Agency will also provide for the federal administrative expenses of brownfields cleanup activities. Funds reimbursed to EPA under the Exxon Valdez settlement are available to carry out authorized environmental restoration activities.

Reduction of Global and Cross-Border Environmental Risks.—The United States will lead other nations in successful, multilateral efforts to reduce significant risks to human health and ecosystems from climate change, stratospheric ozone depletion, and other environmental hazards of international concern. EPA will implement formal bilateral and multilateral environmental agreements with key countries, execute environmental components of key foreign policy initiatives, and engage in regional and global negotiations aimed at reducing environmental risks via formal and informal agreements. EPA will cooperate with other countries to ensure that domestic and international environmental laws, policies, and priorities are recognized and implemented and, where appropriate, promoted within the multilateral development assistance and trading system. EPA will also emphasize domestic and international efforts to limit the production and use of ozone-depleting substances and develop safe alternative compounds, and demonstrate and promote public/private partnership programs that reduce greenhouse gas emissions. In accordance with the Great Lakes Legacy Act, EPA will work with states and tribal partners to remediate contaminated sediment sites. Contaminated sediments can adversely affect human health and aquatic life and contribute to fish consumption advisories. Remediation will help remove toxic pollutants from the Great Lakes, resulting in water quality improvements and fish that are less contaminated and safer to eat.

Quality Environmental Information.—The unprecedented changes in information technology over the past few years, combined with an increasing public demand for information, are altering the way the Agency and States collect, manage, analyze, use, secure, and provide access to quality environmental information. EPA is working with the States and Tribes to strengthen our information quality, leverage information maintained by other government organizations, and develop new tools that provide the public with simultaneous access to multiple data sets, allowing users to understand local, state, regional, and national environmental conditions. Key to achieving information quality will be the further development of the National Environmental Information Exchange Network, which is primarily an affiliation between EPA and the States and Tribes. EPA will continue to develop and define a fundamentally new approach to integrating, managing, and providing access to environmental information. EPA will continue to reduce reporting burden, improve data quality, and speed data publications by increasing the amount of electronic reporting under the Toxic Release Inventory (TRI). EPA intends to expand the use of the Internet for delivering this information.

Sound Science, Improved Understanding of Environmental Risk, and Greater Innovation to Address Environmental Problems.—EPA will maximize the potential to reduce uncertainties in risk assessment, and help to prevent and manage risk, by using cost-effective approaches such as the place-and facility-based strategies (e.g., the Community-Based Environmental Protection strategy).

A Credible Deterrent to Pollution and Greater Compliance With the Law.—EPA will ensure full compliance with laws intended to protect human health and the environment. The Agency will use new and innovative approaches of compliance assistance and compliance incentives as well as traditional enforcement activities to promote compliance by the regulated community, set risk-based compliance and enforcement priorities, and strategically plan and target activities to address environmental problems associated with industry sectors and communities.

Effective Management.—EPA will improve the quality of its internal management, contract administration, and fiscal responsibility efforts. The Agency will invest in its employees through training, education and implementation of automated and streamlined human resources processes. The Agency will focus its contracting efforts on performance-based service contracts instead of the traditional cost-plus, level-of-effort contracting, relying on guidance developed by the Office of Federal Procurement Policy. EPA will concentrate on implementation of the best practices identified government-wide by the General Accounting Office (GAO) for information resources management and integration of information technology investments. EPA will also provide support for electronic reporting to reduce the burden to the Agency's highest-volume submitters.

This appropriation supports core Agency programs and a number of the Agency's ten goals.

Clean and Safe Water.—This Agency goal is to ensure people are provided clean and safe water to drink, and to protect and restore America's water bodies to improve public health, enhance water quality, reduce flooding, and provide wildlife habitat. In support of this goal, EPA will provide funds for capitalization grants to States for Clean Water State Revolving Funds (SRFs), the purpose of which are to make low interest loans to communities and grants to Indian Tribes and Alaska Native Villages to construct wastewater treatment infrastructure, and fund other projects to enhance water quality. Since 1988, the Federal Government has invested approximately $19.5 billion in grants to help capitalize the 51 SRFs. With required State match, additional State contribution, and funds from program leveraging, funds made available for such loans total approximately $42.4 billion. EPA's goal is for the Clean Water SRFs to attain a long-term revolving level of $2.8 billion annually.

Capitalization grants are also provided for the Drinking Water SRFs, which make low interest loans to public water systems and grants to Indian Tribes and Alaska Native Villages to upgrade drinking water infrastructure to help them provide safe drinking water. EPA's goal is for the Drinking Water SRFs to attain a long-term revolving level of $1.2 billion annually.

Direct grants are also provided to help address the significant water and wastewater infrastructure needs of Alaska Native Villages and for a direct grant to Puerto Rico for the design of drinking water infrastructure improvements to the Metropolitan community water system in San Juan, Puerto Rico. Upon eventual completion of these infrastructure improvements in San Juan, another 1.4 million people will receive drinking water that meets public health standards for high risk contaminants.

EPA will support its partnerships with States and Tribes through media-specific and multi-media, and/or Performance Partnership grants to: (1) increase the number of community drinking water systems that meet all existing health-based standards, (2) protect watersheds by reducing point and nonpoint source pollution, (3) decrease the net loss of wetlands, and (4) address agricultural and urban runoff and storm water.

Clean Air.—To ensure that every American community has safe and healthy air to breathe, EPA will provide funds to States to upgrade and improve air monitoring networks to obtain better data on emissions of particulate matter, ozone, and for regional haze programs. The Budget includes an additional $7 million to expand and improve air toxics monitoring to assess EPA air toxics programs. EPA will offer media-specific and multi-media, and/or Performance Partnership grants to States and Tribes, and technical assistance to aid in the development of State and Tribal Implementation Plans to support solutions that address local air needs.

Preventing Pollution and Reducing Risk in Communities, Homes, Workplaces and Ecosystems.—EPA plans to offer media-specific and multi-media, and/or Performance Partnership grants to States and Tribes, focusing on pollution prevention, lead, endangered species, worker protection, pesticide applicator certification and training, source reduction and recycling. Best approaches for encouraging recycling of non-hazardous industrial wastes will also be identified through work with the State and Tribal partners. The agency intends to provide assistance to States for the development and implementation of State programs to assess and mitigate radon.

Better Waste Management, Restoration of Contaminated Waste Sites, and Emergency Response.—To ensure that America's waste will be stored, treated, and disposed of in ways that prevent harm to people and to the natural environment, EPA will work with States, Tribes and local governments to put environmental protection and decision making in the hands of those closest to the problems, while maintaining a Federal leadership role. In addition, EPA will fund brownfields projects resulting in 1,000 assessments, paving the way for productive reuse of these properties and bringing the cumulative number of sites assessed to over 5,000. There will be direct assistance through media-specific, and multi-media and/or Performance Partnership grants to enable Tribes to implement hazardous waste programs.

A Credible Deterrent to Pollution and Greater Compliance With the Law.—To promote compliance with laws intended to protect human health and the environment, EPA will offer media specific and multi-media funding to States and Tribes for compliance assurance activities including compliance assistance and incentives, inspections and enforcement activities.

Reduction of Global and Cross-Border Environmental Risks.—The Agency will provide direct grant assistance to address the serious environmental and human health problems associated with untreated and industrial and municipal sewage on the U.S.-Mexico border. In 2004, a cumulative 990 thousand residents of the U.S.-Mexico border area will be protected from health risks because of the construction of adequate water and wastewater sanitation systems since 1994. These funds also support attainment for the Clean and Safe Water goal. EPA has met its NAFTA commitment to provide a total of $700 million for drinking water and wastewater infrastructure needs in the area. However, in recognition of the continuing environmental and public health needs in the area, the Budget continues funding for these activities.

Quality Environmental Information.—EPA plans to provide $25 million to States to better enable them to integrate their environmental information systems. The purpose of this support is two-fold: to assist the Agency in managing for results and to allow States to maintain the necessary presence in this area.

The Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980, as amended, authorizes appropriations from the general fund to finance activities conducted through the Hazardous Substance Superfund. The authorization for general fund payments to the Superfund expired in 1995, but the Administration proposes to continue the payment from the general fund at $1,100,000,000 million in 2004.

ENVIRONMENTAL SERVICES

Beginning in fiscal year 2004 and thereafter, the Administrator is authorized to assess fees from any person required to submit data under section 4 or 5 of the Toxic Substances Control Act without regard to the dollar limitations established in section 26(b)(1) of the Act. Such fees shall be calculated based on costs associated with administering those sections of the Act, and shall be paid at the time of data submission, unless otherwise specified by the Administrator. The Administrator may take into account the ability to pay of the person required to submit the data. The Administrator shall promulgate rules to implement this provision. Such rules may provide for allocating the fee in any case in which the expenses of data submission under section 4 or 5 are shared. Fees collected under this provision shall be deposited in a special fund in the U.S. Treasury, which thereafter will be available, subject to appropriation, to carry out the Agency's activities for which such fees are collected.

Note.—A regular 2003 appropriation for this account had not been enacted at the time the budget was prepared; therefore, this account is operating under a continuing resolution (P.L. 107-229, as amended). The amounts included for 2003 in this budget reflect the Administration's 2003 policy proposals.

A special fund was established for the deposit of fee receipts associated with environmental programs, including motor vehicle engine certifications. Receipts in this special fund will be appropriated to the Science and Technology account in 2004 to finance the expenses of the programs that generate the receipts. Contingent appropriations language is being proposed to modify the cap on the allowable fee that can be charged to recover the costs of EPA's Premanufacture Notification program, for which EPA will issue a rulemaking. Enactment of this appropriations language and needed authorizing legislation would generate $4 million in receipts in 2004 that would be discretionary under the Budget Enforcement Act.

Fees are paid by industry to offset costs of accelerated reregistration, expedited processing of pesticides, and establishing tolerances for pesticide chemicals in or on food and animal feed. Tolerance reassessment activities will in large part be financed by the tolerance fee, which is authorized by the Food Quality Protection Act of 1996. The President's Budget includes a proposal to extend through fiscal year 2006 at a reduced level, the pesticide maintenance fee which is scheduled to expire before 2004. This fee, which was originally authorized in the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act of 1988, will be used for reregistration activities and expedited processing of similar applications, as required by law.

EPA received authority to establish a Working Capital Fund (WCF) and was designated a pilot franchise fund under Public Law 103-356, the Government Management and Reform Act of 1994. EPA's WCF became operational in 1997 and includes two activities: Enterprise Technology Services Division's computer operations and Agency postage. The 2004 amount reflects only base resources and may change during the year as programmatic needs change. The Agency received permanent authority for the WCF in P.L. 105-65, which among other things is intended to increase competition for government administrative services resulting in lower costs and higher quality.

This appropriation provides funds for the implementation of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation and Liability Act of 1980, as amended (CERCLA) including activities under the Working Capital Fund. This appropriation supports core Agency programs and four of the Agency's ten goals. Specifically in 2004, emphasis will be placed on the following:

Better Waste Management, Restoration of Contaminated Waste Sites, and Emergency Response.—EPA expects to complete cleanups at 40 sites and conduct 350 removal actions. EPA will initiate remedial action at 8 to 15 additional sites with expanded resources to regions. Through 2002, cleanups had been completed at 846 sites, and 7,119 removal actions had been taken. EPA responds to terrorism by cleaning up contaminated buildings, monitoring ambient conditions around disaster areas, and removing hazardous materials. EPA will conduct research to provide improved methods, models and technologies to support the Agency's objective of reducing or controlling health risks at contaminated sites. EPA will also work to maximize responsible parties' participation in site cleanups while promoting fairness in the enforcement process, and pursue greater recovery of EPA's cleanup costs. EPA will allocate funds from its appropriation to other Federal agencies to carry out the Act.

Quality Environmental Information.—EPA will continue to inform decision makers and provide access to balanced environmental data. Environmental information will better enable the public to understand conditions and make knowledgeable choices about protecting the health and the environment of local communities. It will lead to creative and sustainable solutions to environmental problems and opportunities for pollution prevention. Quality environmental information is crucial to sound decision making and to establishing public trust and confidence in those decisions.

A Credible Deterrent to Pollution and Greater Compliance With the Law.—EPA will investigate and refer for prosecution criminal and civil violations of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (CERCLA).

Effective Management.—EPA will work to ensure fiscal responsibility in support of site cleanups. EPA will continue to implement performance-based service contracts instead of the traditional cost-plus, level-of-effort contracts, and will improve the quality and availability of information on the status and use of resources.

The Leaking Underground Storage Tank (LUST) Trust Fund, authorized by the Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act of 1986, as amended by the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 and the Taxpayer Relief Act of 1997, provides funds for responding to releases from leaking underground petroleum tanks, including activities under the Working Capital Fund. The Trust Fund is financed by a 0.1 cent a gallon tax on motor fuels, that will expire after March 31, 2005.

Funds are allocated to the States through cooperative agreements to clean up those sites posing the greatest threat to human health and environment. Funds are also used for grants to non-state entities, including Indian Tribes, under section 8001 of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act. EPA supports oversight, cleanup and enforcement programs which are implemented by the States. LUST Trust Fund dollars can be used for State-lead cleanups and for State oversight of responsible party cleanups.

This appropriation supports core Agency programs and two of the Agency's ten goals. Specifically in 2004, emphasis will be placed on the following:

Better Waste Management, Restoration of Contaminated Waste Sites, and Emergency Response.—To ensure that America's waste will be stored, treated, and disposed of in ways that prevent harm to people and to the natural environment, EPA will support State and Tribal efforts to design and implement risk-based corrective action programs. These programs will help to reduce the backlog of Underground Storage Tank (UST) sites with confirmed releases waiting to be addressed, and to enforce the 1998 UST leak detection and upgrade standards.

Effective Management.—EPA will support the States' and EPA's efforts to regulate and oversee the cleanup of leaking underground storage tanks, through a management infrastructure that sets and implements the highest quality standards for effective internal management and fiscal responsibility.

As part of the 2004 Budget, the Administration is requesting a consolidation and financial realignment of the Executive Office of the President (EOP) accounts that directly support the President. The initiative would consolidate the annual appropriations of the Compensation of the President and White House Office (including resources for the Office of Homeland Security), Executive Residence, White House Repair and Restoration, the Office of Policy Development, the Council of Economic Advisers, the National Security Council, and the Office of Administration, into a single appropriation called "The White House."

Also included as part of the requested consolidation is a title VI general provision that would provide for a 10 percent transfer authority among the following accounts: The White House, Special Assistance to the President and Official Residence of the Vice President, Office of Management and Budget, United States Trade Representative, Office of National Drug Control Policy, Council on Environmental Quality, and the Office of Science and Technology Policy. Transfers from the Special Assistance to the President and the Official Residence of the Vice President account are subject to the approval of the Vice President.

This initiative provides enhanced flexibility in allocating resources and staff in support of the President and Vice President, and permits more rapid response to changing needs and priorities.

This White House account, with estimated 2004 costs, includes: Compensation of the President and the White House Office ($70.7 million—including the Office of Homeland Security), the Executive Residence at the White House ($12.5 million), White House Repair and Restoration ($4.2 million), Council of Economic Advisors ($4.5 million), Office of Policy Development ($4.1 million), National Security Council ($10.6 million), and the Office of Administration ($77.2 million).

These funds are to be used by the Vice President to carry out responsibilities assigned to the Vice President by the President and by various statutes. These funds also provide for the care and operation of the Vice President's official residence ($318 thousand and 1 FTE in 2002, and requests of $324 thousand and 1 FTE and $331 thousand and 1 FTE in 2003 and 2004 respectively).

The Federal Buildings Fund finances the activities of the Public Buildings Service which provides space and services for Federal agencies in a relationship similar to that of landlord and tenant.

The Fund, established in 1975, replaces direct appropriations by using income derived from rent assessments which approximate commercial rates for comparable space and services. Rent and other income to the Fund is as follows:

The Federal Buildings Fund program consists of the following activities financed from rent charges:

Construction and acquisition of facilities.—Space is acquired through the construction or purchase of facilities and prospectus-level extensions to existing buildings. All costs directly attributable to site acquisition, construction, and the full range of design and construction services and management and inspection of construction projects are funded under this activity.

Repairs and alterations.—Repairs and alterations of public buildings as well as associated design and construction services are funded under this activity. Protection of the Government's investment, health and safety of building occupants, transfer of agencies from leased space, and cost effectiveness are the principal criteria used in establishing priorities. Primary consideration is given to repairs to prevent deterioration and damage to buildings, their support systems, and operating equipment. This activity also provides for conversion of existing facilities and non-prospectus extensions.

Installment acquisition payments.—Payments are made for liabilities incurred under purchase contract authority and lease purchase arrangements. The periodic payments cover principal, interest, and other requirements.

Rental of space.—Space is acquired through the leasing of buildings including space occupied by Federal agencies in U.S. Postal Service facilities, 159 million rentable square feet in 2003, and 162 million rentable square feet in 2004.

Building operations.—Services are provided for Government-owned and leased facilities, including cleaning, utilities and fuel, maintenance, miscellaneous services (such as moving, evaluation of new materials and equipment, and field supervision), and general management and administration of all real property related programs including salaries and benefits paid from the Federal Buildings Fund. The following list shows the 2003 and 2004 direct program (estimated square feet and expenses in millions):

For presentation purposes, the balances of the Unconditional Gifts of Real, Personal, or Other Property trust fund have been combined with the Federal Buildings Fund.

This appropriation covers relocation costs involved in moving agencies from valuable underutilized property, targeted for public sale, to facilities determined to be more economically suitable to their needs. Relocation and disposal is considered when the benefit/cost ratio is at least 2:1. The sale of these valuable underutilized properties would provide significant revenue to the Treasury and would far outweigh the relocation costs involved.

No appropriation is requested for this program in 2004. GSA will solicit relocation proposals from agencies.

The expenses of Transportation Audit Contracts and Contract Administration activities are financed from overcharges collected from carriers on transportation bills paid by the Government as a result of post payment audits. In 1986, Public Law 99-627 granted GSA the authority to conduct prepayment audits and to delegate this authority to Federal agencies, upon their request; permanent authority to pay transportation audit contractors from carrier overcharges collected; and authority to transfer net overpayments collected to the Treasury. In 1998, with the passage of the Travel and Transportation Act, the prepayment audit of transportation bills became mandatory. The Act's changes were fully implemented in October 2000.

In 2002, $13 million of carrier overpayments were collected, and $5 million were returned to the U.S. Treasury, resulting in net receipts of $8 million.

The Federal Supply Service (FSS) General Supply Fund (GSF) finances activities which offer federal agencies an extensive range of commercial services and more than 4 million commercial products. To provide total solutions for customers, FSS acquisition and service delivery activities are organized around five business lines: Supply, Commercial Acquisition, Personal Property Management, Travel and Transportation, and Vehicle Acquisition and Leasing Services.

FSS employs world-class business practices to provide customers with economical, efficient, and effective service delivery with significant savings in time and administrative costs. Customers can make best-value choices with different levels of services, with almost all service and product delivery provided by commercial suppliers through more than 10,000 FSS contractors. In fiscal year 2002, FSS' business volume was $27.3 billion, and is projected to be $31.4 billion in fiscal year 2004. FSS operations are largely funded through the GSF with its operating expenses recovered in the prices paid by federal agencies.

FSS customers are able to choose the level of service and program support that is right for the acquisition of products and services at any given time. More importantly, the government benefits whenever federal agencies rely upon the procurement and logistics expertise of FSS to help fulfill their supply needs. Benefits accrue from volume purchasing, FSS contracting expertise, and programs that are compliant with federal procurement and socioeconomic policies. FSS promotes commercial buying practices, reduces acquisition time, and under non-mandatory programs, provides agencies opportunities to determine best value—helping them get what they need, when they need it, to do their jobs effectively and focus on core missions.

The Federal Supply Service also plays an important role in expanding electronic government (E-Gov), one of the five key elements of the President's Management Agenda. In supporting this goal the FSS will invest $44.7 million and $7 million in 2003 and 2004 respectively in information technology projects within the E-Gov initiative. GSA is the lead agency for three FSS mission-related projects; e-Acquisition, e-Property (Federal Asset Sales), and e-Travel.

Supply.—Quick fulfillment of recurring customer needs for basic business and mission supplies by leveraging best practices in supply chain management programs is the primary objective and focus of the Office of Supply. Fulfillment solutions for supplies include electronic and hard copy catalogs, multiple ordering channels, FSS management of billing and paying transactions, order administration, and customer service support. The Supply program is fully complementary to the services offered through the Commercial Acquisition Multiple Award Schedules program. More important than providing service solutions, is support of the Government's national defense and other strategic mission responsibilities, as well as its socioeconomic objectives. This business line is funded through prices paid by customer agencies.

To optimize operating costs, the Supply program completed consolidation of its distribution operations into two Distribution Centers at Stockton, California and Burlington, New Jersey, in January 2002. The consolidation decision was based on an independent analysis performed by the Logistics Management Institute showing FSS could save approximately $176 million over a ten-year period. These savings include all costs to close six distribution centers. FSS is also relocating operations from Stockton, California to Sharpe Army Depot, California. The relocation will be accomplished by March 2003, allowing operating, transportation and space costs to be reduced by over $9 million annually. Payback of an approximate $20 million relocation investment will be within 3 years.

Commercial Acquisition.—Commercial Acquisition offers federal agencies millions of commercial products and an extensive range of technology, financial, environmental, management, and administrative services through the Multiple Award Schedules program. Agencies can make best-value choices and purchase directly from commercial suppliers through over 10,000 FSS schedule contracts. In 2004, GSA will receive revenue for Schedules program contract administration in the amount of 0.75 percent of the Schedules business volume. This reduction from the one percent fee that was recovered in 2003 and prior fiscal years will save customer agencies over $50 million in 2004. Customer agencies are able to purchase over 2.4 million items from the Schedules program through GSA Advantage, an on-line electronic catalog system. In fiscal year 2002, the business volume under the Schedules program was $21.6 billion.

Personal Property Management.—FSS' personal property program specializes in government cost avoidance and property sales through comprehensive electronic solutions. Property no longer needed by one federal agency is entered into an electronic system for screening and use by other federal agencies, thereby avoiding new procurements. Property with no further federal use can be screened electronically by eligible recipients and is offered at no cost to state and local governments and eligible nonprofit groups. Property whose value cannot be extended by reuse or donation is sold to the public, primarily through on-line auctions.

Travel and Transportation.—The FSS Travel and Transportation business line helps control the government's direct and administrative costs for travel and transportation services. Travel services include negotiated airline contracts, travel agency, and travel charge card services. Airline City-Pairs contracts will continue to save Federal agencies about 70 percent off the commercial value of each fare, or $3.0 billion. A change to capacity-based fares during fiscal year 2002 will be continued to allow the airline industry to better manage its seat inventory. This change provides Federal agencies the incentive to book airline travel early for the best fares. Transportation services include the shipment of parcels, freight and household goods. The business line also oversees the use of audit contractors to examine the government's air passenger, freight and household goods transportation billings to identify and seek recovery of incorrect billings and overpayments for the federal government. In recent years, federal travel and transportation budgets have totaled approximately $24 billion each year. This business line is funded through prices and fees paid by Federal agencies.

Vehicle Acquisition and Leasing Services.—The Vehicle Acquisition and Leasing Services business line provides two distinct services. One service, GSA Automotive, manages the acquisition of vehicles for all federal agencies through consolidated acquisitions and the Multiple Award Schedules program. By consolidating all their customer requirements, they are able to leverage their buying power to achieve significant discounts. In fiscal year 2002, GSA Automotive contracted for over 60,000 sedans, trucks and other non-tactical vehicles worth more than $1.2 billion. FSS continues to save customers about 20 percent off the invoice prices listed in the Black Book Lease Guide. This service is funded through prices and fees paid by Federal agencies.

The other service, GSA Fleet, manages a fleet of more than 188,000 vehicles. GSA Fleet provides non-tactical vehicles needed by civilian and military customer agencies with a comprehensive "cradle to grave" leasing program. GSA Fleet handles all aspects of the management of these assets, including vehicle acquisition, maintenance and repairs, accident management, fuel expenses, and resale of the used vehicles.

Revenue is generated through monthly and mileage charges. GSA Fleet continues to grow. From 1998 through 2002, 28,963 vehicles were added by consolidating other Federal fleets.

The Fund finances the operations of the Federal Technology Service (FTS) in providing telecommunications and information technology solutions to Federal agencies on a reimbursable basis (fee for service) through four business units:

Long Distance.—FTS provides long-distance telecommunications service that offers the Federal Government low-cost, state-of-the-art, integrated voice, data, and video telecommunications. Services are provided through an eight-year multibillion dollar long-distance contract with business partners Sprint and MCI Worldcom. Complementing this business unit are specialized services which offer customers the benefits of satellite, wireless, paging, Internet and other services. FTS switched voice rates have decreased from a national average of 27 cents per minute in FY 1988 to 5.8 cents per minute under the predecessor contracts. Under the existing contracts prices began at about 4.5 cents per minute and will decrease to less than 1 cent per minute by the end of the contracts' period.

Regional Telecommunications Services.—FTS provides local voice and data telecommunications to Federal agencies nationwide. In the wake of reforms initiated by the Telecommunications Act of 1996, FTS is pursuing lower prices for local service in major markets through its Metropolitan Area Acquisitions (MAA) program, as well as continuing to provide local telecommunications service to areas not served by the MAA providers. The MAA program takes advantage of competition to achieve substantial price reductions for local telecommunication services in metropolitan areas. After a forbearance period of at least one year from the date of award of an MAA contract, the Government may execute an option to allow the FTS2001 long-distance vendors to offer optional local services and an option to allow winning MAA vendors in one city to offer local services in another city. To date, a total of 43 MAA contracts have been awarded to six industry partners in 26 cities nationwide, including the WITS2001 contract, that services the Washington, DC metropolitan area.

Regional IT Solutions.—Through its regional sales centers, FTS provides Federal agencies with systems definition and design, business and scientific software services, computer security studies and risk analyses, and access to all of FTS' products and services. A large part of the business unit is designed to enable Federal agencies to purchase commercial off-the-shelf information technology software, equipment and non-complex services. It offers Federal agencies products and services, plus the "value-added" contracting services support that focuses on shortest time, lowest cost, and highest quality as a composite procurement approach. The business unit relies on various contracting solutions: GSA's multiple-award schedules (MAS), government-wide acquisition contracts (GWACS) for specialized buys, and multiple award 8(a) contracts with small businesses.

National IT Solutions.—FTS assists Federal agencies on large, complex systems integration efforts, including hardware, software, maintenance, training and analyst support; delivers full service management of information technology acquisitions worth more than $100 million; enables agencies to purchase information systems security services from various industry sources; and develops and deploys innovative new service areas that incorporate the most current technologies and approaches to solving Federal IT problems such as implementing financial and administrative systems, and providing a full range of smart card services, and outsourcing solutions for the IT needs of Federal agencies.

Funds are appropriated in accordance with the Presidential Transition Act of 1963, as amended, to provide for an orderly transfer of executive leadership. These expenses include costs related to briefing personnel associated with the incoming administration. New appropriations are generally requested in Presidential election years.

In the case where the President-elect is the incumbent President or in the case where the Vice President-elect is the incumbent Vice President, there shall be no expenditure of funds for the provision of services and facilities to such incumbent under this Act, and any funds appropriated for such purposes shall be returned to the general fund of the Treasury.

Public enterprise funds:

The Federal Citizen Information Center (FCIC) Fund provides for the efficient operation of the FCIC's activities. Under the revolving fund, the FCIC's activities are financed from moneys deposited to the fund, consisting of annual appropriations from the general funds of the Treasury, reimbursements from agencies, fees collected from the public, gifts for undertaking consumer information activities, and other income incident to FCIC activities.

Administrative expenses.—The Federal Citizen Information Center (FCIC) maintains close working relationships with more than 40 Federal departments and agencies to identify, develop, promote, and make accessible to the public Federal consumer information. The FCIC helps these departments and agencies release consumer information collected as a by-product of their program activities. The FCIC promotes public awareness of this information through publication of the quarterly Consumer Information Catalog, through marketing and media promotions, and through Internet websites located at www.pueblo.gsa.gov, www.info.gov, and www.kids.gov. The FCIC also produces and distributes the Consumer Action Handbook, which provides information to citizens in resolving consumer problems, and it operates a toll-free National Contact Center for responding to citizen inquiries about the Federal Government. FCIC's websites and National Contact Center are part of GSA's evolution into the premier electronic portal through which citizens may access a wide variety of Federal Government information and services. This is a key element of the Administration's initiative to expand Electronic Government (E-Gov). During FY 2002, GSA created a new Office of Citizen Services and Communications of which FCIC is an important part. As part of this reorganization, FCIC acquired operational responsibility for the FirstGov.gov website. Administrative expenses are funded by the direct appropriation, by fees collected from the public when ordering publications listed in the Catalog, and by revenue received through FCIC's gift authority.

Publications distribution.—The FCIC bills agencies and in turn reimburses the Government Printing Office for the costs of distributing free publications to the public.

This fund provides for management and administration, and centralized internal and external reimbursable administrative support functions.

Centralized administration.—Centralized administrative support services are funded through reimbursable funding from GSA’s benefiting accounts and from external sources including small agencies and commissions for services provided. Reimbursable services include administrative, information resources management, financial and management support, legal advice and services, and equal employment opportunity; budgetary policy and liaison activities with Congress and OMB; and management review and oversight of financial management systems. This funding provides liaison with the Small Business Administration on national minority business proposals and contracts to ensure that minority and small businesses receive a fair share of the agency’s business. This activity is also responsible for implementation and execution of the functions and duties under sections 8 and 15 of the Small Business Act (P.L. 95–507).

At the Inter-American Development Bank on March 14, 2002, President Bush called for "A new compact for global development, defined by new accountability for both rich and poor nations alike. Greater contributions from developed nations must be linked to greater responsibility from developed nations." The President pledged that the United States would lead by example and increase its core development assistance by 50 percent over the next three years. These increased funds will go into a new Millennium Challenge Account (MCA). Because sound policies are an essential condition of development, the President announced that the MCA will be "devoted to projects in nations that govern justly, invest in their people and encourage economic freedom."

The MCA will be administered by a new government corporation designed to support innovative strategies and to ensure accountability for measurable results. This small independent agency will be supervised by a Board of Directors composed of Cabinet level officials and chaired by the Secretary of State. The CEO of the Millennium Challenge Corporation will be nominated by the President and confirmed by the Senate. Personnel will be drawn from a variety of government and non-government agencies and will serve limited-term appointments. The Corporation will be designed to make maximum use of flexible authorities to optimize efficiency in contracting, program implementation, and personnel.

Selection of specific countries will be based on a set of criteria that will, as stated by President Bush, "reward nations that root out corruption, respect human rights, and adhere to the rule of law . . . invest in better health care, better schools and broader immunization . . . [and] have more open markets and sustainable budget policies . . ." Given the link between financial accountability and success, countries failing to achieve a passing score on the corruption indicator will be ineligible, absent material change in their circumstances.

During 2004, the first year of MCA operation, it is anticipated that only countries eligible to borrow from the International Development Association and which have per capita incomes below $1,435 will be considered for selection. By 2006, it is anticipated that country eligibility will be broadened to include all countries with per capita incomes up to $2,975, the current World Bank cutoff for lower middle income countries.

This account supports U.S. foreign policy objectives by providing economic assistance to allies and countries in transition to democracy, supporting Middle East peace negotiations, and financing economic stabilization programs, frequently in a multi-donor context. Key objectives include:

(1) Supporting strategically significant friends and allies through assistance designed to increase the role of the private sector in the economy, reduce government controls over markets, enhance job creation, and improve economic growth.

(2) Developing and strengthening institutions necessary for sustainable democracy. Typical areas of assistance include technical assistance to administer and monitor elections, capacity-building for non-governmental organizations, judicial training, and women's participation in politics. Assistance is also provided to support the transformation of the public sector to encourage democratic development, including training to improve public administration, promote decentralization, strengthen local governments, parliaments, independent media and non-governmental organizations.

(3) Strengthening the capacity to manage the human dimension of the transition to democracy and a market economy and to help sustain the neediest sectors of the population during the transition period.

This is a proposal for a new appropriation that is intended to assist the President to quickly and effectively respond to or prevent unforeseen complex foreign crises by providing resources that can be drawn upon at the onset of a crisis. This appropriation will be used to fund a range of foreign assistance activities, including support for peace and humanitarian intervention operations to prevent or respond to foreign territorial disputes, armed ethnic and civil conflicts that pose threats to regional and international peace, and acts of ethnic cleansing, mass killing or genocide. Use of this appropriation will require a determination by the President that a complex emergency exists and that it is in the national interest to furnish assistance in response. This appropriation will not fund assistance activities in response to natural disasters because existing contingency funding is available for that purpose.

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (IBRD or World Bank) provides financing and technical assistance to support infrastructure investment and policy reform. IBRD operations are designed to promote sustainable economic growth increase productivity growth, and raise living standards, including through targeted investments in basic human needs, private-sector development, and core policy reforms.

The IBRD made new commitments of $11.5 billion during 2002, IBRD gross disbursements were $11.3 billion. Since its establishment in 1945, the IBRD has made loans totaling $371 billion. No request is being made for IBRD capital in 2004.

The IBRD acts as trustee for the Global Environment Facility (GEF) Trust Fund. The GEF provides technical assistance and partial funding for developing country investments designed to provide global environmental benefits by reducing international water pollution and ozone depletion, and by promoting biodiversity and energy conservation. The U.S. has activity supported the GEF's expanded focus to include a new international environmental agreement on persistent organic pollutants, which are of particular concern in the northern U.S. With its highly specific focus on global environmental issues—where both costs and benefits are shared across international borders—the GEF occupies an important niche in the system of international financial institutions. Its basic mission is to support innovative and cost-effective pilot investments whose design and environmental benefits can be duplicated (and financed) elsewhere. Under strong U.S. leadership, agreement was reached on policy reforms for the third replenishment (GEF-3) to further improve GEF's performance, including development of a performance-based allocation system, development of a private sector strategy, and the creation of an independent monitoring and evaluation unit. GEF has been making substantial progress in leveraging its limited resources. The World Bank, the UN Development Program, the UN Environment Program and, increasingly, private investors, provide substantial co-financing for GEF projects. Since its inception in 1994, total GEF commitments amount to about $3.4 billion, with associated co-financing of about $10.3 billion.

The initial U.S. commitment to the GEF in 1995 amounted to $430 million, and the second replenishment (GEF-2) agreed to in 1998, also included a U.S. commitment of $430 million in four installments over the 1999-2002 period. The third replenishment (GEF-3) agreed to in 2002 includes a U.S. commitment of $500 million in four installments from 2003-2006. The fourth installment includes an additional $70 million, which is tied to GEF meeting specific performance targets in the GEF-3 period. In 2004, the Administration is requesting $77.5 million to clear a portion of arrears and $107.5 million for the second installment of the U.S. pledge of $500 million to GEF's third replenishment (GEF-3).

The International Development Association (IDA) is a member of the World Bank Group and provides development financing on highly concessional terms and great terms to the world's poorest nations. These countries are primarily in Sub-Saharan Africa and South Asia, but also in Latin America, Eastern Europe, and the former Soviet Union. IDA places special emphasis on achieving sustained productivity growth and poverty reduction, and particularly strives to meet the exceptional development challenges faced by Africa within its broad commitment to support all the world's poor countries. IDA is the single largest source of multilateral lending extended on concessional terms to developing countries. Projects have to meet the same economic, financial, and environmental standards as other World Bank projects. IDA resources for new lending are increasingly provided by earnings and repayments of existing loans and are augmented by new donor contributions through periodic "replenishments."

During 2002, IDA made new commitments of $8.1 billion, and IDA's gross disbursements were $6.6 billion. Since its establishment, IDA has made commitments totaling $135 billion.

Under the thirteenth replenishment (IDA-13), IDA will provide total resources for prospective new loan commitments of $22.8 billion over the 2003-2005 period. The U.S. pledge of $2.85 billion over the three years (roughly 22 percent of total donor contributions), is subject in part to a set of performance indicators, tied to increased contributions in 2004 and 2005. Through the IDA-13 replenishment negotiations, U.S. leadership secured a number of commitments for reform of IDA, most crucially resulting in a bolder stance on the use of grants and focus on measurable results. IDA committed to the initiation of a performance measurement system, including outline of approach, baseline data, outcome indicators, and progress targets. The U.S. made $300 million of its overall contribution conditional on IDA making sufficient progress towards performance targets for the second and third years of IDA-13. IDA will also allocate 18-21% of its total resources as grants. Priority for grants will be given to the poorest countries, those that are post-conflict and/or highly debt-vulnerable, and for HIV/AIDS or natural disaster reconstruction projects. The 2004 request consists of $950 million for the second year of our commitment under the replenishment and $26.8 million to clear a portion of arrears to IDA.

The Multilateral Investment Guarantee Agency (MIGA) is a member of the World Bank Group. MIGA is designed to encourage the flow of foreign private investment to and among developing countries by issuing guarantees against noncommercial risks and carrying out investment promotion activities.

During World Bank fiscal year 2002, MIGA issued 58 guaranteed contracts, with a maximum aggregate contingent liability of $1.2 billion. Since MIGA's inception, estimated foreign direct investment facilitated totals $45.8 billion.

Negotiations of MIGA's first General Capital Increase (GCI) were completed in 1998. The United States committed to contribute a total of $30 million in paid-in capital and nearly $140 million in callable capital over three years. The agreement included commitments from MIGA on a range of policy issues of substantial importance to the U.S., including environment, information disclosure, labor, and creation of an inspection function for greater accountability and transparency. In 2000, the Administration sought and received congressional authorization for our full participation in the MIGA GCI.

The 2004 request is $4 million to clear a portion of arrears to MIGA.

The Inter-American Development Bank (IDB) promotes sustainable economic growth and productivity, poverty reduction, private sector development, and good governance in Latin America and the Caribbean through loans and technical assistance.

In 2002, the IDB made new lending commitments of $4.5 billion; gross disbursements were $5.4 billion. Since its inception in 1960, the Bank has lent over $118 billion.

The Bank provides financing through: (1) the Ordinary Capital window that lends at market-based rates; and, (2) the Fund for Special Operations (FSO), which provides financing on concessional terms to the region's poorest nations.

No request is being made for the IDB or FSO in 2004.

The Inter-American Investment Corporation (IIC), established in 1984, is a member of the Inter-American Development Bank Group, whose purpose is to promote development of private small and medium sized enterprises (SMEs) in Latin America and the Caribbean. It is a legally autonomous entity whose resources and management are separate from those of the Inter-American Development Bank itself. Through direct loans and equity investments in SMEs as well as through lending to private financial intermediaries, the IIC helps SMEs in the region to access the medium/long-term capital necessary to start-up, expand, or modernize their operations.

During 2002, the IIC approved 20 projects totaling $123 million. Since its inception, the IIC has approved 283 projects for a total amount of $1.5 billion. Of these, 113 projects, representing $393 million, remain active.

The 2004 request includes budget authority of $25 million for paid-in subscription for the fifth and final payment and $5.9 million for a portion of arrears to the IIC.

The Asian Development Bank (ADB) fosters broad-based sustainable economic growth and development, poverty alleviation, and cooperation in the Asia/Pacific region. The ADB has two main financing windows: (i) the ordinary capital window and (ii) the Asian Development Fund (ADF) which lends at concessional rates to the region's poorest nations.

ADF resources are derived in part from donor contributions through periodic "replenishments." In the most recent replenishment, ADF-8, the United States successfully negotiated a comprehensive package of policy reforms while maintaining our contribution at $412 million over four years.

ADF-8 put in place, for the first time, a system to allocate ADF resources based on the performance of borrowing countries. This includes performance on fiscal measures and good governance, as well as performance in managing the portfolio. Agreement was also reached on internal changes, including establishment of a Board committee on development effectiveness and a commitment to strengthen the Bank's internal controls.

In 2002, the Bank lent $3.9 billion of its ordinary capital resources and extended loans and grants of $1.7 billion from ADF and TA resources for development projects. Since its founding in 1966, the ADB has committed over $69 billion, and the ADF has committed $27 billion. In addition, the ADB has made cumulative private sector loans and equity investments of over $2 billion.

In 2000, the U.S. made the final payment to the ADB's fourth general capital increase. No request is being made for ADB in 2004.

The 2004 request for the ADF is for $103 million in budget authority for our third scheduled contribution under ADF-8 and $48.9 million to clear a portion of arrears.

The African Development Bank group is composed of (i) the African Development Bank (AFDB), which lends at prevailing rates, and (ii) the African Development Fund (AFDF), which provides grants and concessional loans to the poorest African countries. In 2002, the AFDB approved 31 new projects amounting to about $1.5 billion. Since its inception in 1963, the AFDB has financed 906 projects amounting to about $26.8 billion.

The African Development Fund approved $1.3 billion for 85 projects in 2002. Since its inception in 1974, cumulative AFDF lending totals an estimated $17.8 billion for 1,770 development projects.

The 2004 request for the African Development Bank Group includes $123.2 million in budget authority and $79.6 million in program limitations on callable capital subscriptions. The budget authority request consists of $5.1 million in paid-in capital for the fifth installment on the U.S. share of the AFDB's fifth capital increase; $79.6 million in program limitations on callable capital; and $118 million for the second of three equal installments on the U.S. share of the AFDF-9 replenishment covering the period 2003-2005. In September 2002, the U.S. and other donor countries reached agreement on the ninth replenishment of the AfDF (AfDF-9) that will cover CY 2002-2004. The U.S. exercised leadership under AfDF-9 in attaining a substantial increase in grant funding from the existing level of 7.5% to 18-21% of available resources. This replenishment lays out four broad policy objectives: (1) greater selectivity and focus in Fund operations; (2) enhanced development effectiveness and measurable results; (3) improved linkages between lending and performance; and (4) deepened coordination with other development entities. In addition, we seek budget authority of $85,756 to clear a portion of U.S. arrears to the African Development Bank Group.

The European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (EBRD) supports market-oriented economic reform and democratic pluralism through predominately private sector lending and investments in the nations of Central and Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union. Nearly eighty percent of projects approved in 2001 were in the private sector. The United States and other shareholders signed the articles of agreement of the EBRD on May 29, 1990, and the Bank officially began operating on April 15, 1991.

In April 1996, shareholders approved a doubling of EBRD's capital base from EUR 10 billion to EUR 20 billion (approximately $24 billion) which went into effect in April 1997. The annual payment for the U.S.'s ten percent share is $35.8 million payable over a period of 8 years. As of the end of third quarter 2002, the EBRD had a portfolio of over 800 projects with a total value of $21 billion.

The 2004 request consists of $35.4 million in budget authority for paid-in capital and $122.1 million in program limitations for callable capital for the seventh of eight installments on the U.S. subscription to the general capital increase.

The North American Development Bank (NADBank) provides financing for environmental infrastructure projects in the U.S.-Mexico border region and, more broadly in the United States and Mexico for NAFTA-related community adjustments and investment. Under NADBank's charter, the U.S. and Mexico contributed equally to NADBank's capital—$450 million in paid-in capital and $2.55 billion in callable capital. The final U.S. installment was appropriated in 1998, and there is no paid-in request for 2004.

The NADBank finances environmental infrastructure projects that have been certified by the U.S.-Mexico Border Environmental Commission (BECC), an institution designed to assist states and local communities in coordinating border clean-up. As of December 2002, the NADBank had approved $49.1 million in loans for 14 projects and $15.5 million in grants for technical assistance and project construction. It has also administered $423.6 million in EPA-funded grants to 45 projects in Mexico and the United States. The total investment value of all the projects to which it provides funding is approximately $1.5 billion.

In March 2002, President Bush and President Fox agreed to a set of proposals to improve the performance of NADBank and BECC in fulfilling their missions. These include measures to improve the affordability of NADBank financing, expand the geographic area of operations in Mexico, create a single Board of Directors for both institutions, and conduct a review of the project cycle. The Administration is seeking congressional authorizations necessary to implement several of these reforms.

The Multilateral Investment Fund (MIF), administered by the Inter-American Development Bank, provides grants and loans to support private-sector development and finance and labor sector reforms in Latin America and the Caribbean. Special consideration is given to reforms that encourage private foreign direct investment and promote privatization. Grants and loans are used for technical assistance to identify and resolve investment constraints, for investment in human capital, and for business infrastructure and development. Since its inception in 1992, the MIF has approved 521 projects, of which the MIF contribution totaled $800 million.

The U.S. made a commitment to the MIF in 1992 amounting to $500 million. For 2004, $32.6 million is requested to clear a portion of arrears.

The International Fund for Agricultural Development (IFAD) was established in 1977 as a multilateral financial institution focused on promoting rural agricultural development in poorer countries. IFAD's specific mandate is to assist small-scale producers and subsistence farmers to increase their productivity and incomes, improve their nutritional levels, and help integrate them into larger markets.

The 2004 request is for $15,004,042, of which $15 million is for our first scheduled contribution under IFAD's 6th replenishment (IFAD-VI) and $4,042 is to clear a portion of U.S. arrears. We will seek congressional authorization to contribute a total of $45 million under IFAD-VI which includes a number of key policy reforms advocated by the U.S.: creation of a performance-based allocation system; an increase in grants; improvements in measuring project results; and establishment of an independent evaluation function.

This account will provide technical assistance to other countries in support of the responsibilities of the U.S. Treasury Department to formulate, conduct and coordinate the international financial policies of the United States. The Treasury Department frequently has the lead responsibility for implementing fiscal and financial policy aspects of U.S. foreign policy toward individual countries. Technical assistance provided through this account will facilitate key short- and medium-term reforms in the policy and management areas of budget, tax, government debt, financial institutions and financial crimes enforcement.

Using funding provided under the SEED and FREEDOM Support Acts, U.S. Treasury Department advisors have provided policy and management advice in the areas described above to countries in Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union in their transition to market economies and democratic political structures. Since 1997, Treasury has also provided assistance, using funding from USAID Development Assistance and the Economic Support Fund, to more than 23 governments on a global basis. The flexibility provided by direct funding permits the Department to be responsive when governments make decisions to implement key fiscal and financial reforms, and allows it to act quickly to help select governments strengthen governmental fiscal and financial institutions during crucial transition periods toward market-oriented economies. In addition, Treasury technical assistance is increasingly being deployed in post-conflict situations.

The proposed $14 million appropriation will fund resident advisors, including program related administrative costs and intermittent experts in support of the resident advisors. This appropriation will permit continuation of the program in countries outside Central and Eastern Europe and the Former Soviet Union, including implementation of programs in Asia, Africa, and Central and Latin America, as well as continued technical assistance in anti-terrorism. The Treasury Department will continue to coordinate activities with international financial institutions and with USAID, the Department of State and other relevant U.S. Government agencies when determining where its technical assistance program can have the greatest positive impact.

The Global Fund to Fight HIV/AIDS, Malaria, and TB account exists to obligate and disburse U.S. contributions to the new Global Fund to fight AIDS, TB and Malaria (GFATM) that come from appropriations within the Department of Health and Human Services. The Fund's creation became a 2002 Presidential Initiative after being called for by the U.N. Secretary General in April 2001. Declarations and financial commitments were issued prior to, during and after the groundbreaking UN General Assembly Special Session on HIV/AIDS in June 2001 and at the G8 Summit in Genoa in July 2001.

The purpose of GFATM is to attract, manage, and disburse additional resources through a new public-private partnership that will make a sustainable and significant contribution to the reduction of infections, illness and death, thereby mitigating the impact caused by HIV/AIDS, tuberculosis and malaria in countries in need. The Fund will pursue an integrated and balanced approach covering prevention, treatment, and care and support in dealing with these three diseases. The Fund will seek to establish a simplified, rapid, innovative process with efficient and effective disbursement mechanisms, minimizing transaction costs and operating in a transparent and accountable manner based on clearly defined responsibilities. The Fund will make use of existing international mechanisms and health plans.

Approximately $2.2 billion has been committed to the Fund thus far from industrialized and developing country governments, corporations, foundations, and private individual contributions. The U.S. Government has appropriated a total of up to $300 million in 2001 and 2002, proposed to contribute an additional $200 million in 2003, and proposes another $200 million in 2004, $100 million of which is proposed to be appropriated within the National Institutes of Allergy and Infectious Diseases (NIAID) Account and $100 million within USAID's Child Survival and Health Account.

In July 2000, the United States established a fund at the European Bank for Reconstruction and Development (EBRD) to support Small and Medium Enterprise (SME) financing through technical assistance to local financial institutions and credit lines for on-lending to SMEs. An allocation of $10 million was provided to the EBRD from 2000 Support for Eastern European Democracies Act (SEED Act) funding, $11 million (including $1 million allocated specifically for Serbia) from 2001 SEED Act, and $5 million from 2002 SEED Act funding to support countries in Southeast Europe. In 2002, the Administration expanded the program to Freedom Support Act countries and provided $2 million from 2002 FSA funding to support SME programs in Kyrgyzstan and Georgia through this account. In addition, $3.1 million in FSA Funding was provided by USAID directly to the SME Fund at the EBRD to support programs in Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, and Ukraine. The Administration also provided $3 million in 2002 FSA funds to support the Russian Small Business Fund at the EBRD.

Three main activities will be supported under this program: (1) providing debt finance to SMEs by on-lending through eligible banks; (2) providing technical assistance to promote sound business practices and good governance at participating banks; and (3) providing technical assistance to identify legal, regulatory, and policy impediments and improving the operating environment for SMEs.

Provided further, That funds may not be paid to the HIPC Trust Fund for the benefit of any country if the Secretary of State has credible evidence that the government of such country is engaged in a consistent pattern of gross violations of internationally recognized human rights or in military or civil conflict that undermines its ability to develop and implement measures to alleviate poverty and to devote adequate human and financial resources to that end: Provided further, That on the basis of final appropriations, the Secretary of the Treasury shall consult with the Committees on Appropriations concerning which countries and international financial institutions are expected to benefit from a United States contribution to the HIPC Trust Fund during the fiscal year: Provided further, That the Secretary of the Treasury shall inform the Committees on Appropriations not less than 15 days in advance of the signature of an agreement by the United States to make payments to the HIPC Trust Fund of amounts for such countries and institutions: Provided further, That the Secretary of the Treasury may disburse funds designated for debt reduction through the HIPC Trust Fund only for the benefit of countries that—

(a) have committed, for a period of 24 months, not to accept new market rate loans from the international financial institution receiving debt repayment as a result of such disbursement, other than loans made by such institution to export-oriented commercial projects that generate foreign exchange which are generally referred to as 'enclave' loans; and

(b) have documented and demonstrated their commitment to redirect their budgetary resources from international debt repayments to programs to alleviate poverty and promote economic growth that are additional to or expand upon those previously available for such purposes:

Provided further, That any limitation of subsection (e) of section 411 of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 shall not apply to funds appropriated under this heading: Provided further, That none of the funds made available under this heading in this or any other appropriations Acts shall be made available for Sudan or Burma unless the Secretary of Treasury determines and notifies the Committees on Appropriations that a democratically elected government has taken office.

Debt Reduction for the Poorest.—For the poorest countries, debt reduction provides an incentive to implement macroeconomic and structural reforms necessary to improve economic performance and creditworthiness. Debt relief, economic reform and poverty reduction contribute to economic growth and social development, which can mean expanded opportunities for trade and investment for the United States. For the poorest and most heavily indebted countries, the United States will continue support for the Paris Club of official creditors and provide additional relief complementary to the enhanced Heavily Indebted Poor Country (HIPC) Initiative.

To support this initiative, the Administration requests $75 million to fund a portion of the U.S. pledge of $150 million to help meet the additional financing needs of the HIPC Trust Fund. The U.S. pledge supports the President's commitment at the 2002 G-8 Summit in Kananaskis, Canada to fund a share of the HIPC financing shortfall. In addition, the Administration requests $300 million to fund bilateral HIPC debt reduction for the Democratic Republic of the Congo. The HIPC Trust Fund, administered by the World Bank, helps regional development banks and other multilateral institutions meet their costs of debt relief. The Administration expects that the U.S. contribution to the HIPC Trust Fund will continue to leverage contributions from other creditors.

Tropical Forest Debt Relief. The Tropical Forest Conservation Act (TFCA) received strong bipartisan support and was signed into law by the President in July 1998. Modeled after the very successful Enterprise for the Americas Initiative (EAI), P.L. 105-214 allows the Administration to reduce outstanding concessional USAID and PL-480 debt stocks to support conservation of the endangered tropical forests and promote economic reforms in eligible countries. Debt relief or buybacks in eligible countries will leverage payment of local currency resources into funds to support programs to conserve their tropical forests. TFCA debt reduction agreements have been concluded with five countries: Bangladesh, Belize, El Salvador, Peru and the Philippines. In total, these countries will save over $62 million in hard currency payments as a result of these agreements to swap external debt for forest conservation. To support this program, the Administration requests $20 million for the Treasury Debt Restructuring account.

Development Assistance Programs.—This account supports Agency efforts to address the manifestations and causes of poverty and underdevelopment overseas. This is accomplished through three strategic areas of emphasis or pillars: the Global Development Alliance, and two program pillars; Economic Growth, Agriculture and Trade; and Democracy, Conflict and Humanitarian Assistance.

• The Global Development Alliance (GDA) is USAID's emerging business model and the first pillar of its strategic approach. It uses public-private alliances to address global poverty, disease, hunger, economic growth, education, environment, and population issues. The approach is built on the 21st century realities of limited official development assistance resources from the public sector, and significant and growing resources and involvement in international development activities by the private sector and civil society. All alliances are funded and managed by the USAID mission or technical or regional bureau where they operate. Increasingly, USAID is programming alliances through normal bilateral programs.

• Economic Growth, Agriculture and Trade subsumes efforts to increase agricultural production and food security, to foster human resource development including improved and expanded access to quality basic education especially for girls and women, to expand access to micro-credit, improve the business trade, and investment climate in developing countries through the expansion and strengthening of critical private markets, and to protect the environment.

• Democracy, Conflict and Humanitarian Assistance programs support the USG response to international disasters, help emerging countries cope with the transition from crisis to development, and support the growth of democracy through programs that strengthen the rule of law and respect for human rights, encourage credible and competitive political processes, promote the development of a politically active civil society, and encourage more transparent and accountable government institutions.

The Administration's request also includes funding designed to leverage the resources of non-governmental organizations, the private sector, and other donors to achieve a much greater level of impact in these areas than is possible with the limited USAID resources alone.

The request also assumes reduced restrictions on sub-account appropriations to reflect a more realistic set of activities and to more directly relate sectoral priorities to field programs.

This account includes programs to help cover extraordinary needs in Afghanistan and a major increase in basic education programs, including full funding of the President's Africa Education Initiative.

In his State of the Union Address on January 29, 2003, President Bush called for a new initiative to enhance the commitment of the United States to preventing the global spread of AIDS and to developing and delivering more effective treatments to the tens of millions of people overseas already infected and threatened with infection. The increased funds over the next five years will go into a new account for global AIDS initiatives. When these funds are added to existing international HIV/AIDS programs—primarily in the Agency for International Development, the Department of Health and Human Services, and the Global Fund to fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria—the total United States commitment to this global effort will reach $15 billion over five years.

The President's initiative will be administered by a new AIDS Coordinator in the Department of State. It will be used to fund existing HIV/AIDS programs, such as the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria, and new programs created by the public organizations and private non-governmental organizations, especially faith-based volunteer organizations that are providing local and global communities with strategies to confront the HIV/AIDS pandemic.

This account provides funds to promote country-specific strategies that build on common, region-wide strategic goals, including economic restructuring, democratic transition, and social stabilization. Authorized Support for Assistance for Eastern Europe and the Baltic States (AEEB) programs concentrate on (a) the development and strengthening of institutions and civic action necessary for sustainable democracy; (b) the development of market economies and a strong private sector; and (c) the improvement of the basic quality of life in selected areas. This interagency program is managed by the AEEB coordinator, who is located in the State Department's Bureau of European and Eurasian Affairs.

AEEB assistance is now focused primarily on Southeast Europe, with the single largest program designed for Serbia. The U.S. is contributing to international efforts toward recovery from the conflict with Milosevic through building effective governance and a functioning economy in the successor states of the former Yugoslavia. While implementation of the Dayton Accords still requires significant, albeit diminishing, support in Bosnia, two wars in the region in recent years have demonstrated the need for a special effort to provide for peaceful cooperation among neighbors. The Stability Pact of Southeast Europe builds on the country programs in the Balkans to help stabilize the region as a whole and prepare for integration into the European and international mainstream. It is anticipated that 2006 will be the last year of AEEB assistance for Bulgaria.

Beginning in 2004, funding for exchange programs in Eastern Europe and the Baltic States will be consolidated into and administered by the State Department bureau of Educational and Cultural Exchange programs.

This account provides funds for a program of assistance to the independent states that emerged from the former Soviet Union. This request will fund continuing programs of USAID and other agencies in support of economic and democratic transitions.

Collectively, these programs for the Independent States are designed to consolidate the process of political and economic transition to market democracies, and to help address major socioeconomic dislocations where they occur during these transitions. Funds will support economic restructuring by helping to create conditions that encourage: trade and investment and private sector growth; improved government fiscal policy, revenue collection, and financial management; a market-oriented financial sector; and a more efficient energy sector and a cleaner environment. Funds will support democratic transitions by promoting citizen participation, promoting independent media establishing the rule of law, and strengthening local governments.

In 2004, funding for exchange programs in the former Soviet Union will be consolidated into and administered by the State Department bureau of Educational and Cultural Exchange programs. Program resources requested in 2004 will be aimed at: (1) enhancing local public and private institutional capacity as part of the comprehensive strategy to expand trade and investment, develop and strengthen small and medium enterprises, mobilize capital, reduce crime and corruption, and build viable civil societies; (2) mitigating the social impact of transitions in order to broaden public support for needed reforms; and (3) addressing health problems more deliberately. Assistance to central governments will be highly selective.

Funding is requested to encourage front line states of Central Asia, as well as Armenia, Azerbaijan, and Georgia to support the anti-terrorism campaign and address regional stability issues. At the same time, Russia and Ukraine will begin the process of graduation from economic assistance in 2004.

Funding is also requested for programs such as the Civilian Research and Development Foundation and export control and border security enhancements in Georgia. These efforts contribute to economic and infrastructure reforms as well as to reducing risks of proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, weapons delivery systems, materials, technology and scientific and technical expertise and reduce regional tensions.

The International Disaster Assistance (IDA) account provides funds for the Office of U.S. Foreign Disaster Assistance (OFDA). OFDA manages relief, rehabilitation, and reconstruction assistance to foreign countries struck by natural and man-made disasters and supports disaster prevention, mitigation and preparedness. OFDA's program has been placing increasing emphasis on complex emergencies, a product of ethnic and national tensions leading to civil strife and the displacement of large numbers of people. The $235.5 million request for OFDA for 2004 will be used to provide relief services and commodities including temporary shelter, blankets, supplementary food, potable water, medical supplies and agricultural rehabilitation aid, including seeds and hand tools. The 2003 request level included $50 million for extraordinary one-time relief requirements in the West Bank and Gaza.

The Famine Fund is a new, flexible tool for the President to use in U.S.-led multilateral efforts to reduce the incidence of famine by addressing its root causes, and to respond more efficiently and effectively to famines that cannot be prevented, while more equitably sharing the burden of this response with other donors. The Fund, which will draw upon the broad disaster assistance authorities in the Foreign Assistance Act, will be managed by USAID under the foreign policy direction of the Secretary of State and subject to approval by the President.

This account will be established in 2003 for capital investments in information technology (IT)-related capital projects; $20 million is being requested for this purpose in 2004. Funds from the CIF will only be made available after USAID has demonstrated a successful business case for its IT investments.

In this account, the Administration is also requesting funds for the construction of overseas facilities to be co-located with the Department of State. USAID has fallen behind the Department's construction schedule due to lack of funding, resulting in posts where despite the presence of a new, secure embassy, USAID personnel are still working in facilities that do not meet security standards. The $126.3 million requested for construction is intended to bring USAID up to date with the Department's schedule by funding USAID facilities at posts where State will have begun construction by the end of 2003. For new projects to begin in 2004, adequate funds are requested in the Department's construction account to accommodate all agencies at post, including USAID.

The Office of Transition Initiatives (OTI) addresses the opportunities and challenges facing conflict-prone countries and those making the transition from the initial crisis stage of a complex emergency (frequently addressed by the Office of Foreign Disaster Assistance) to the path of sustainable development. OTI collaborates closely with the Department of State, the National Security Council, the Department of Defense, and USAID's regional bureaus in the selection of high foreign policy priority countries for OTI's transition assistance and in the design and monitoring of OTI programs. OTI's efforts to advance peace and stability include support for: demobilization and re-integration of ex-combatants; community self-help programs that reduce tensions and promote grass-roots democratic media; and conflict resolution measures.

The fund, authorized by section 635(m) of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, finances on a reimbursable basis the costs associated with providing administrative support to other agencies under the International Cooperative Administrative Support Services (ICASS) program overseas. Under ICASS, each agency pays a proportional share of the cost of those services they have agreed to receive. Working through inter-agency councils at post, all agencies have a say in determining which services the USAID mission will provide, defining service standards, reviewing costs, and determining funding levels. The fund is also used for deposit of rebates from the use of Federal credit cards, the deposits then being made available for start-up costs at new ICASS service provider missions and for technical support to missions currently providing services.

In 2002, the Administration merged USAID's two credit programs as one consolidated Development Credit authority. This single program, which includes a consolidated credit administrative budget, allows USAID to use credit as a flexible development tool for a wide range of development purposes.

The Development Credit Authority (DCA) permits the Agency to substitute credit assistance (loans and loan guarantees) for grant assistance to achieve any of the economic development purposes authorized by the Congress in Part I of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended. Subject to limits in annual appropriations acts and the normal congressional notification processes, disciplined credit assistance under DCA is principally intended for use where a development activity is financially viable, where borrowers are creditworthy, and where there is true risk sharing with private lenders. DCA augments grant assistance by mobilizing private capital in developing countries for sustainable development projects. In 2004 USAID plans to use some of this authority for water projects to fulfill the Administration's commitment at the World Summit on Sustainable Development.

Peace Corps' operating expenses will provide direct and indirect support for Americans engaged in voluntary services in approximately 78 countries worldwide in 2004. The support will include the necessary safety and security provisions for the Peace Corps' Volunteers, trainees, and staff. By September 2004, there will be approximately 10,000 Americans enrolled in the Peace Corps, consistent with the President's goal of 14,000 volunteers by 2007. The Volunteers help fill the trained manpower needs of developing countries and encourage self-sustaining development of skilled manpower. The Peace Corps promotes mutual understanding between the peoples of the developing world and the United States and focuses the attention of the American people on the benefits of volunteerism. Peace Corps Volunteers work primarily in the areas of agriculture, education, economic development, health, and environment.

Established by the 1969 Foreign Assistance Act, the Inter-American Foundation (IAF) supports grassroots development initiatives in Latin America and the Caribbean with a direct impact on the lives and the capacity for self reliance of people at the lowest economic levels. In 2003, the IAF will continue its strategic programming approaches that focus on: (1) building partnerships among grassroots organizations, non-governmental organizations, local governments, and private enterprises to foster social and economic development at the local level; and, (2) increasing the participation of U.S. corporate and national private business sector resources in grassroots development initiatives. This strategy promotes social investment in Latin America and the Caribbean by the U.S. and local private business sector to improve the quality of life of the poor in the region. The IAF will continue to apply its system of measuring the results of its grants to improve Foundation decision-making and identify and disseminate good practice and lessons to new private sector contributors and development practitioners. Using results and evaluation information, the IAF will incorporate lessons learned into the IAF's strategic planning and grant decision-making processes. The IAF will continue to implement an integrated program management information system which will increase efficiency in its operations and facilitate grant monitoring and results reporting.

Development Grants.—This activity includes grants made directly to local private, non-profit organizations working in partnerships with businesses and local authorities to carry out development projects in Latin America and the Caribbean. In 2004, the IAF plans to award approximately 70 new grants and 15 supplemental grants in 14 countries.

Evaluations and Other Activities.—This activity covers grant results assessments by in-country specialists and evaluations from a sample of the grants supported by the IAF. This activity also includes the publications that convey the IAF's partnership, corporate social responsibility and grassroots democracy experiences, and lessons to businesses, development practitioners, members of partnerships, and other donors.

Program Management and Operation.—This activity includes Foundation expenses for salaries and benefits, travel, reimbursable service agreements with other Federal agencies, rent, service contracts, and other support costs.

The African Development Foundation (ADF), a public corporation, is the only agency of the U.S. Government that directly supports community-based initiatives to alleviate poverty and promote sustainable development in Africa. Through its grant program, ADF provides Africans with the resources necessary to identify and solve their own problems. ADF relies on participatory development approaches that strengthen local capacity, foster ownership of development projects, and promote self-help and empowerment.

In 2004, ADF will provide grants to recipients in fourteen African countries, either directly to grassroots groups or through non-governmental organizations. These grants will promote the following three strategic goals:

(1) Advance broad-based, sustainable development and empowerment of the poor in Africa.—ADF will promote micro- and small-enterprise development to generate income and employment. ADF will increase participation of African businesses and producer groups in trade and investment relationships with the U.S. and within Africa. ADF will support community-based HIV/AIDS prevention and mitigation.

(2) Expand local capacity to promote and support grassroots, participatory development.—ADF will build self-supporting, sustainable, local community development agencies that provide technical assistance and support to grassroots groups. ADF will develop and replicate new models for community reinvestment. ADF will continue to leverage additional funding through strategic partnerships with national and local governments, other donor agencies, and the local private sector. ADF will encourage African governments and other donors to increase utilization of participatory development “best practices”.

(3) Enhance American assistance and strengthen U.S. relations with Africa.—ADF will seek to leverage resources for grassroots development through strategic partnerships with the U.S. private sector and other U.S. Government agencies. ADF will work toward improving program and policy coordination with U.S. foreign assistance and foreign policy agencies.

As part of a general increase in IMF quota resources, on November 17, 1998, the United States consented to an increase in its quota to SDR 37,149.3 million (about $52 billion at that time). The increase in the U.S. quota involves no net budget outlays. Similarly, use by the IMF of the quota commitment does not result in net budget outlays because the United States receives an increase in its international monetary reserves corresponding to any transfer of dollars under the U.S. quota subscription. The United States can use these interest-bearing reserves to meet a balance of payments financing need.

The General Arrangements to Borrow (GAB) were established in 1962 by 10 industrial countries, including the United States, as a means of supplementing the IMF's resources when needed to forestall or cope with an impairment of the international monetary system. GAB members agreed in early 1983 to increase their financial commitments to the GAB from approximately SDR 6.3 billion to SDR 17 billion, with the U.S. share rising from $2.0 billion to approximately $6.4 billion.

In January 1997, the Executive Board of the IMF approved the creation of the New Arrangements to Borrow (NAB) to further supplement resources available to the IMF to forestall or cope with an impairment of the international monetary system or to deal with an exceptional situation that poses a threat to the stability of the system. The NAB became effective on November 17, 1998. In 2002, twenty-five countries and institutions participated in the NAB through a set of credit arrangements with the IMF totaling SDR 34 billion (about $48 billion on the date of establishment), of which the U.S. share is approximately SDR 6.7 billion (about $9.0 billion at end-December 2002). Chile is in the process of becoming the twenty-sixth member. Although the GAB continues to exist, the sum of loans advanced under the NAB and GAB cannot exceed SDR 34 billion. The sum of U.S. loans advanced under both arrangements cannot exceed the U.S. share of the NAB.

Financing extended by the United States under the GAB and NAB does not result in any net budget outlays because such financing results in an equivalent increase in U.S. international reserve assets in the form of a claim on the IMF.

During 1998 (July), the IMF made one call on GAB participants in support of an assistance program for Russia, of which the U.S. share was approximately $483 million. On December 15, 1998, the IMF made a call on NAB participants in support of an assistance program for Brazil, of which the U.S. share was approximately $860 million. The GAB and NAB loans were paid back in full on March 11, 1999. Since 1999, no calls were made on GAB or NAB participants, and no loans were outstanding at the end of the fiscal year.
